GIRL'S SLAYER DIES IN CHAIR

1936 CAMPAIGN BEGINS TO TAKE SHAPE RAPIDLY

Shadow of 3d Party Looms Over All.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Events of the last week have served to remind us that the 1936 presidential campaign already is under way. Every move of the party in power and of the opposition is now being made and assayed in the light of its potential influence upon the choice of a President which the people will make next year.

The struggle is going to be a momentous one; its outcome will determine whether we are going to continue along the course of collectivism charted by the New Deal or are to revert to the individualistic economy obtaining before Roosevelt.

Chamber Leads Opposition.

The belligerent attitude of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in its convention last week indicates that organized business intends to make a last desperate stand against the New Deal in the hope of halting and undoing its monetary manipulations and experimentation in state socialism. Led by the President, the New Dealers have accepted the challenge, confident the people will repudiate organized business and give the Roosevelt program a new lease on life.

At the opening of the campaign there is only one certainty—the renomination of Roosevelt by his party. The Republicans are canvassing the qualifications of a dozen or more potential candidates and seeking to crystalize a party stand on issues in a series of regional conferences designed to rebuild the party from "the grass roots."

Third Party Casts Shadow.

Overhanging the contest of the two old parties that have faced each other quadrennially for eight decades is the shadow of a third party composed of ultra-radicals, which, while not likely to elect its candidate, might poll a sufficient number of electoral votes to throw the choice of President into the house of representatives.

At the present stage of the proceedings political calculations are bewilderingly scrambled. The Democrats are relying upon the 5 billion dollar work relief program to produce a sufficient show of recovery to insure the reelection of the President. The Republicans, on the other hand, calculate that the more progress made toward recovery the less people will be disposed to accede to a perpetuation of New Deal policies that were initiated ostensibly as emergency measures only.

Democrats Seek to Straddle.

The Democrats are entering upon the contest with an appeal primarily to all shades of liberals and radicals, not without, however, a cunning suggestion to conservatives that unless they line up for Mr. Roosevelt they will run the risk of getting Huey Long in the White House at the head of a third party. To the Republicans Huey Long is a white hope. They conceive it to be entirely possible that a third party headed by the Louisiana dictator might draw enough votes from Mr. Roosevelt to enable the Republican candidate to win.

While the Democrats are on the liberal tack, but trimming their sails for conservative breezes, the Republicans are shaping a conservative course, but throwing an anchor windward to liberalism. They purpose to be conservative, but not too conservative. The eastern Republicans are more uncompromising in their opposition to the New Deal than are their western brethren.

Still Hunt for Candidate.

On the question of a candidate to oppose Mr. Roosevelt, Republican sentiment has not begun to crystalize. Mr. Hoover is becoming politically active again, moving about the country and conferring with Republican leaders and now and then assailing the New Deal. All of which convinces many Republicans that he is receptive to renomination. The friends of Mr. Hoover consider him the logical nominee, as the outstanding member of the party, and believe that a year hence the reaction against the New Deal will be ripe for his vindication.

Anti-Hoover Republicans are no less convinced that his nomination would mean party suicide. Other possibilities for the nomination whose qualifications are being canvassed include Ogden L. Mills, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and Congressman James W. Wadsworth and Hamilton Fish of New York; Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, Senators Arthur H. Vandenburg of Michigan, Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa, and Charles L. McNary of

GETTING SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

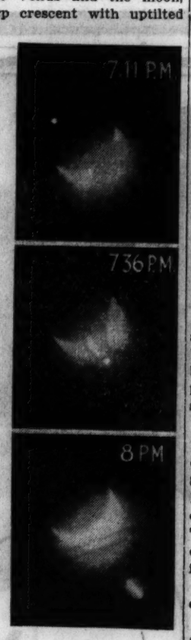
Venus Glides with Moon in Sky Spectacle

The planet Venus and the moon, a thin, sharp crescent with uptilted cusps, gleamed together in the western skies last evening to make a rare celestial show that aroused the interest of thousands of Chicagoans. Immediately after sunset the heavenly bodies became visible, with the star apparently nestling under the lunar sickle and—in the words of one amateur observer—"only about an inch away." As the evening wore on the distance slowly widened between the two celestial bodies, but for more than two hours longer they made a brilliant eye-arresting spectacle.



Spectators Miss First Act.

Actually, the best of the show was invisible, for, while the sun was still above the horizon, the moon passed directly between the earth and the planet and obscured it completely.

Astronomers call the phenomenon an occultation. An occultation of a star or planet is equivalent to a total eclipse of the sun. It is considerably more than an eclipse, for the bulk of the moon completely hides the planet for a considerable interval of time, while a total eclipse of the sun, because of the sun's size and brilliance, is a matter of moments.

In the accompanying illustration the two upper pictures are photo-diagrams showing Venus as she would have appeared when going behind and emerging from the moon had it been dark enough to be visible at that time. The bottom picture is an actual photograph of Venus and the moon taken shortly after darkness. The moon and the planet are oblong and out of focus in the photograph because of their movement while the picture was being taken.

Dr. Otto Struve of the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams, Bay, Wis., said that Venus began to move behind the moon at 7:11 p. m. and emerged at 7:36 p. m. Sunset was at 7:53 p. m.

Sun Spoils All for Science.

"The occultation would have been of great interest to us," said Dr. Struve, "had it occurred a little later. But the light of the sun prevented our making any scientific observations. This is the only occultation of Venus due this year and there will be none in 1936."

It is seldom, the director said, that occultations occur at night.

Both the moon and Venus, to the earthbound observers, were moving westward and downward when the obscuration occurred. Their paths were almost the same. The planet, however, sank more rapidly than the moon.

The Invisible Drama.

Had the beginning of the occultation been visible, Venus would have appeared to be sinking into the dark of the moon at the upper left hand edge, above the points of the crescent. Twenty-five minutes later, had it been darker, Venus would have appeared as a bright nub at the lower right edge of the moon.

As darkness gathered Venus was disclosed as a brilliant star clinging close to the moon's edge, with the distance between them gradually lengthening toward the northwest horizon.

HEAD OF TAILORING FIRM DIES IN FALL UNDER TRAIN ON "L"

The body of a man who was killed yesterday when he leaped or fell in front of a northbound North Shore railroad train at the Fullerton avenue elevated station was identified last night as that of J. C. Winbur, 55 years old, 743 Buena avenue.

The identification was made by Winbur's son-in-law, Robert Grace, 237 East Delaware place. Grace said that Winbur, owner of a tailoring establishment at 8 South Michigan avenue, had been ill recently.

Witnesses told the police that Winbur plunged from the station platform onto the tracks just as the rapidly moving train approached. One of his arms touched the charged third rail and it was said he might have been electrocuted before the wheels passed over him.

Bridge 100 Feet Long Knocked Down by Auto

Washington Courthouse, O., May 5.—(AP)—Sheriff W. H. Icenhowar said tonight a 100 foot bridge over Sugar creek was knocked down by an automobile. Oley Duncan of Dayton, driver of the car, was slightly injured. He claimed the bridge collapsed when he reached it, but the sheriff said Duncan's car hit a corner of the span. Both the automobile and the bridge steelwork lie half submerged in the creek.

Baby Lost on Friday Found Safe in Woods

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mauston, Wis., May 5.—[Special.]—Thelma Ann Wilke, 21 month old farmer's daughter for whom a whole countryside had been searching since last Friday, was found about 3 p. m. today alive and apparently well. She was about three miles from the home of her parents, Stanley and Hattie Wilke, lost in the thick woods. She was asleep when Albert McLellan, a Juneau county farmer, one of more than 450 who had been on the search since Friday night, found her.

One shoe was lost and one little stocking dragged down. Her cap was gone and she lay with her arm over her eyes when McLellan almost stumbled over her.

Runs Temperature of 101.

The child was taken to her home and kept until she was warm and then brought here to the hospital. Dr. J. S. Hess Jr., who is caring for her, said she apparently will be all right. She had a temperature of 101, undoubtedly due to the exposure, but no congestion, and Dr. Hess is confident tonight that there will be no pneumonia and that after a day or so of care she will be as well as ever.

Her recovery ended a dramatic search in which the neighbors for miles joined the forces of Sherif Morg Rider and several hundred youths in neighboring CCC camps. The hunters organized a chain in which men proceeded through the woods in all directions scarcely more than arm length apart.

McLellan was a little apart from the others when he came upon the sleeping child. She was so quiet, so sound asleep, that he feared she was dead and, not touching her, he called to her.

"Hello! I'm Lost," She Says.

"Hello, Thelma," he spoke and she awakened instantly and without a tear. "Hello, there," she said, "I'm lost." Then she asked McLellan for crackers.

There are heavy scrub oak woods in every direction from the Wilke home, so deep that even the hard snowstorm of Friday had not penetrated much, and the spot where the child lay asleep was dry and sheltered. She was dressed warmly, long underwear and a warm coat, and except for the loss of the shoe was as well protected from the wet and cold as was possible in such circumstances.

The child wandered away Friday afternoon from the home near New Minor in the town of Armenia. Her father is a helpless invalid and the mother had left for a few minutes on an errand, leaving the baby with her 4 year old brother, August. The boy followed his mother down the lane to the main road and when he went back to the farmhouse the girl was gone.

Crisis Reaches Into 84 Other Counties.

About 50,600 Chicago and Cook county families who have been supported by work relief checks will be face to face with hunger today unless emergency funds are made available. Representing an estimated 175,000 persons, these families constitute the largest group in the state to feel the full effects of the Illinois relief crisis.

This is due to the fact that these 50,600 family heads received their last work relief checks, gauged to supply only one week's sustenance, on April 26, nine days ago, and there are no more funds for them.

Act to Avert Hunger Today.

Immediate steps towards providing some form of emergency relief for these families will be taken by Cook county and Illinois Emergency Relief commission officials today. Meanwhile efforts will be made here and in Springfield to end the relief crisis throughout the state by forcing through the lower house of the state assembly the legislation designed to raise the $3,000,000 monthly demanded by the federal government as Illinois' share in expenditures for unemployment relief.

Three more counties, Grundy, Jackson and Peoria, will have exhausted federal relief funds today, bringing to 84 the total of counties, outside of Cook, which have halted regular relief activities. In these 84 counties, 143,530 families are now dependent upon private charities, local governments or greatly reduced emergency rations made possible by drastic economies in regular relief during the last two weeks.

Clayton Smith, president of the Cook county board of commissioners, announced yesterday that he would confer this morning with Howard O. Hunter, regional representative of the FERA, and Leo Lyons, county director for the IERC. He will seek some means of aiding temporarily the 50,600 upon whose relief work checks families are dependent.

The Direct Relief Problem.

Although the feeding of this group presents the first critical problem, about 4,000 other families on direct relief will be added each day to the list of those who have received a week's rations since the county commissioners took over the relief machinery last week.

Three methods of aiding the 50,600 work relief families are to be considered. Under one, the county would try to spread even thinner the $1,200,000 raised by the sale of county relief bonds last week. This money, disbursed through the machinery of the IERC, is now being used for one week's grocery orders daily to 4,000 families of the 100,000 in the county receiving direct relief. It is the first of these 4,000 families who received their supplies a week ago who face empty cupboards this morning.

Last Direct Relief May 15.

Under this method of distribution to 4,000 families daily, the last of the relief funds will be expended on May 15. Mr. Smith said, therefore, that this form of relief is reduced practically to the minimum, and the authorities must turn to some means of raising additional funds. One possible way would be a direct federal grant to match the $1,200,000 advanced by the county. He said the FERA will be asked to give the state a grant earmarked for Cook county, but the legality of such action is questioned.

Another solution considered in the crisis is the sale of the balance of county relief bonds, $3,000,000, authorized in 1932. There is no assurance, however, that such money would be returned to the county by the government and officials are reluctant to spend $4,200,000 on relief if, within a few days, the legislature bends to the will of Harry Hopkins, FERA administrator, and votes to increase the sales [occupational] tax, which would make possible the state's $3,000,000 a month contribution to relief.

Dunham Stresses Seriousness.

With Gov. Henry Horner and the state administration exerting every effort over the week-end towards lining up the necessary 102 votes in the house to pass the sales tax increase bill as an emergency measure tomorrow, Chairman Robert J. Dunham of the IERC pointed to the seriousness of the situation.

"There are nearly 1,300,000 forgotten men, women, and children in Illinois," Mr. Dunham said. "Because the means of self-support are not available to them, they are forced to depend on public relief for the necessities of life. The federal government has declined to provide relief funds to Illinois unless the state makes some financial provision for the care of its

Edwards Pays with Life for Killing Fiancee

Rockview Penitentiary, Bellefonte, Pa., May 6 [Monday].—(AP)—Bobby Edwards, 22 year old Don Juan of the hard coal fields, died in the electric chair shortly after midnight for the slaying of his sweetheart, Freda McKechnie. The pale faced youth went to his death struggling bravely to "take it like a man."

Rain drenched the rambling, fortlike walls of the prison as the youth was seated in the death chair and a few minutes later breathed his last. It was raining that night last summer when, the state charged, Edwards clubbed Freda to death at Harvey's lake, near Wilkes-Barre. She was soon to become the mother of his child, and Edwards, known as "a ladies' man," wanted to marry his college day sweetheart, Margaret Crain, New York state school teacher.

Governor Deaf to Appeals.

Although deluged with messages and appeals asking the youth's life be spared, Gov. George H. Earle refused to "interfere with the course of justice." He made this announcement several hours before the youth was led down "the last mile" into the death chamber. Among the messages the governor received was one asking a reprieve be granted and Edwards be used for scientific experimentation.

Edwards was electrocuted at 12:35 a. m. [Chicago daylight saving time].

The Rev. Thomas Hughes, a Baptist minister from Wilkes-Barre—not far from Edwards' home town of Edwardsville—was one of the last persons to see the condemned man.

By 12:40 a. m. several cars drove out through the prison gate carrying persons who had witnessed the execution.

Thousands Near Death House.

Virtually all the residents of this old community of 3,800 persons were on the streets or near the prison walls. The broad highway past the prison was clogged with motor cars. Thousands of curious stood along the roadside—their eyes on the death house.

Edwards died calmly with a prayer on his lips. He was led into the death chamber at 12:30 a. m., placed in the chair, and at 12:31 a. m. the first contact was made—2,000 volts, 13 amperes.

At 12:34.5 a. m. the youth was pronounced dead.

As the condemned youth walked slowly and calmly to the electric chair the Rev. Dr. C. F. Lauer, prison chaplain, recited the 23d Psalm in a low tone.

Lips Move as if in Prayer.

During the walk to the chair Edwards made no movement of his lips, but as the black cap was placed over his head they began moving as in prayer.

The 22 year old boy was dressed in a white shirt, open at the neck, and dark trousers. His hair was clipped short.

The only visible sign of emotion from Edwards was a trembling of his hands as the straps were placed around him.

The Rev. Mr. Lauer still was in the midst of the 23d Psalm when the executioner, Robert Elliott, made the contact.

The lights went dim and Edwards' body bent forward.

Pronounced Dead by Doctor.

BRITISH EMPIRE TODAY SALUTES KING AND QUEEN

Rulers Will Parade as London Cheers.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6 [Monday].—With wild enthusiasm unmatched since the day the world war ended, millions of British subjects scattered throughout the world will pay tribute today to King George V. and Queen Mary of Great Britain on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their accession to the throne.

Wherever the British flag flies—and a man would be a phenomenon who could name all the British possessions—drums will roll, trumpets will blare, and guns will roar in royal salute and the people will shriek themselves hoarse.

No matter where these people are, their minds will be on London, where the king and queen will ride across the city, past miles of cheering crowds and fluttering banners, to St. Paul's cathedral to offer thanksgiving for their twenty-five years on the throne.

Brilliant Pageant Today.

All the mighty of the land will gather in St. Paul's cathedral for the thanksgiving service. Black coats and top hats of the civil officials will mingle with the scarlet and khaki of the army, the blue and gold braid of the navy, and the lighter blue of the air force in brilliant pageantry.

It will be the greatest demonstration of the loyalty of the British people to their sovereigns in history, surpassing in warmth, if not in brilliance, the last great jubilee, that of Queen Victoria, in 1897 on her completion of sixty years on the throne. The king and queen are much closer to the present day Britons than Queen Victoria ever was.

Whistle, Sing, and Shout.

The keen desire of all Britons, except a thimbleful of communists, to demonstrate their love and respect for their king and queen was reflected early this morning in scenes unparalleled in London's history.

Until the wee hours every principal street in the west end was packed with excited crowds. The throngs whistled, sang, and shouted, contemptuous of sleep.

At midnight thousands already had taken up their positions along the royal procession route. Entire families picked suitable viewpoints on sidewalks where they laid out provisions and made the best of it. Hundreds, chiefly women and girls, slept on the steps of St. Paul's cathedral. At 2 a. m. all the best positions were taken on sidewalks of Ludgate hill leading to the cathedral.

King Orders Park Kept Open.

Police fought to unsnarl the congestion. Oxford street, London's chief shopping center, which was closed to vehicular traffic yesterday, was packed with 150,000 persons. So dense were the masses of campers that King George last night ordered police to keep Hyde Park open all night to accommodate the overflow from the streets. The park itself resembled a vast dormitory. Thousands stretched out on the grass in the warm night air, glad of a chance for a brief rest before daybreak.

Buckingham palace proved a magnet for thousands yesterday. The king and queen remained indoors during the day, but at 9:45 p. m. the rulers made a brief appearance and waved to the throngs from a balcony.

Immediately the crowd of 10,000 broke out in a delirium of cheers and surged toward the palace gates, rendering the police momentarily helpless. The royal couple withdrew. A few seconds later the king appeared alone. Another tremendous burst of cheers greeted him and the crowd again rushed forward.

Women Faint in Crush.

Many enthusiastic Britons climbed upon the palace railings to obtain a better view. Women fainted in the crush. After the king had reentered the palace the police struggled to force the crowd back across the roadway.

The congestion was added to by the Labor party's May day celebration. Sixty thousand men and women marched to Hyde park in a procession through crowds of jubilee sightseers. The demonstration passed off quietly with the exception of repeated heckling of Labor speakers by communists.

Today will be a strenuous one for ageing King George, who reluctantly gave his consent for the silver jubilee which was intended to prove the loyalty of all Britons to the throne and the friendship of the dominions for Great Britain as the motherland. The celebration also is designed to impress the world with the unity of the empire and to help trade by getting money into circulation.

King George will get up at 7:30 o'clock, take a cup of tea, take care of a few bits of business, have breakfast with the queen at 9 o'clock, and then get into the stiff, blue uniform of admiral of the fleet, heavy with gold braid and tugged down with medals.

At 10:54 o'clock—everything has been arranged on the pattern of a railroad time table—the king and queen will climb into the royal landau, which will be open if the weather is fair, and move out of Buckingham palace.

Five carriages will follow the monarchs, and there will be an escort of cavalry and infantrymen in ancient dress. Four Indian princes, as aides-de-camp of the king, will ride in the coach immediately behind the rulers.

14,000 Troops to Line Route.

Fourteen thousand troops of all arms will line the route to St. Paul's where the royal procession will arrive at 11:26 o'clock to be greeted by the chapter of the cathedral, dressed in the brilliant robes of ancient days. The services at St Paul's will last an hour and the procession will move off at 12:30 o'colck by a different route back to the palace.

Besides the royal procession of six coaches there will be six other parades of coaches. The speaker of the house of commons will use a 200 year old coach drawn by a team of brewery horses. The lord chancellor will have two carriages in his procession, the lord mayor of London five carriages, the Prince of Wales two, and the duke of York two.

The prime ministers of Great Britain, Canada, South Africa, India—an honorary post—Australia, New Zealand, and Southern Rhodesia will ride in six carriages.

Queen to Ride with Prince.

Maud, the queen of Norway, who is a sister of King George, will ride with the prince of Wales. The other members of royal families will arrive at the cathedral in motor cars.

The colossal size of the task confronting the police during the royal procession is shown by the fact that all those who bought seats to view the parade must be in them by 9:30 o'clock. All trafic on the processional route will stop at 8 o'clock but card holders will be able to get through to their seats until 9 o'clock. After that they will have to walk. If all of the 75,000 seats along the line of the royal procession are occupied speculators will net more than 3½ million dollars.

The silver jubilee is not so good for some individuals. For example, the bakers in crowded Balham and Battersea decided not to bake any fresh bread until Tuesday. As a result, a shortage occurred and frantic housewives besieged the bakers' shops until almost dawn.

The supplies ran out, and so the housewives bought cake. Later in the day they persuaded the bakers to sell them flour, and many families had their first taste of homemade bread. Then the supplies of flour ran short, and the luckier areas were called on to send in bread or flour.

KAISER'S GUARDS HAIL HITLER FOR REVIVING ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 5.—In their glittering pre-war uniforms and spiked helmets 20,000 veterans of former Kaiser Wilhelm's guards assembled in Berlin today to demonstrate their thanks to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler for reintroducing military conscription and reviving the "national army."

The military reunion turned into a demonstration against the anti-Christian movement. A Protestant army chaplain urged the veterans and their young followers in the reichswehr [regular army] to remember always that Germany's war flag in the world war bore the inscription "With God." He asked them not to allow anybody to shake their faith in the Bible and Christianity.

The veterans, regular army men, Storm Troops, and the Steel Helmets paraded in King's square. Prince Eitel Friedrich, second son of the former kaiser, represented the Hohenzollerns at the demonstration.

20,000 Small Tailor Shops to Close as Day's Protest

New York, May 5.—(AP)—The closing of 20,000 retail tailor shops in Greater New York for one day to protest against wage and working conditions in the cleaning and dyeing trades was voted today at a massmeeting of retail tailors. The date for the one day protest strike will be set later in the week.

WILL ATTEND ROYAL JUBILEE

GLASGOW COMBINES KING'S JUBILEE WITH CENTENARY PAGEANT

GLASGOW, May 5.—(AP)—Glasgow put one and one together today and made one, combining its celebrations of King George's jubilee and the centenary of the development of local government into a single observance. This second city in the land will play host tomorrow to 152,000 men, women, and children celebrating the jubilee.

Cakes, chocolates and ice cream were provided by the corporation for children under the ages of 13 years, 84,000 boys and girls to be served in city parks. Pupils older than 13 were offered more adventuresome entertainment, 58,000 of them to be taken for a sail to the city estate at Ardgoil. Similar excursions were arranged for the poor, 10,000 of them to be taken to Ardgoil.

Bedridden patients in corporation hospitals and all inmates of Glasgow institutions will be provided special treats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 5.—Although the extent of aerial expansion necessitated by German rearmament has not yet been fixed, the British government already is taking measures to increase the air force. The air ministry will issue in a few days a notice calling for short term commissioned officers.

Stricter training has been ordered, and to cope with the new requirements it was decided to more than double the existing centers for instructions of reserve air force officers.

Although orders for additional planes have not been placed, other than those already provided for, the estimates of industry's productive capacity are being carefully surveyed. One of the first measures will be simplification of aircraft construction.

Granddaughters of King Give $2.40 to Jubilee Fund

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—King George's jubilee trust fund took an extra 10 shilling [about $2.40] jump today when the monarch's little granddaughters loosened their purses. Nine year old Princess Elizabeth, who stands third in line to throne succession, next to "Uncle David" and her father, the duke of York, contributed 5 shillings. Her diminutive sister, 4 year old Princess Margaret Rose, gave the same amount.

ROYAL FAMILY DEPICTS JUBILEE IN EMBROIDERY

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—Like their ancestors of old who wove tapestries to commemorate great events, members of the royal family—males included—are embroidering jubilee pictures and texts on linen. These will be framed and handed down to become family heirlooms.

The Royal School of Needlework is assisting by supplying copies of twentieth century samplers and giving instruction for the work. The prince of Wales has started one, and is working diligently with silks, using a frame.

ONE KILLED AND 6 HURT IN M'HENRY COUNTY CRASH

Harry Hande, 73 years old, 16 Arch street, Janesville, Wis., was killed and six other persons injured yesterday when the automobiles in which they were riding collided and overturned on Highway No. 19, four miles north of Harvard in McHenry county.

Three of those injured are from Chicago. They are Mark Horowicz, 2314 Farwell avenue; Samuel Boas, 6334 North Richmond street, and John Matays, 5427 South Damen avenue. The others injured, all from Janesville, are Glen Hande, son of the man killed; Otto Wendland and Herbert Held. All are in the Harvard hospital. The Janesville party was bound for Chicago to see the ball game, while the others were going to the Wisconsin lake region.

Thomas Carroll, 55 years old, of Conway road, West Lake Forest, was killed early today when the automobile in which he was riding collided with two others in Green Bay road, three miles west of North Chicago. Two passengers in the Carroll car, Harold Iverson, 126 South Jackson street, Waukegan, and Joseph Yore Sr. of West Lake Forest, were only slightly hurt. Edward Von Hermann, 2231 East 67th street, and Miller Sweningsen, 125 West Laurel avenue, Lake Forest, the drivers of the other cars, also were slightly hurt.

Thomas Mangan, 26 years old, 2311 Flournoy street, was seriously injured yesterday morning when the stolen automobile he was driving north at a speed of 60 miles an hour in Long avenue crashed into a street car on Lake street. The auto was demolished.

The auto, owned by the Commonwealth Edison company, was taken a short time before the accident from a private garage at 5401 West Harrison street. Mangan was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where it was found his right leg and skull were fractured and that he had incurred internal injuries.

For three successive days Cook county has been without a fatal automobile accident, and the trafic toll since Jan. 1 remained yesterday at 311. Until 4 p. m. yesterday, 254 persons had been killed this year in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits, and 5,074 injured.

Nels G. H. Larson, 40 years old, 6545 North Ashland avenue, a lithography salesman, was killed early yesterday morning in Louisville, Ky., when he was struck by an automobile.

333,000 WOMEN SOUGHT TO WED NAZI FARMERS

Government Takes Role of Matchmaker.

BERLIN, May 5.—(AP)—Announcement that 333,000 women between the ages of 16 and 33 are needed on farms immediately to become mates to "healthy, virile hereditary" farmers was made today by Germany's Estate of Nutrition, matchmaker extraordinary.

The lack of women was caused years ago, when women deserted the farms because of the shortage of dwellings, the announcement said. This shortage now is rapidly being overcome by a government appropriation of 250,000,000 marks [about $100,000,000] for farm homes.

More Women than Men.

By ordering girls back to the soil instead of back to the kitchen, Nazi leaders are trying to assume the rôle of matchmakers for 3,000,000 unmarried women.

The movement is grounded in carefully computed statistics that there are 1,800,000 more women than men in Germany; that 3,000,000 of 33,500,000 females are single, and that there are only 862 women to 1,000 men in farming districts, compared with 999 women between 16 and 33 years to 1,000 men of these ages in the cities.

This disparity, statisticians say, accounts for the large number of unmarried women. They argue that by closing the gap and sending marriageable girls to places where the most unmarried men live Nazidom can better fulfill its aims for a bigger population.

Want Reserve for Farming.

And no Nazi leader will deny that the population policy of the third reich is one of its two or three major principles—the others being military equality and economic self-sufficiency.

The two year old back to the farm scheme also is motivated by a desire to train plenty of farm hands for times of emergency.

Authorized to do so by a labor law, officials are combing offices and factories in an intensified search for girls under 25 years who must serve one year on farms before they can be employed elsewhere. The farm terms begin in April and October.

Fireman Killed on Way to Answer False Alarm

Cleveland, O., May 5.—(AP)—A fire department lieutenant was killed and three other firemen and two pedestrians were injured today when a fire truck, answering a false alarm, was hit by a passenger car. Lieut. Leo A. Murphy, 41, was killed when he was knocked off the truck. His body, hurled through the air for 20 feet, struck a man and his son who were standing on the corner, injuring both of them.

CATHOLIC CLERGY DEFY NAZI; HIT YOUTH POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 5.—Nervousness similar to that which has gripped the Protestant church is slowly spreading in Catholic circles. This morning priests in almost all Catholic churches of Germany read a pastoral letter of Prussian bishops, warning against the dangers "of the rural year." Church organs were confiscated because they published it a few days ago. The bishops' letter expressed fear that city children will be estranged from their homes and churches during the periods they are compelled to spend in the country.

The home of a priest attached to St. Mathias' church in Berlin was raided by the GSP [secret police]. The priest said the police "naturally found nothing because there was nothing to find." The Catholics believe the raid was staged because the priest suggested erecting a memorial for Dr. Eric Klausener, head of the Catholic Action society, who was shot to death in his office during the Nazi blood purge last June.

SUCCUMBS IN PATROL WAGON.

Frank Rakowski, 47 years old, 541 North Ashland avenue, died yesterday while being carried in a patrol wagon from his home to the county hospital for treatment of heart disease.

Navy Goes to Church

With the United States Fleet, May 5.—[Special.]—Enacted aboard warships scattered across the Pacific ocean today were solemn scenes rarely observed by civilians. The navy went to church. Services, nonsectarian in nature, were conducted aboard each of the 153 ships engaged in the annual navy war games.

Call for church services aboard the ships is sounded at 10 a. m. and at that time the only flag ever placed above the Stars and Stripes is broken out and hoisted aloft. The church pennant is a red cross upon a field of white and during the time it flies all except vital duties are suspended.

For conduct of church services an altar is erected on deck and the seamen gather about for sermon and prayer. Church over, the altar is removed and the divine temple again becomes an instrument for warfare.

President's Party Returns After Cruise on Potomac

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the White House tonight shortly after 6 o'clock from an overnight cruise on the Potomac river aboard the yacht Sequoia. The presidential party motored directly to the White House after debarking at the navy yard.

RESCUE SLEEPERS IN $25,000 FIRE ON SHERIDAN RD.

Fire believed caused by spontaneous combustion in oil soaked rags left by painters broke out before noon yesterday in Kerman's dress shop, 4722 Sheridan road. Flames spread to a rooming house at the rear and drove a score of persons to the street.

A number of late Sunday morning sleepers, who were awakened by the smoke too late to gather up their clothing, fled to the roof when smoke made stairways impassable. They were assisted down ladders.

Suspect Firebug for Time.

Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan, who responded to the 4-11 alarm, estimated the damage at $25,000. Residents of the rooming house said an explosion accompanied the fire. Their report prompted suspicions of incendiarism, but when Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan learned that painters had been working all night redecorating the store, he concluded that the blaze started from their oil soaked rags. The explosion he attributed to a can of benzine, ignited by the flames.

The fire attracted thousands of spectators in the thickly populated neighborhood and the crowd hampered the firemen. Extra police were assigned to guard the fire lines. Trafic along the heavily traveled Sheridan road was tied up for more than an hour.

Mannequins Resemble Gargoyles.

Fireman John Stahl of engine company No. 4 incurred an injury to his arm when a beam fell on him. He was treated at the Lakeview hospital and returned to the scene with his arm in a sling.

Although the composition models in the window of the dress shop were not burned, the intense heat caused them to soften and melt and they assumed grotesque shapes with bizarre colored streaks.

Lay Corner Stone of Shaft for Two Lithuanian Flyers

The cornerstone of a monument to the memory of Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, the two Chicago Lithuanian flyers who were killed in a crash July 16, 1933, when they were only 400 miles short of their goal in their flight from New York to Lithuania, was laid yesterday in Marquette park, 67th street and California avenue. Hundreds of Chicagoans of Lithuanian descent gathered for the dedication ceremonies.

ROBBED 2 TIMES, WOMAN TRAILS DOWN SUSPECT

On April 1 Mrs. Mollie Spira, owner of a liquor store at 2849 Milwaukee avenue, was robbed of $25 and beverages valued at $50. She took a good look at the robber. He was the same man who had held up the store on March 23 and robbed her of $108 and champagne worth $43.

"I am never going to forget that man's face," she said.

Several times Mrs. Spira went to police showups, but failed to find the bandit. Early last evening, however, she passed a youth lounging at George and Albany avenues. He was the possessor of the unforgettable face.

Going to a nearby telephone, Mrs. Spira summoned the police. A few minutes later a squad headed by Sergt. Raymond Egan arrived and arrested the man at whom she pointed. He is Neal Rosenholm, 17 years old, 2838 Albany avenue. He was formally charged with the two holdups on Mrs. Spira's complaints.

1936 CAMPAIGN BEGINS RAPIDLY TO TAKE SHAPE

Shadow of Third Party Looms Over All.

New Deal Also Split.

If the Republicans are more or less at sea on candidates and issues the New Dealers are by no means united. Current events are causing the politicians to wonder whether Democracy's too, too solid south will melt, thaw and resolve itself into heterodoxy when voting day comes.

Gov. Talmadge of Georgia has branded the President an extreme radical, and proclaimed that the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt would be a national calamity. Senator Long on the other hand now spurns the President as a dangerous reactionary. The self styled Louisiana Kingfish continues to flirt with the formation of a third party in the 1936 contest which would be as much more radical than the Democrats as the Democrats are more radical than the Republicans.

The common expectation among politicians is that Long is preparing to enact the rôle in the Democratic party of the elder LaFollette in the Republican party. In that case Long will carry his "share the wealth" program into the Democratic national convention next year and, being defeated there, will lead a bost of radical Democrats into a third party.

Coughlin Steps Aside.

Father Coughlin has renounced any aspirations to the leadership of a third party. His object now is to popularize the tenets of his "National League for Social Justice" to such degree that they will be adopted by the Democratic party.

The chamber of commerce convention focused attention upon the issues of the 1936 election. The chamber took issue with the President's legislative program in a series of resolutions that were widely pronounced to be significant suggestions for planks in the Republican platform. The chamber opposed in important particular the administration bill extending the NRA, the old age annuities and unemployment insurance, the bill to destroy utility holding companies, the bill placing the federal reserve banks under political control, and called for modification of the AAA.

President Roosevelt did not conceal his irritation at the critical tenor of the speeches at the convention of the nation's representative business men and he sought to offset the political effect of the chamber's resolutions by summoning members of the business advisory council of the department of commerce and giving out concurrently their indorsement of his bill for extending the NRA and of his social security legislation.

Farley Counts Business Out.

Postmaster General Farley at the same time gave to the press his view that the President is relying upon the support, not of big business, but of the plain people for reelection next year.

The next day Mr. Roosevelt gave the chamber a parting shot with the assertion that the body had been cold to the human elements of the New Deal program and that in his experience business organizations invariably misrepresent the attitude of business men.

The first of the Republican regional meetings designed to crystalize the views of the opposition to the New Deal was held at Boston. The New England Republicans listened to indictments of the Democratic policies by Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Congressman Theodore Christianson of Minnesota, former governor of that state, but did not attempt to arrive at any conclusions.

REGIMENTATION POOR SECURITY APPROACH, HOOVER TELLS GROUP

San Francisco, Cal., May 5.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover declared here tonight that economic and social security could not be attained through regimentation of "the mental and spiritual health of our people."

"You may produce an efficient economic or governmental unit by a manufactured, regimented, imposed environment, but you will not produce a free individual, free to change his own environment," said Mr. Hoover. "In short, you will not produce an American.

"Our people are not ready to be turned into a national zoo, our citizens classified, labeled, and directed by a form of self-approved keepers."

Mr. Hoover was addressing the California Conference of Social Work, a gathering of leaders in various fields of sociological endeavor.

He said people must be taught to "cling to their family life, to their homes, to their individual self-respect, to their rights, their individual liberties."

Reiterating his belief in private social service and private charity, Mr. Hoover said if the government became the source of all major effort in that direction "then one of the most fundamental of inspirations to the spiritual growth of the family or individual will have been destroyed."

Heat Wave in Palestine Breaks; Even Camels Die

JERUSALEM, May 5.—(AP)—The heat wave in Palestine broke today after reaching a climax yesterday when even camels died because they could not stand the high temperature. The wave, which lasted about two weeks, necessitated the closing of schools and the cessation of building operations.

SUPREME COURT TO RULE ON RAIL AND FARM LAWS

Termed "Loosely Drawn" by Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Two disputed laws that were born of a session-end filibuster tonight awaited either the blessing of the Supreme court or consignment to that oblivion reserved for the statutes it declares unconstitutional.

They were the railroad pension act and the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act. The court generally was expected to rule upon them tomorrow, completing the strange coincidence which has kept them side by side from enactment to court test.

Both were permitted to pass by Democratic leaders on the last night of the last session, as the price exacted by a large group of independents who persistently filibustered necessary administration legislation until these measures went through.

Called Loosely Drawn.

President Roosevelt signed them, with some misgivings, on the same day. He issued a statement on each, terming the measures "loosely" and "crudely" drawn and suggesting that the present session of congress might desire to redraft them more carefully.

The railroad act, which affects a million employés, provided for retirement of all railway workers at the age of 65. The pensions were to be built up by contributions over a period, the employé giving a per centage of his wage and the employer contributing double that amount.

A large group of railroads disputed the act's constitutionality principally on the ground that the power of congress in this connection was limited to interstate commerce and that the act specifically applied to railroad employés engaged in intrastate commerce as well. Upon this basis lower courts declared it unconstitutional.

Aim to Save Farms.

The Frazier-Lemke bill, touching billions in farm indebtedness, was designed to prevent foreclosures upon farm property and give the farmer a chance to retain his land. It enabled him to go into court and obtain an injunction against foreclosure for a period of five years.

Meanwhile, he was to pay an annual rental fee to the holder of the mortgage. The value of the farm was to be re-appraised and the mortgage discharged by payment of the appraisal figure.

Lower courts have divided on the question of whether the act constitutes taking property without "due process of law."

Engineer Falls Dead While Getting Into Locomotive

Frank Bell, 49 years old, 6158 South Park way, a veteran engineer of the Illinois Central railroad, died last night while at work on a switch engine in the yards south of Roosevelt road. J. Fioratti, the fireman, said that when Bell was climbing onto the engine after lunch he fell backward. His head struck on the tracks and he was unconscious when picked up. Bell was pronounced dead at St. Luke's hospital. Death was attributed to heart disease, though it was considered possible that the fall caused it.

WOMEN TO MEET IN ALTON.

Bloomington, Ill., May 5.—(AP)—The state board of the Illinois Business and Professional Women's federation, meeting today after the close of the state convention here, accepted the invitation of Alton, Ill., for next year's convention.

EIGHT FOOT BOY EATS AT HOME AFTER AN ILLNESS

Alton, Ill., May 5.—(AP)—Robert Wadlow, 17 year old boy giant, stretched his 8 foot 1½ inch length in the family rocking chair today after eating a hearty home cooked meal. He announced it "felt fine" to be home again after a six weeks' tube-fed stay at a St. Louis hospital.

Back to his usual weight of 385 pounds—he lost and regained sixty pounds during his illness—Robert still was weak from a protracted siege of arthritis and an infected foot. He spent his first day at home "sitting up."

"He's overjoyed to be back at home," said his mother, Mrs. Harold Wadlow, who refused to go into details about her big son's meal.

Robert, a senior in high school here, had to be fed a liquid diet through the nose when his appetite vanished during his stay at the hospital. He consumes 4,000 to 6,000 calories a day, two or three times the amount of the average man. He expects to become a lawyer.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

ROOSEVELT HOLD ON CONGRESS TO FACE PRIME TEST

Vets' Bonus and NRA Bills Threaten Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is facing in congress a major test of his statesmanship and political resourcefulness.

Whether he will be able to stop the legislation for immediate cash payment of the veterans' bonus, which he has pronounced inimical to the financial stability of the government, depends upon the degree to which he can control the two-thirds Democratic membership of both houses for the next fortnight.

The senate expects to pass a bonus bill by the middle of this week. Then it will take up the NRA bill which has been reported by the finance committee in a form repugnant to the President. The committee bill would reduce the NRA to a mere shadow and give it only a ten months' further lease of life at that.

Then Comes "Security" Bill.

After disposition of the NRA bill the senate will take up the administration social security bill important features of which are under fire in the finance committee.

A vote is expected tomorrow on the Vinson bonus bill amended to appropriate 2 billion 263 million dollars to pay off the veterans immediately. This has been offered as a substitute for the Harrison compromise.

It is generally believed that the Vinson bill, backed by the American Legion, will prevail over the Harrison measure, although the latter was reported favorably by the finance committee as a substitute for the Patman "greenback" bonus bill, the house measure. Then will come the tug of war between the Vinson and Patman bills.

Again, it is expected, the Vinson bill will win. Only could the Patman bill prevail if enough of the administration senators swing to the greenback measure. They would do so, if at all, merely in the belief that a presidential veto of this inflationary measure could more easily be sustained than a veto of the Vinson bill.

Would Speed a Veto.

In the jockying over the bonus, this proposal to put the Patman bill through is being seriously considered. Since the house has already passed the Patman bill, if the senate accepts it, the measure could be hurried to the White House without going through the conference stage and the President given opportunity to exercise his veto power without delay.

If, on the other hand, the senate finally passes the Vinson bill, it will go to conference with the house. So close was the vote in the house as between the Vinson and Patman measures that it is believed the house would yield and permit final agreement on the Vinson bill, particularly if the vote by which the senate prefers the Vinson bill to the Patman is substantial.

The inflationists in the senate are prepared to make a last stand for the Patman bill, but their speeches will not, it is said, consume a great deal of time.

Court Takes NRA Stage.

The Supreme court has stolen the center of the stage so far as the NRA is concerned. It has concluded the hearing of arguments in the Schechter case, involving the constitutionality of the NRA law, and its opinion in the case is expected to be handed down before the court takes its summer recess the first week in June. If the court holds the law unconstitutional, the administration and congress will be faced with the need of evolving a new law to meet the court's objections, or the whole NRA system will go into the discard.

Nevertheless, the senate plans to go ahead now with the joint resolution to extend the life of the NRA until next April, with bans against price fixing under the codes of fair competition and against having the codes apply to business that is strictly intrastate. The house will wait upon the senate, and final action of any legislation is not expected until after the decision of the Supreme court in the Schechter case has been handed down.

CIRCUS EQUESTRIENNE HURT

Miss Violet Clement, rider for Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus, in American hospital yesterday with Nurse Bernice Meader after she was thrown by a horse at yesterday's performance in the Coliseum.

Dragged by Horse

Miss Violet Clement, 22 years old, of Sudbury, Ontario, Canada, a rodeo performer, was injured yesterday during a performance of the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus at the Coliseum. A horse threw her, dragged her around the ring, and stepped on her. At St. Luke's hospital it was found that her external injuries were not serious, but it could not be determined whether she was internally injured. Later she was taken to the American hospital where it was reported she was in no immediate danger of death.

WORKERS' POLL SOUGHT TO END TOLEDO STRIKE

Independents Petition for Return to Work.

BULLETIN.

Flint, Mich., May 5.—(AP)—Members of the American Federation of Labor local union at the Buick Motor Car company plant here voted tonight to delay any strike action until after a vote is conducted at the Toledo Chevrolet plant to accept or reject the management's proposal to end the strike there.

Toledo, O., May 5.—(AP)—Striking union workers of the Toledo Chevrolet plant proposed tonight a department of labor poll on acceptance or rejection of the management's proposal for ending the strike.

Edward McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, received the proposal from Francis J. Dillon, American Federation of Labor organizer for the automotive industry, declared it would be acceptable to the department, and left for Detroit to confer with William Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors.

Desire to Return.

An independent workers' organization, in a meeting last night, had suggested a poll and expressed their desire to return to work. The local strike threw 2,300 out of work and precipitated strikes and shutdowns affecting 33,000 in the industry.

The independent workers took petitions, which they said contained 1,400 names, to M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of Chevrolet, in Detroit. They asked a resumption of work or a secret ballot on the company's proposal.

The company's proposal is for a blanket five per cent wage increase, enforcement of seniority rules established by the auto labor board, conferences with employé representatives on company-employé questions, and no discrimination against any worker because of service on the executive shop committee.

Ask Plant Reopening.

Detroit, Mich., May 5.—(AP)—M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, announced tonight that a committee representing independent workers of the closed Chevrolet plant in Toledo presented a petition to him today asking reopening of the plant.

Coyle said he advised the committee the company management "would do everything possible" to meet the requests expressed in the petition.

GMC to Open Muncie Plant.

Muncie, Ind., May 5.—(AP)—General Motors corporation officials announced tonight the Muncie plant, recently reconditioned, will be opened Tuesday for manufacture of transmissions. The plant is expected to employ from 300 to 400 men.

Declare Strike Unlikely.

San Francisco, Cal., May 5.—(AP)—Despite scattered advance walkouts the threatened strike of 75,000 men in the Pacific coast lumber industry tomorrow was declared unlikely by a union leader today. Rumbles of labor unrest continued, however, as the "zero" hour approached.

Even as the nonstrike announcement was made by Abe W. Muir, union official, at a "key" conference in Longview, Wash., the International Longshoremen's association met at Portland to consider the question of whether to handle lumber cargoes from strike-affected mills.

MEXICO CITY, May 5.—(AP)—Frank Hawks, American speed flyer, hopped off at 1:51 p. m. (daylight saving time) today on a flight from Colon, Panama, to Los Angeles, after "the worst experience of my flying career."

After leaving Colon at 3:15 a. m. Hawks said he "ran into a severe storm and climbed 18,000 feet, but the motor froze and we were coming down rapidly in darkness through the storm without any idea of what was beneath. At 13,000 feet the motor began to pick up and by 10,000 feet it was running normally. The storm lasted two hours and I believe it cost me ten years of my life."

When Hawks reached the Mexican capital he had flown 6,175 miles in 30 hours 15 minutes since leaving Buenos Aires Friday. He is accompanied by a friend, Gage Irving. He planned to refuel at Nogales, Ariz.

GREECE DECREES DEATH SENTENCE FOR VENIZELOS

Four Rebel Leaders Get Same Punishment.

ATHENS, May 5.—(AP)—Two exiled Greek leaders, former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, who has long been known as the "grand old man of Greece," and Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, were sentenced to death today in absentia by a military court martial which is trying political leaders and others in connection with the recent revolt.

The public prosecutor declared Venizelos always sacrificed everything for his own glory and after furnishing funds and material for the last "criminal revolt" fled the country, leaving behind him thousands of victims and ruined families.

Son Gets 10 Years.

Two other alleged leaders of the uprising, Tzanakis and Condouros, also were sentenced to death and Venizelos' son, Kyriakos, was given ten years in prison and Gen. Gonnatas, president of the chamber of deputies, five years.

Four men were acquitted—former Premiers Papanastasiou and Cafandaris, Gen. Milonas, and M. Lambraski, a busines man.

Wife Expresses Incredulity.

PARIS, May 5.—(AP)—The wife of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos of Greece expressed incredulity today when informed her husband had been sentenced to death in Athens.

"April Fool's day is long past," she said. "Anyway, my husband and I have nothing to say."

SEIZE SONS IN FATHER'S DEATH.

Tylertown, Miss., May 5.—(AP)—Two Walthall county farm youths, Johnson and Dock Thomas, were held here tonight in connection with the slaying of their father, Russ Thomas, 60, shot to death last night during a family quarrel.

CIVIL WAR VET TAKES HIS FIRST AIRPLANE TRIP

J. M. Pennington, 92 years old, 7707 Euclid avenue, a civil war veteran, took an American Airlines plane trip to New York yesterday. It was his first air trip.

"It's my biggest thrill since the battle of Chancellorsville, just 72 years ago," said Pennington with a chuckle, before boarding the plane at Chicago airport. "When this trip is over I will have used practically every kind of transportation except the camel. That includes oxcarts, horses, trains, steamships, and automobiles. I wanted to make the cycle complete with a plane ride."

Accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Fredenhagen, with whom he lives, the veteran made the trip to visit his son, J. M. Jr., in Kingston, N. J. He served through the civil war with the First Delaware volunteer infantry.

Jealous Suitor Shoots Young Woman After Row

Miss Madelyn McCorkle, 19 years old, 1806 West Grand avenue, was shot in the left leg last night by her jealous sweetheart, Dennis Meade. The shooting took place in the home of Philip Mazzie, 1923 Emerson avenue, where Miss McCorkle had gone to visit the family. Meade, who followed her to the house, fled after the shooting. Police were unable to learn his address. At the County hospital Miss McCorkle said they had quarreled early in the evening when she refused to go out with him.

OUTLAW "TAX COLLECTORS" ERR; POLICE SAVE DAY

Hidden inside a bank book and tucked away in a bureau drawer early yesterday was $480 John L. Heinen, owner of a tavern at 2532 West 51st street, had set aside to pay his taxes. Thieves broke into his living quarters at the rear of the tavern while Heinen was busy, and carried away this dresser drawer and another.

Policemen William Benton and John Jarzyna were unable to trace the thieves in the darkness, but at dawn were cruising past an alley at 5027 South Rockwell street, when a litter of paper and clean clothing attracted their attention. It was the contents of the two drawers.

Carefully the policemen gathered up all the papers and brushed the clothing. Several yards away Policemen Benton found the bank book where the thieves had discarded it. And safely folded inside was the $480.

NEW CALIFORNIA RUSH FRIGHTENS STATE OFFICIALS

San Francisco, Cal., May 5.—(AP)—Despite a counter march started by the federal government, the surge of destitute transients into California had reached the point today at which state authorities sought further means to check them.

CAMPUS INQUIRY INTO REDS TO BE 'NO WHITEWASH'

Senators Plan Hearings Here by Saturday.

Members of the state senatorial committee which is to begin this week its investigation of radical propaganda and racial discrimination in tax exempted educational institutions, declared yesterday that there would be no "whitewash" of the University of Chicago, despite the fact that three of the five committee members are opposed to the inquiry. All five said they were prepared to consider all evidence on its merits.

The inquiry was authorized by a resolution introduced by Senator Charles W. Baker [Rep., Monroe Center]. Senator Richey V. Graham [Dem., Cicero], now chairman of the investigating committee, and Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston], a member, voted against Baker's resolution. Senator John W. Fribley [Dem., Pana], a member, joined Baker in advocacy of the measure, while the fifth member of the present committee, Senator W. H. Hickman [Dem., Paris], was absent during the vote. Hickman is known to be out of sympathy with the investigation.

Hearing Here This Week.

Nevertheless, the committeemen are resolved earnestly to carry out the senate's mandate. They are to meet tomorrow in Springfield to plan procedure. The first hearing in Chicago is expected to be on Friday or Saturday.

Senators Graham and Baker said that the committee would handle the investigation without outside aid, but Senator Barbour declared that he would insist that counsel be retained to handle the questioning of witnesses. Senator Graham announced also that he would insist that President Robert Maynard Hutchins and the trustees of the University of Chicago be questioned by the committee before evidence against the institution is presented.

It is believed, however, that Charles R. Walgreen will be the first witness formally to testify here. His withdrawal of his niece from the university because he believed she was "exposed to insidious radical propaganda" precipitated the inquiry.

Plans Thorough Procedure.

"This entire matter is too important to be handled by any individual," Senator Barbour said. "We wish to go into the matter from all sides. Now the literary and research work is being done in Monroe Center, but before we are through every one will get a hearing."

Senators Graham and Barbour declared specifically that although they opposed the investigation in the senate vote, they would not tolerate a "whitewash" by the committee.

"The evidence of propaganda on the University of Chicago campus," Senator Baker said, "has been pouring in from a number of agencies. I will drag the whole thing onto the floor of the senate if any attempt is made to gag me."

Senator Baker asserted that since his appointment to the committee a dozen patriotic organizations have turned their files over to him. They have produced documentary evidence of radical affiliations of college instructors. Among the sources of information, according to Senator Baker, are professors who are ready to give evidence against their radical associates.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 5.—(AP)—Peter Zmindak Jr., 22, butcher's helper, will go on trial in federal court probably May 13 on charges of planning an extortion scheme to include 150 prominent men and women. United States agents said he declared: "I did it and I'm going to take the rap."

He said he wanted to telephone to Miss Annie Burr Jennings, a Standard Oil heiress, one of those he threatened unless she paid him $12,500, so he could tell her, "I'm sorry."

His mother was on the verge of collapse after visiting him at the jail. Among the persons on his list were Judge Irving Lehman, a brother of the governor of New York; Irving Berlin, David Sarnoff, and William Fox.

Indian Tracker Discovers Gang's Hoods.

Gallup, N. M., May 5.—(AP)—A keen eyed Navajo Indian tracker read from signs on the desert's surface today a story substantiating those of two eastern labor defense volunteers. They had claimed they were abducted Thursday night by a band of hooded vigilantes, beaten and thrown out of a motor car.

Four black hoods, such as David Levinson and Robert Minor said their abductors wore, and other evidence of the easterners' night of terror in the wilderness were found by the pair, state police, and newspaper men of the Navajo reservation some thirty miles from Gallup.

Finds Traces in Sands.

"Men thrown from car here," said Bene Tohe, the Navajo tracker, reading from imprints on the desert sands.

It was at Bene Tohe's shanty that the men appeared Friday morning, asking for aid after assertedly spending the night wandering through a rainstorm.

Levinson, a Philadelphia attorney, and Minor, New York communistic writer, came here as representatives of the international labor defense to defend ten miners charged with murder as a result of the deaths of three men, including Sheriff M. R. Carmichael, in a riot April 4, growing out of the eviction of an unemployed miner.

Gov. Clyde M. Tingley promised an investigation of the asserted abduction would be pressed despite a heated declaration of C. P. McIntosh, assistant district attorney, that the incident was "framed."

Back Track Into Desert.

With State Policemen Earl Irish and Jack Dean, Levinson and Minor went today to the stone shanty where they said they sought shelter from the rain after being ejected from motor cars of the kidnapers.

Tohe showed the men their tracks, prints of rubber heels in the mud, and told them what they had done as they walked to the abandoned cabin. His keen eyes taking in the most minute detail of the three day old tracks, since swept by rain, Tohe back trailed to where the imprints of three sets of car wheels were found. Besides the hoods, made of dyed pillow cases, eyeglasses, money, bloodstained underwear the men said had been used as a blindfold, a partly burned hat and a piece of rope, also partly burned, were found.

Demands United States Guards.

New York, May 5.—(AP)—Earl Browder, secretary general of the communist party, following a telephone conversation with Robert Minor from Gallup, N. M., tonight sent telegrams to President Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings demanding that federal guards be provided Minor and David Levinson.

Browder quoted Minor as saying that Gov. Tingley late today withdrew armed guards assigned to the two.

BRITISH PRIEST DENIES COMMUNION TO WOMEN WITH RED TINTED LIPS

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—A warning that communion would not be given women with scarlet-tinted lips was voiced today by the Rev. Joseph Sunn, rector of Our Lady of Lourdes Roman Catholic church at New Southgate.

"It is questionable if it is not actually breaking the rules of the fast," he said. "It is impossible to smear so much cosmetic on the lips without swallowing some of it."

The priest asked a woman communicant to wash her lips before he administered the sacrament.

Live Near for 11 Years; Discover They're Sisters

Butte, Mont., May 5.—(AP)—Rose Montana Neal, 18, and Josephine Lee Neal, 16, who have lived within four blocks of each other in Butte for 11 years, learned today they are sisters. Their father, Edward Neal of Riverside, Cal., located the two when foster relatives in Butte, checking adoption papers, established the relationship.

LONE DOCTOR CHECKS FLU AT ARCTIC OUTPOST

POINT BARROW, Alaska, May 5.—(AP)—Hope for a "breathing period" in which to bury the dead was expressed today by Dr. Henry W. Griest, medical missionary, who for two weeks has waged a single handed battle against influenza in this far north outpost.

Dr. Griest set the probable death toll at fifteen. Ten persons already have succumbed to the epidemic and five others are not expected to live. Airplanes from the south, bringing needed serum, were watched for eagerly by the entire trading post community.

"We hope the crest of the epidemic has passed," said Dr. Griest. "There are only a few new cases."

The shortage of food, including eggs, milk, and dried fruits, and inadequate hospital facilities and the lack of coffins were the greatest troubles facing Dr. Griest, who has fought with his two nurses an epidemic which reached a total of 300 cases. Not enough lumber was on hand to build coffins, so a shed had to be torn down and the lumber used.

PRIZE TERRIER IS ALIBI FOR HOLDUP SUSPECT

Ernest Johnson, 27 years old, ex-convict, was grooming a champion wire haired fox terrier on the day he is suspected of taking part in the "wild west" robbery of a crack Illinois Central train near Kankakee recently.

This alibi was furnished yesterday by Mrs. Roessler, his employer, who owns kennels at 474 Ash street, Winnetka, when she appeared at the detective bureau where Johnson and two other men, suspected of participation in four spectocular robberies, were shown to crime victims. None was identified, but all three will be viewed today by members of the train crew and other witnesses to the robbery.

Photographs of Johnson and the others had been identified by witnesses in the four robberies, which led to their arrest by Morton Grove county highway police. The two other prisoners are George Bougadis, 20 years old, 118 North 16th avenue, Melrose Park, and Tony Trobbini, 25 years old, 1301 North 24th avenue, Melrose Park.

GIGANTIC FRENCH LINER SAILS ON 10 DAY TEST RUN

ST. NAZAIRE, France, May 5.—(AP)—The giant liner Normandie, France's candidate for Atlantic shipping supremacy, pushed her 79,000 tons out to sea today for ten days of every conceivable test known to marine engineers.

William Bertrand, minister of merchant marine, stood on the bridge with Capt. Rene Pugnet as the vessel nosed out to sea escorted by two destroyers. For two days the liner will cruise off the coast, then dock at Brest, from where the official trials will begin.

Its first voyage to New York has been set for May 29.

Girl, 18, Commits Suicide; Rebuked About Potatoes

Alton, Ill., May 5.—(AP)—After her sister rebuked her for criticizing the mashed potatoes at dinner today, Miss Della Marcella Carey, 18, walked to her room and returned to the kitchen a few minutes later and cried, "I have taken poison."

SLAYER GOES TO DEATH CHAIR WITH PRAYER ON LIPS

Pays Penalty for Killing His Sweetheart.

"Gentlemen, I pronounce Robert Allen Edwards dead."

The Rev. Mr. Hughes had walked from the death cell to the chair with Edwards.

The minister stood at the youth's side as the adjustments were made, praying silently, and he continued to do so until the contact was made.

Edwards ate his last dinner with relish and read from a few magazines for a time after his father had made his farewell visit.

Reads Old Family Bible.

Later, however, he began reading a Bible. It was an old family Bible and it was explained it was the same one given him by Margaret Crain last summer upon her first and only visit to Edwards after his arrest. The Bible had been in the cell in the Luzerne county jail until Edwards was taken to Rockview.

About 7:45 o'clock the Rev. Mr. Hughes and the Rev. Mr. Lauer went to the cell and Edwards prayed and listened to them reading the Bible until shortly after midnight, when he was told to prepare himself for the execution.

Edwards was seated on a cot as the guards came in. He rose slowly and fell into line, marching with them to the death cell door. Then he took the twenty steps from the door to the chair and was seated. The prison was in darkness during the execution. Lights go out at 9 o'clock.

No Demonstration by Convicts.

Warden Stanley C. Ashe said there was no demonstration among the 950 convicts in Rockview. He said there had been none since Edwards was brought to the prison yesterday.

After the witnesses slowly filed out Edwards' body was removed to a small room on one side of the death chamber for the autopsy.

The body will be claimed by his family and removed to Wilkes-Barre some time today for burial in a rural cemetery in Edwardsville, not far from the place where Freda McKechnie is buried.

After the execution the Rev. Mr. Hughes issued a statement on behalf of Edwards. He said that "Robert Allen Edwards died courageously because he knew that there is salvation and forgiveness" and that the young man had "asked that forgiveness of his Creator.

"Edwards' faith in God was unfaltering," he said.

Life Sentence Denied.

Last minute attempts to save "Bobby" from death were made in desperation by his mother, by his father, Daniel J. Edwards, graying paymaster for one of the big Pennsylvania collers, and by more than 775 persons who flooded the executive mansion at Harrisburg with letters and telegrams, urging the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

But Gov. Earle had refused to take the only alternative left him by law, that of granting a reprieve so a rehearing of its decision might be asked of the board of pardons and parole. In a formal statement, issued through Richard Heagy, chief clerk of his office, Gov. Earle had announced he would take no action in the matter.

Earle Wires Family.

Replying to the telegrams of the Edwards family, Gov. Earle dispatched a copy of his formal announcement, which read in part:

"I have most carefully weighed the last minute pleas of the parents of Robert Edwards and friends of the family, as well as other persons, and I have decided that I shall take no action. I have the most heartfelt sympathy for the parents of this boy, but I have been given no good reason to interfere with the course of justice."

Before the governor's decision was announced a noted physician and a Philadelphia insurance man revealed they planned to seek a reprieve for Edwards that he might be used in tests of an infantile paralysis serum developed by the physician, Dr. John A. Kolmer, professor of medicine at Temple university. The idea was abandoned, however, after word of the governor's decision came from Harrisburg.

From the high barred window of the death house the hopeless eyes of young Edwards had looked on the mists of Nittany mountain and watched them turn black in the darkness. Rain drummed on the windows and walls of Rockview prison, and it was of this that he had spoken with the "death watch" on his last night.

Eats Hearty Noon Meal.

At noon he consumed a hearty meal of pork steak, potatoes, green beans, bread, lettuce, and coffee. In the evening his appetite had lessened little.

According to prison officials, the father and son in their last hours together made no mention of the brutal murder of the boy's pretty sweetheart while they were swimming one warm June night last summer in Harvey's lake near Wilkes-Barre. They did not speak of Margaret Crain, music instructor in the Endicott High school, for whose love the young surveyor killed Freda.

But the father talked with his son about "things at home" in Edwardsville, where Mrs. Edwards and another son, Stuart, sent their telegrams of mercy to the governor. And in the end the gray haired Edwards turned with calm dry eyes to his son and said:

"Keep up your courage, boy." And the boy smiled, pressed his father's hand, and assured the older man:

"Don't worry, Dad, I will." There was a brief handshake—then—"So long."

[Uncle Dave] Clark, former banker and west side Republican leader, will celebrate his ninety-fifth birthday today with his family and friends in his home at 3125 Warren avenue. For more than 80 years Chicago has been Mr. Clark's home. TYDINGS' PLAN ASKS AUTOMATIC BUDGET BALANCE

Senate Will Be Given Resolution Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] has prepared for introduction in the senate tomorrow a joint resolution which would require the budget to be kept in balance at all times. Any appropriation outside the revenues anticipated in the budget submitted by the President would have to be met by new taxes.

Had such a law been in effect at the opening of this session of the 74th congress, President Roosevelt's 8½ billion dollar budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, with its 4½ billion dollar deficit, would have required the imposition of new taxes in the amount of 4½ billion dollars. That would have wrecked the 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief bill, which Senator Tydings opposed, for such taxes would horrify most congressmen.

Defeat of Plan Seen.

Senator Tydings' bill, therefore, is not expected to get anywhere in this session, which has established an all time high for spending bills introduced—more than 180 billion dollars. It is a canon of American statesmanship, particularly as exemplified by some of the old time southern Democrats, to be for all appropriations and against all taxes.

The Tydings resolution would close the holes in the budget and accounting act of 1921, under which congress may appropriate without restraint and without regard for the budget, or where the money is coming from, and it would provide for a single budget bill, covering all departments, commissions, and bureaus instead of the various departmental appropriation bills under the present system.

Calls for Itemized List.

The President would be required to transmit, at the beginning of each session, an itemized list of revenues to be received in the coming fiscal year. Accompanying the list would be a single budget allocating the revenues in detail to the various departments and agencies of the government. If congress desired to increase the amount allocated to any department, it would be required to take the appropriation from one or more other departments. No other legislation could be acted upon by both houses until the budget bill had been passed.

"In the event congress increases any of the allocations in the budget bill as submitted by the President," the resolution provides, "an amount equal to such increase shall be deducted from the allocation to some other government establishment; but in no event shall the total allocations or the total appropriations exceed the estimated revenues for the ensuing fiscal year plus the estimated amounts in the treasury at the close of the fiscal year in progress, available for expenditure in the ensuing fiscal year, unless congress shall provide for such excess:

"1. By new taxation, sufficient to liquidate such excess within the ensuing fiscal year, or

"2. By authorizing the secretary of the treasury to borrow sums sufficient to cover such excess, in which case the legislation authorizing such borrowing shall be accompanied by new taxation which will liquidate the amount borrowed within a period of not more than fifteen years."

NEW DEAL POURS OUT 3 BILLION IN DOLE IN 2 YEARS

North Contributes Share; South Puts Up Little.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The cost of relief for the unemployed and destitute in the United States since March 4, 1933, has passed the staggering sum of three billion dollars. This estimate was made tonight as a senate committee prepared to investigate the arbitrary fixing of state and federal relief quotas by the federal emergency relief administration.

The inquiry was launched by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who charged that the relief administration is doling out federal funds to bear the entire cost of relief in some states and at the same time is withholding the dole in other states on the stern demand that the latter bear a share of the cost.

Cite Illinois as Example.

Illinois has been cited as an example. Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has issued an ultimatum that Illinois must contribute $3,000,000 a month toward its relief costs or it will not receive a monthly allotment of $9,000,000 from the government.

In enforcing his edict, Hopkins has withheld federal funds from Illinois with the result that thousands of the state's unemployed and destitute are facing starvation. Hopkins insists no federal money will be given Illinois until the state legislature passes a tax bill to his quota.

On the other side of the picture are the southern states. These pay virtually nothing toward bearing the cost of their relief. In almost every southern state, the federal government contributes more than 95 per cent of the total relief cost.

Will Ask Hopkins to Explain.

The senate committee will summons Hopkins before one of its sessions and ask him to explain how he sets his quotas in the various states and how he can reconcile the fact that some states receive almost all their money from him while funds are being withheld from others.

The committee will base its inquiry upon a compilation of relief costs made for the years 1933 and 1934 by the relief administration, created under the New Deal. This compilation is shown in an accompanying table.

The survey gives the total cost of relief under the New Deal for the two years at $2,272,102,631. Of this, $1,549,935,555 has been borne by the federal government, $299,370,375 by the states and $422,796,701 locally.

Demand Figures for Four Months.

In the first four months of this year, it is estimated that about 800 million dollars has been spent throughout the country on relief to bring the total under this administration to above 3 billion dollars. The committee will demand a compilation of the first four months of this year similar to that for the years 1933 and 1934 from the administration.

The compilation gives the national average of federal relief at 68.2 per cent. The share borne by the government varies from 36.3 per cent in Delaware, to 98.5 per cent in New Mexico. Illinois gets 71.2 per cent of its relief funds from the government.

Most of the southern states, which pay very little into the federal treasury, get the biggest proportion of federal funds. This, according to reports, is due to the activities of southern politicians, who are firmly seated in the New Deal saddle.

Alabama Gets 96 Per Cent.

Alabama, represented by Senator John H. Bankhead, co-author of the cotton control act, gets 96 per cent. Arkansas, represented by Majority Leader Joseph Robinson, gets 96.2 per cent. Florida, whose representative is Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, chairman of the banking and currency committee, gets 97.7 per cent.

Georgia, whose governor periodically lambasts Hopkins and the New Deal, gets 95.4 per cent. Louisiana, home of the ranting Kingfish, Senator Huey P. Long, is in the select southern company at 97.9 per cent.

Mississippi, which gets 98.4 per cent, is represented, in part, by Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the important finance committee. North Carolina, one of whose senators, Joseph W. Bailey, chairmans the claims committee, gets 94.8 per cent.

South Carolina, whose Senator Ellison D. Smith heads the agriculture and forestry committee, gets 98.2 per cent. Tennessee, whose Kenneth McKellar chairmans the postoffices and post roads committee, gets 95.8 per cent.

Texas has the smallest proportion of any southern state at 71.5 per cent. Virginia's percentage is 85.

Several of the southwestern states approach the percentages of their eastern sisters.

Against these high percentages the states of the middle west and north and northwest, which pay most into the federal treasury, contribute their own funds in part to support the dole eaters.

A study of the table [in an adjoining column] according to Senator Couzens, will show that the greatest proportion of state and local contributions has been made by northern states.

own dependents. There are 312,000 families who are moving closer and closer to the hunger line.

"The health and well being of these citizens of Illinois are in jeopardy. Unless we are willing to witness wholesale suffering among large numbers of our people and to undermine the future health of our population through malnutrition, relief must be restored. This must occur, or Illinois will face unimaginable chaos, possibly social disorders, seriously affecting the daily lives of all of our citizens. Our fellow human beings must be served."

Bill on Second Reading Today.

The legislative program of the administration calls for an increase in the sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent and its application to public utilities, hitherto exempt. The bills have passed the senate with the emergency clause making them effective upon passage.

The sales tax increase bill will appear in the house this afternoon for second reading on amendments and will be advanced to final passage tomorrow. A week ago the administration mustered only 88 votes of the 102 required for passage with the emergency clause, and over the week-end sought to whip into line the needed additional votes.

Horner Spikes Fund Rumors.

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner today spiked rumors of the existence of state funds which might be used for relief purposes until such a time as the legislature votes an increase in the retailers' occupational [sales] tax. At the same time the governor accused State Representative Maurice O. Kalahar [Rep., Bloomington] of "capitalizing distress for political purposes."

The reports of various emergency funds and other monies that might be used for relief purposes have been used by opponents of the sales tax increase in explaining their votes against the measure last week, the governor indicated. In Chicago, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday answered rumors that it possessed a substantial bank balance with a financial statement showing that only $175,000 was held by the commission for May relief requirements, which have been estimated at $13,000,000.

Mark Ethell, chairman of the McLean county board of Supervisors, wired Gov. Horner today from Bloomington advising him that Representative Kalahar had told him that the state had funds available to bridge the gap in relief until the legislature meets on Tuesday.

Charges Politics.

In reply, Gov. Horner wired:

"The advice recited in your telegram to me is untrue, as your adviser [Rep. Kalahar] well knows. The suggestion is a subterfuge to excuse the legislator in question from his duty to his state, his constituency, and his county. If your board countenances his vote on pending bill it will be answerable to its own community. There is no justification whatsoever for capitalizing the distress of your communities for political purposes."

The McLean county board threatened to seek an injunction restraining the state from the collection of sales and gasoline taxes in the county unless the imaginary emergency funds were made available for relief purposes at once.

RELIEF STOPPAGE LEAVES STRIKERS FANNING THE AIR

Galesburg, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—Cessation of relief activities in Knox county, although presenting new problems to Miss Edna Killian, county relief commission director, put an abrupt end to threats of a strike by work relief employés. Employed six hours a day five days a week, the relief employés sought a 50 per cent increase in working hours and an increase in wages from 50 to 75 cents an hour. A few had already joined the strike and work activities were being halted temporarily by agitators when the complete shutdown of relief stations brought an unexpected end to the strike.

Mississippi's Sales Tax Costs Each Citizen $4.55

Jackson, Miss., May 5.—(AP)—Mississippi's two million people have contributed $4.55 each to the state treasury in the last three years in the form of a 2 per cent retail sales tax. E. R. Crenshaw, head of the sales tax division of the state tax commission, has figured that the average monthly payment per citizen is 15 cents.

I now wear my plate for 24 hours with absolute security and comfort. Fasteeth does not wash away or become thinned out, but 'STAYS PUT' until I am ready to remove plate. FASTEETH is tasteless. FARM OUTLOOK FOR MISSOURI NOW IMPROVING

Planting Plans Flexible; To Breed More Horses.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbia, Mo., May 5.—[Special.]—The 1935 outlook for farming in Missouri is considered extremely favorable. Farmers are ready to meet almost any emergency and change their planting plans overnight. They have a flexible cropping program which has been the outgrowth of producers being forced to meet adverse weather conditions during the last few years.

The number of horses is relatively small. Farmers are beginning to increase the production of horses. Several Illinois Percheron and Clydesdale stallions have been brought into Missouri recently. Mule production still is decreasing and is expected to do so for several years, until farmers are able to build up their horse breeding stock.

Farmers have fallen a little short in their oats planting plans and have less acres than they intended to sow. But if given a chance they will offset this by planting more corn where their hands are not tied by a corn-hog contract.

Soy Beans Offer Alternative.

If they fall short on oats and corn they will plant more soy beans. In some parts of the state farmers will turn to cow peas while others will plant grain sorghum. They have a long season in which to revamp their cropping program and meet grain and forage feed requirements, according to farmers' technical crop experts who are ready to advise on short notice.

Missouri farmers were a little late with oats sowing this spring, but the oats that were planted have made a fine start. Recently there has been plenty of moisture in the ground, the weather has been cool, and the oats crop is thriving. Last fall farmers in this state increased their winter wheat acreage about 25 per cent over 1933. This was due to their need for fall, winter, and spring pasture.

The increased acreage may not result in the harvesting of more wheat for grain. The winter wheat has been heavily pastured, giving the crop on many farms a severe setback. Some growers plan to harvest their wheat early for hay. The wheat has furnished excellent pasture for cattle, horses, hogs, and sheep in this state since last fall.

Nearly two million acres of winter wheat were seeded in Missouri last fall, the largest acreage planted in more than five years.

Corn Planting Is Late.

Corn planting is generally considered almost two weeks late in many sections of the state. Dust storms in some of the western counties and floods in a few southwestern counties have handicapped field work recently.

The corn acreage in Missouri is expected to be slightly above last year. Farmers plan to plant approximately five million acres, or from one to one and a half million acres less than averages of recent years. Farmers who are not coöperating on the federal government's corn-hog reduction plan are expected to increase their acreage if the weather is favorable for planting.

Taking the state as a whole there is plenty of moisture. Sunshine is needed to dry the fields and give farmers a chance to plant their crops.

Dealers in Missouri, as in Illinois, are unable to keep up with the demand for new farm implements in many sections. All winter farmers have been paying good prices for used farm implements sold at public auctions.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Sow Spring Alfalfa.

May 5, 1935.

SPRING seeding of alfalfa is being tried at THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm near Wheaton this year. Twenty acres of Grimm variety were sown with oats. The oats were sown broadcast in a well prepared seed bed and covered by a very light disking. The alfalfa was then seeded at the rate of 20 pounds per acre and the ground rolled with a heavy roller.

Gardeners at the Wheaton farm made their second plantings of peas, onions, radishes, lettuce, parsley, beets, and endive last week. All the first plantings of vegetables are now showing well in the rows, but growth has been slow recently because of the cold weather. Apparently no real damage has been done by the cold.

The potato ground was prepared for planting last week and 100 pounds of seed potatoes are ready to plant as soon as the ground is dry enough to work. Potatoes the size of an egg and smaller will be planted whole. The larger ones have been split in half. There are no real large potatoes in the lot. Red River Ohio is the variety being used.

Sweet peas, started in the green house at the Wheaton farm, have been set outside in the flower garden. They were planted six inches apart in rows and will be supported by strings or wires when they start vining heavily. The ground was given an application of bone meal before the sweet peas were planted.

Several popular varieties of dahlias, including Amelia Earhart, Palo Alto, Mammoth Champion, Kathleen Norris, Jerome Kern, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, are being started, some from cuttings and the others from tubers. The cuttings are now in the cold frames. The tubers have been divided and will be planted out this week in ground recently fertilized with well rotted cow manure and bone meal.

Several hundred elm and catalpa shade trees, set last fall and early this spring along the "avenue," were mulched with strawy manure last week. The soil was tamped firmly about the roots and the holes filled in with fresh dirt before the mulch was applied. Most of the trees were fairly large when transplanted.

Seeds from four different strains of tobacco, two from Wisconsin and two from Kentucky, have been sown in hotbeds at the Wheaton farm. Tobacco beds will be burned and additional seed sown in the usual manner this week, but the hotbeds are being used as a precaution against injury to the seed sown outside. The tobacco is to be grown as an exhibition crop in the test plots this year.

TEMPLE ANSHE EMET TO PUT UP $125,000 BUILDING

Rabbi Solomon Goldman announced yesterday that the congregation of Temple Anshe Emet, 3760 Pine Grove avenue, will soon begin the construction of a community building at a cost of $125,000, of which 60 per cent has been paid in.

The new building, Rabbi Goldman explained, will put into use all of the Anshe Emet property. The congregation's present community building adjacent to the synagogue on the south will be torn down. The immediate need of the new building is due to the growth of the synagogue school. The old community building has facilities for only 150 pupils, and there are 626 pupils on the waiting list. The new building will provide for 1,000 pupils.

In addition to the school a "junior synagogue" of 900 members has been developed which, Rabbi Goldman said, would be able to house its activities in the new building.

FASTER PLANE SEEKING NEW SPEED RECORDS

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—New record seeking speed tests by the "mystery" plane which spanned the continent in 11 hours 5 minutes and 45 seconds were announced today by the National Aeronautical association.

In the new flights that ship, which set the transcontinental record for transport planes last week while controlled largely by a robot pilot and radio direction beam, again will be flown by D. W. [Tommy] Tomlinson, assistant to the president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

The speed records, eight in number, will be sought over a triangular course between New York, Washington, and Norfolk, Va. The plane will seek new figures over the 1,000 kilometer course carrying pay loads of 2,200 pounds for a distance of 3,100 miles and pay loads of 4,400 pounds for a distance of 1,200 miles.

JACKIE COOGAN TELLS STORY OF FATAL ACCIDENT

Glendale, Cal., May 5.—[Special.]—Suffering only from a cracked rib, Jackie Coogan today told details of the automobile crash yesterday which cost the lives of his father, his best friend and two other men.

The young film actor was brought here by ambulance from San Diego and taken to a hospital.

"I'm the luckiest man in the world," he said.

Jackie believes had he not twice changed his place in the car, just before the crash, he would have met the same fate as the others, Jack Coogan Sr.; Trent [Junior] Durkin, 19, film player; Robert Horner, 25, actor-playwright, and Charles Jones, 24, Coogan ranch foreman.

"Jones and I changed to the rumble seat," Jackie said. "An old head injury had impaired the hearing in my right ear, so I changed positions with Jones to hear him better.

"Suddenly we reached a turn and a coupe with two women in it loomed ahead of us, going in the opposite direction on the wrong side of the road. Dad swerved and our car slid onto the soft shoulder, skidding about 75 feet through four guard rail posts. I dropped to the floor of the rumble.

"The car smashed into a big boulder, the rear end went up in the air, and the car spun around like a top. It fell over the embankment and rolled 10 feet to the bottom. I crawled out. Dad and Junior still were alive and I carried them up to the road."

INJURED FRENCH PREMIER TO TAKE 'COMPLETE REST'

PARIS, May 5.—(AP)—Physicians ordered a "complete rest" today for Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who fractured his left arm in an automobile collision yesterday.

A bulletin issued at a private hospital where the premier is attended by his brother, Dr. Charles Flandin, described his general condition as "very good," but he probably will have to remain in the hospital and miss a cabinet meeting Tuesday. Flandin arrived in Paris by special train from Auxerre, where the accident occurred.

Smiling, he strolled through a small crowd at the station and climbed into an automobile for the ride to the clinic. With him was Mme. Flandin, who appeared in perfect health despite the bruises she received in the collision.

GENE SARAZEN, championship golfer, who has smoked Camels for years

The mild cigarette the athletes smoke is the mild cigarette for YOU!

A cigarette so mild you can smoke all you want—that's what athletes say about Camels. And when a champion talks about "condition"—"wind"—healthy nerves—real tobacco mildness—he's got to know.

Gene Sarazen says: "Playing as much as I do—I have to keep in condition. I smoke Camels steadily. They are so mild they never get my 'wind'—never upset my nerves."

Other athletes back him up...."I smoke all the Camels I want, and keep in top condition," says Mel Ott, slugger of the New York Giants....Georgia Coleman, Olympic diver, says: "Camels don't cut down on my 'wind.'"...Bill Miller, oarsman; Jim Lancaster, N. Y. U.'s 1934 basketball captain; John Skillman, pro squash racquets champion—hundreds of sports stars smoke Camels regularly and report that Camels never get their "wind" or nerves.

What this mildness means to you!...It means you can smoke Camels all you want! Athletes have made this discovery: Camel's costlier tobaccos are so mild, they can smoke all they please, without disturbing their "wind" or nerves.

HEALTHY NERVES, "WIND," ENERGY—Condition is important to you—on vacation, in the office, at home. You can keep "in condition," yet smoke all you please. Athletes say: "Camels never get your wind."

PHILIPPINES SEE THREAT OF NEW REBEL UPRISING

Claim Extremists Mass 30 Miles from Manila.

MANILA, P. I., May 5.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Recurring rumors that the Sakdalista rebels were planning further attacks were circulated today as several hundred of the extremists reputedly were mobilizing in the hills within 30 miles of Manila.

Although Acting Governor General Joseph R. Hayden issued a statement saying there was "no likelihood of further disorder," the Philippine constabulary remained alert. Even in Manila, which had 8,000 well equipped United States soldiers available for any emergency, the police carried rifles. Undersecretary of the Interior Leon Guinto, who investigated the Sakdalista mobilization rumors, expressed the opinion that they would disperse shortly. In last week's uprising 60 persons, mostly extremists, were slain.

Seize 250 Persons.

The government announced 250 persons, including two members of the insular legislature, had been arrested as the result of the bloody outbreak. Hayden said extra judges were being assigned to the disaffected areas in Bulacan and Laguna provinces. Interior Secretary Teofilo Sison disclosed that the outlawing of the Sakdalista party was being considered.

Undersecretary Guinto said the constabulary had confiscated copies of the propaganda sheet entited "Free the Filipinos," circulated allegedly from Tokio by Benigno Ramos, absentee head of the Sakdalistas.

The Sakdalistas, opposed to the commonwealth form of government expected to be set up after the forthcoming plebiscite to be held May 14, seized several towns in their recent uprising, and demanded "immediate independence" for the Philippines.

Asks Protection of Japan.

TOKIO, May 5.—(AP)—Benigno Ramos, who says he is the leader of the Philippine Sakdalista party, asked for special police protection today, asserting he was in danger of assassination or personal injury at the hands of Filipino political enemies.

Commenting on Manila suggestions that Ramos' extradition might be sought because of the current uprising there, authoritative quarters expressed the opinion this was unlikely since Ramos could contend he is merely a political exile and not guilty of any criminal offense.

Lenin's Doctor Leaves His Possessions to Red Army

MOSCOW, May 5.—(AP)—Prof. Vassily Kramer, physician who treated Nikolai Lenin, left his entire possessions to the government with the request that they be sold and used for the country's military defense. They consisted of a microscope, a few books and pictures, and a box containing the jewelry of his late wife. Kramer died two weeks ago.

GAMBLING LID ON; LAUNCH DRIVE ON VICE RESORTS

With the gambling lid on, a new campaign is to be started today by the police department under Supervising Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the uniformed division, to clamp down on vice resorts. One purpose of the campaign, according to unofficial police department reports, is to force some of the racketeers or underworld characters to reveal the assassins who tried to shoot State's Attorney Courtney to death.

The active campaign against the underworld is in direct charge of Lieut. Frank Johnson, right hand man of Capt. Gilbert. Johnson has been relieved of all other duties to hunt for the men, who on March 24 tried to kill Prosecutor Courtney while he was on his way home with Ald. Harry E. Perry [18th]. The attempted assassination occurred at 70th street and Normal boulevard when a car pulled abreast of the prosecutor's automobile.

Prosecutor Courtney, since the shooting, has had an extra police guard. In addition to his own bodyguard he is now trailed by a second police car wherever he goes. The prosecutor, according to reports, has, since the attempted murder, guarded his movements more carefully and has curtailed his public appearances.

IDENTIFY SLAIN ROBBER; TWO OF HIS PALS CAUGHT

The colored robber gang member who was shot and killed early yesterday by Sergt. Florian Smuczynski was identified later as Seymore Mackey, 18 years old, 4858 Champlain avenue. Two of Mackey's companions, John Rowland, 28 years old, 4915 Champlain avenue, and John Clayton, 19 years old, 4840 St. Lawrence avenue, were captured by the police. The fourth member of the gang is sought.

In response to a radio broadcast Sergt. Smuczynski and three other policemen in a detective bureau car pursued the robbers, who were fleeing after holding up Mr. and Mrs. William Hansen, 3237 Archer avenue, as they were putting their car in their garage.

At Garfield boulevard and Halsted street the robbers' car crashed into a post and Mackey was shot when he attempted to flee on foot. Rowland was captured at the time and Clayton shortly afterwards when he was found hiding under a porch at 54th street and Union avenue.

MOSCOW THEATER MAN IS FIRED FOR FAVORING ENVOYS

MOSCOW, May 5.—(AP)—The business manager of the Meyerhold theater and his assistant were discharged today for depriving 200 Soviet ticket holders of seats at an April 8 performance to make room for the diplomatic corps.

Pravda, communist party organ, declared that Soviet dignity had been offended and that foreigners should be treated with courtesy, but not to the extent of humiliating Russian citizens.

The business manager was barred from employment in other showhouses.

BALTIC CHIEFS TO SEEK UNITY OF FOREIGN POLICY

Will Discuss Soviet Offer of Mutual Aid Pact.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, May 5.—Foreign ministers of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania will meet for the second time at Kaunas tomorrow to continue their effort to unite the foreign policies of the Baltic entente and to discuss Russia's invitation to join the Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact.

Also they will discuss sending an invitation to Richard J. Sandler, Swedish minister of foreign affairs, to visit their capitals this summer. Foreign ministers of Lithuania and Estonia expect to visit Stockholm shortly, seeking support for their entente.

Claims Progress by Entente.

Karl Ulmanis, Latvian premier, who will be fêted May 15 when Latvia celebrates the first year of his dictatorship, declared today that coöperation of the Baltic states on the basis of their treaty last September has been making excellent progress thus far.

"The Baltic union holds the key position on the eastern shore of the Baltic and lies within the interests of the three great political factors of northeastern Europe, Russia, Poland, and Germany," he explained. "In the interest of general peace, our union should continue to maintain fully an impartial and independent position."

The premier added that the soviet government always has shown great interest in including the Baltic states in schemes for the security of northeastern Europe, since these countries with Poland form an essential buffer between Russia and Germany.

Report Nazi Offer to Finns.

MOSCOW, May 5.—(AP)—Reports that Germany has offered Finland a military and naval alliance in the case of war with Soviet Russia was published tonight by Tass, soviet news agency, under a Geneva date line. The Tass dispatch said the offer would be made shortly when a Finnish minister visits Berlin.

Turkish Police Foil Plot to Overthrow Republic

ANKARA, Turkey, May 5.—(AP)—A revolutionary plot designed under the cover of religion to overthrow Turkey's republican régime and kill Kemalist leaders was discovered today by authorities at Sparta, in southern Asia Minor. The organization was headed by Kurd Sheikh Uzzeman Saidi, who had been deported for participation in a revolt in 1929. Police said 23 conspirators were arrested. Documents and seditious pamphlets were seized.

Police Swing Batons to Disperse 2,000 Foes.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 5.—(AP)—The government hailed tonight a triumph in the parliamentary elections, in which supporters of the existing régime claimed they obtained 80 per cent of the vote throughout the country.

While official figures were still unavailable to support this contention, police swung rubber batons with vigor to disperse 2,000 anti-government demonstrators who had gathered to celebrate what they believed was a victory for their forces.

The united opposition to Premier Bogoljub Yevtich, however, apparently did sweep aside government candidates in Dalmatia and Croatia.

Believe Danger Past.

Sources close to the government denied that trouble was anticipated in Croatia, from which foreign correspondents were expelled. There was no comment on the expulsion order.

Many skulls were bruised in the anti-government demonstration, but apparently no one was seriously hurt.

The government claimed 29,500 votes in Belgrade to the opposition's 9,000, while at Sarajevo the count was given as 7,000 for the government and 4,000 for the opposition.

Since the secret ballot is unknown in Jugo-Slavia, voters had to declare their names and choices "in a voice audible to the whole electoral committee."

Arrest Foes in Croatia.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

ZAGREB, Jugo-Slavia, May 5.—The government arrested hundreds of youthful opponents tonight in connection with today's parliamentary election and ordered all foreign newspaper men to get out of Croatia.

The action was taken apparently because of fear of trouble tomorrow. There were reports opposition demonstrations were planned in celebration of what their spokesman called an overwhelming victory today.

The many arrests were said to be precautionary measure following upon a heated election campaign.

The Associated Press correspondent received his invitation to depart after a day long motor tour through a large part of Croatia in search of election terrorism, but despite allegations of opposition spokesmen none was found until police went into action.

The Lika region, where the correspondent had seen real terrorism two years ago, certainly did not appear to be terrorized today. In 1933 people scarcely dared whisper the name of Vladko Matchek, opposition leader, but today they lined the streets and highways shouting "Long live Matchek."

WARNS DICTATOR RULE IN BULGARIA STIRS CIVIL WAR

Parliamentary Rule Is Urged by Leader.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 5.—(AP)—Former Premier Alexander Tzankoff said today the Bulgarian people were on "the verge of mutiny" and if the government attempted to adopt a ready made constitution without the people's approval it would shake the foundation of the monarchy.

Dr. Tzankoff, whose recent imprisonment caused the downfall of the last government, is expected to head the next cabinet and is regarded as one of Bulgaria's ablest statesmen.

Commendation for King.

Discussing King Boris' recent assumption of dictatorial powers by which he eliminated military domination of the government, Tzankoff said his action was "very commendable, but it must be borne in mind that the people's patience has been sorely tried by their being ignored."

"Parliamentary government, which is the product of centuries of effort, must not be allowed to pass away," he said. "We must not try to imitate Hitler and Mussolini."

Tzankoff asserted that although the army's patriotism cannot be questioned, officers must return to the barracks and cease meddling in politics.

Claims King Is Secure.

The position of King Boris, he continued, is in no danger since Republicans in the army number less than one per cent and there is none among the people.

"Our king is wise, diplomatic, patient and tactful," he said. "It is unfortunate that his fate is to be on the throne in such a critical time. He wants to govern Bulgaria in the English fashion, but has learned, of course, that Bulgarians are not English."

ROSEMARY AMES PLANS TO REJOIN HUSBAND HERE

Hollywood, Cal., May 5.—[Special.]—Having completed her contract with the filming of "Our Little Girl" with Shirley Temple last week, Rosemary Ames, Chicago society actress, is leaving Hollywood Tuesday. She will join her new husband, Abner J. Stilwell, a banker, there. Miss Ames said she "probably would come back to Hollywood," but meanwhile "wouldn't mind a play in the east."

She added, "Now that I have a good husband, I think it's proper to be the good wife for a while." Miss Ames has given up her home in Brentwood, near Hollywood. She suggested she would avoid contracts with movies in the future, but would like to make an occasional picture.

POWER BEHIND THE WHEELS OF DETROIT

TODAY Detroit leads the nation—in capacity of industrial activity—in percentage of gain in bank clearings—and in factory employment.

There has not been such activity in Detroit since 1930. The wheels are humming as they keep the wheels of the nation moving back to better business! Automobile production has gained consistently each week of 1935. Retail business is ahead of 1934.

Detroiters today have money to spend—and are spending it NOW! Their homes present a rich and willing market for products properly presented.

Because it reaches the homes of Detroit—where the power behind the wheels resides—advertisers who know this FOURTH GREAT AMERICAN MARKET use The Detroit News.

The Detroit News leads all American newspapers in total linage GAIN in 1934 over 1933 and in March, 1935, was second in advertising in America.

Its circulation is so distributed that the better the district, the better The Detroit News covers it. News circulation is highest where income is greatest.

In the Detroit Trading Area illustrated above, where 47% of the people live and 60% of its wealth is located, News circulation is highest where income is greatest. GIRLS ROUT COPS BY FACE POWDER CHARGE AT POLLS

'Elect' Chief as 'Hatbox' Member of Council.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 5.—Defending their hatbox "ballot urns" by throwing powder in the faces of the police, French suffragettes today triumphantly "elected" their chief, Mlle. Louise Weiss, as municipal councilor for the precinct of Montmartre.

Lively rioting between the police and suffragettes occurred when authorities tried to make the women move their slotted hatboxes from the doorsteps of the polling places where the males of the third republic were casting official votes as a part of the nation-wide municipal elections.

Powder Puff Charge.

On a signal from the leaders, women pulled boxes of face powder out of their handbags and emptied them squarely in the faces of the gendarmes. The latter, blinded and choking from the powder barrage, finally picked Mlle. Weiss and two of her aids up bodily and carried them to a nearby police station.

Thereupon the remaining suffragette leaders rallied hundreds of midinettes living in the district to aid the imprisoned candidate and her friends.

Not only powder but more substantial ammunition as well as teeth and finger nails were used on the cops. Mlle. Weiss and two lieutenants were released, and the girls were given back their ballot boxes on condition that they would not obstruct the polling booths.

Flandin's Forces Win.

PARIS, May 5.—(AP)—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin led his cabinet to victory today in the campaign to retain municipal posts in the elections, results of which indicated little change in the political complexion of France. Flandin was reëlected mayor of his home town of D'Amecy-sur-Cure by a vote of 98 to 11.

Jean Chiappe, once Paris chief of police, started his comeback successfully by winning a seat in the municipal council. Chiappe, storm center of the political battle that preceded the riots of Feb. 6, 1934, further has proclaimed his candidacy for president of the council, which would make him a sort of mayor of Paris.

MEETS CHILDREN OF EXILED SON

Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, aged mother of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, met his children for the first time when they came to Philadelphia from Germany with Bergdoll's wife to seek clemency for the exiled draft dodger. Appeal to Roosevelt

Philadelphia, Pa., May 5.—(AP)—The wife of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll today wrote a letter to President Roosevelt requesting an interview.

Mrs. Bergdoll, who came here from Germany last week, hopes the President will grant a pardon to her husband, world war draft dodger.

Bergdoll's mother, Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, said she had nothing to do with the letter.

"I know what I would have done long ago," the 75 year old widow stated. "I would have come back and faced the music. But I hope his wife succeeds. I should like to see my son again."

TOLL 400 AS STORM IN BRAZIL GOES ON FOR SIXTH DAY

BAHIA, Brazil, May 5.—(AP)—Drenching rains and powerful winds wrought their sixth straight day of havoc today in Bahia and the interior. Fatalities, unofficially placed at 400, appeared to be mounting. Although there was a lull for a few hours last night, the storm was renewed with full fury this morning.

No official figures on the number of dead and injured were available, but authorities believed they were growing. Hundreds of injured and homeless streamed to charity institutions and army headquarters.

Authoritative estimates placed the number of homeless in Bahia at 2,000, as compared with last night's 1,000. The state constituent assembly voted an urgent appeal to the governor of the province for relief, not only in this city, Brazil's third largest, but in the interior as well. The extent of damage in the interior was unknown because of broken communication lines.

New Quake Hits Formosa; 19 Hurt; Houses Collapse

TOKIO, May 5.—(AP)—A dispatch to the newspaper Nichi Nichi from Taihoku, Formosa, said at least 19 persons were injured and several houses collapsed today during the severe earthquake in the southern Shinchiku province. The same district was shaken disastrously April 21.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

EVEN THE BLIND CAN NOW SEE.

Navigation on the Lakes to Gulf waterway has been open for a matter of three weeks, yet in that short period we have witnessed the development of two new trades in water transportation. Barges of lumber have arrived to enable Missouri oak flooring to compete with other species in the Chicago market, while whisky is being loaded at Peoria distilleries for all water transit to New York and other points on the Atlantic seaboard.

This waterway was shown to be available for public use in the spring of 1932 when a cargo of newsprint paper was moved from Chicago to Peoria under the auspices of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Certain movements of steel followed this inaugural shipment and before the end of the season grain from Illinois points was moving in the reverse direction.

Last year witnessed the more intensive use of the river by oil as well as building material companies. Contract service was made available and elevators commenced to spring up here and there to offer service to Illinois grain. While the tonnage doubled, the movements were largely localized in the section between Chicago and St. Louis. The year 1935, however, has commenced to reveal the national use of this waterway that will eventually develop.

The principal enemy of transportation on the Lakes to Gulf waterway is the Doubting Thomas who is unable to see the commercial use of the facility because fleets of barges did not appear as soon as the last lock was completed. Such a canal is like a railway without stations, freight sheds, team tracks, or car equipment. The business does not appear until the necessary docks, elevators, cranes, and warehouses have been established by forward looking firms that have the courage to back their belief in the economies of water transportation with fixed investment in terminal facilities.

The effect is reciprocal. Improved equipment makes feasible the water carriage of additional trafic, which in turn encourages the construction of still more specialized and efficient handling apparatus to meet the growing volume of commerce. Three years ago it required vision to foresee the evolution of our waterway trafic, but in the light of current developments even the most skeptical must admit that the Lakes to Gulf waterway is commencing to fulfill the declarations of its proponents.

ITALY IN THE GOLDEN GLOVES.

The Italian Golden Gloves boxers are on their way to Chicago for the international bouts of May 22. Eight confident young Italians, selected from the glove pushers of a country which has taken enthusiastically to the ring sport and has produced more than its share of good boxers, will soon be brought here to complete their training and enjoy a cordial hospitality.

This is the fifth team from Europe to meet the midwest boxers who sport the colors of Chicago in the intercity and then in the international tournaments. French, German, Irish, and Polish teams have preceded the Italians. The Germans won an even break, and the other teams, although making each a fine showing for skill and stout-heartedness, were defeated.

The record of the Chicago Golden Glovers who have been encouraged by their success as amateurs to turn professionals is proof in itself of how tough the going is in the ring of these international bouts. If the boys from abroad don't win they and their supporters need not feel that any possible discredit attaches to the failure. A boy must be very good indeed to come out on top in any one of these three round affairs. The best of amateur boxers steps into the ring and no telling in a year or two he may be the best of the professionals in his class.

These Italian boys may turn the trick. It is almost a certainty that sooner or later, if the international contests continue, a team from abroad will go back with the bacon. With the bacon they'll also take a great deal of good will.

Each time the visitors come under a slight sentimental handicap. They seem to carry too much of the national stake in their gloves. If report be true, these Italian boys have been impressed by the imperiousness of Il Duce in the matter. No doubt Mussolini would be gratified if each Italian boxer returned home with an American scalp tucked under his championship belt. The ruler of Italy likes these sentimental decorations and very properly regards them as inspirations for a people whom he constantly endeavors to keep hero conscious.

The Chicago boxers won't have much of this intensity of feeling, being pretty well assured that President Roosevelt will not lose a wink of sleep if they eat nothing but lether for a week, nor will Vice President Garner, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Mayor Kelly, or any other notable in the land. Carrying the torch for the nation may be an inspiration in the battle, but it is a bit too heavy a load to carry in defeat. If the Italian boys win, well and good, but if they lose let it be suggested that after all the bouts brought together sixteen willing fellows whose object was to do the best they could. No national eclipse comes with defeat.

THE KING'S JUBILEE.

George V. and his subjects throughout the world enter upon the jubilee celebration of his twenty-five years on the throne of Great Britain. This quarter century has been a wild time for the monarchical institution in Europe. War and revolution have taken heads and chopped up thrones. When George V. succeeded Edward VII. monarchy was an apparently stable institution everywhere it existed. The kaiser was the all highest in Germany. Francis Joseph was holding together the turbulent elements of the dual empire. The czar, although approached by premonitions of democracy, was absolute and all powerful. Church and monarchy were firm in Spain. Italy was without any apparent forewarning of violent change, and the world seemed tranquil in its governmental forms.

Lenin was a Russian exile in Siberia, or flitting about Europe in the small rooms and shadowy circles of futile revolutionary intrigue. Mussolini was an obscure Socialist. Hitler was in some out of the way corner and in his own expectation fated to remain there.

Of the principal monarchies the British alone remains, that being attributable in part to the English temperament and in part to the personality of the head of the present royal family, another way of saying that if a people want a king, and the English do, George is the kind of a king to have. He and his family, in a stratified society, the powerful influences of caste still remaining, are the symbolic head of the order and a titular sovereignty and, nevertheless, are thoroughly representative of middle class habits and ideas.

If different developments had cost Britain its monarchy and the king his place, it is conceivable that he and his family would naturally have become representative of the stability and respectability of English well-to-do life, old fashioned, no doubt, exemplars of the common virtues and the common way of living. The monarchy in Great Britain is unquestionably used as a bulwark of present institutions against radical suggestion and revolutionary change. The temperament of the man takes all austerity from these formal proceedings, as is illustrated by his Christmas day broadcast, which projects the domestic rather than the regal scene.

Edward VII. was directly interested more in affairs of state than George V. allows himself to be, in appearance at least. When Edward died he was given the phrase the peacemaker as his epitaph. Later opinion has modified this judgment. It is an open question if Edward did not aggravate more than compose the animosities which culminated in the world war.

Some English writers now note the spread of a truer democracy in England and, with cause or not, affirm that the caste system is breaking down. As illustration they say that, whereas in a former generation there was no reason for not referring bluntly to the lower classes, the phrase is now in disuse and at the other end of the pyramid it is seldom that one will so far forget as to consciously place himself in the upper classes. Whatever social changes have been mixed in the political developments of Great Britain, none has openly and vitally touched the place of the king.

The occasional snarl which comes from the Labor benches arouses only indignation, and the state of the king's health is still a primary national concern. Such devotion to an institution, peaceably discarded in part of the world and violently destroyed elsewhere, can be attributed, as before said, to the judicious course of British royalty in modern days and to the continuity of the institution in British history. It is so woven into the web of all that has happened on the island for over a thousand years that, to the English at least, a severance might seem to be a cutting of the vital cord.

Editorial of the Day

THE AMERICAN SHAME.

[Decatur Herald.]

A pitched battle, fought in a crowded Springfield street Sunday between members of two antagonistic miners' unions, illustrates again the American shame.

Members of the Progressive miners and of the United Mine Workers' unions dislike one another. That is a fact sufficiently well known in Illinois. When a group of officials of the one union came past the spot where a group of the other union were known to be assembled, naturally it was taken as something other than a friendly call. Taunts were exchanged, also naturally enough.

In any other civilized country the matter would have ended there. At the worst there would have been some flying fists. In our United States, however, private citizens known to be belligerent are permitted to go about with firearms on their persons without any public restraint whatever.

In the Springfield collision of Sunday afternoon exchanges of words were instantly followed by exchanges of bullets. It is not established who fired first, and it does not matter in the present argument. The point is that among both parties to a private feud of long standing there were men with pistols in their pockets, waiting only a provocation to begin shooting. On an Easter Sunday afternoon, when members of the one group were attending a social gathering and members of the other group ostensibly were taking a pleasure ride in the spring sunshine, guns had been carried along. As a consequence, instead of a few bloody noses, the normal result of any such meeting of antagonistic persons, we see one man shot dead, seven wounded, and all innocent persons along the street menaced.

Inexcusable folly! How long are we going to permit private armies to swagger about in this country, like hoodlums in some drunken wild west frontier town of the last century? How long are we going to allow pistols to be sold like gumdrops over a counter to all comers, and face the hazards of having irresponsible people going everywhere prepared to deal death any moment they are annoyed?

It is time to stop gun toting in America. The disarming of hostile factions is a public responsibility that ought not wait until after battles are fought in our streets. No law abiding private citizen of the United States has any business going about with a gun upon his person, and the sooner the guns are confiscated, the indiscriminate sale stopped, the sooner we shall be rid of a national shame.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AN OPEN FACED LETTER TO THE SPENDERS.

Gentlemen: I see by the papers that you have been selected to spend that four billion eight hundred million dollars that the government is going to spend in work relief. Four billion eight hundred million is a lot of money to spend, but your biggest trouble will come when you make out your expense accounts. When I had to account for the money I spent when I was a war correspondent in the Philippines and found out that I was away behind in trying to balance my expenditures with the money advanced me by the office I always had a couple of horses shot under me. The horses, strange as it may seem, cost whatever amount I was shy. It was a very good plan, but I stayed out there too long, about two years, and towards the end of my stay I grew uneasy for fear the office would check up on the original number of native horses there were in the Philippines when I got there and the number I had had shot under me and find out that I had killed off more horses than there were on the island when I arrived. I thought of importing horses from China to account logically for the frightful mortality of my faithful steeds, but about that time I was called home and didn't have to make out any more expense accounts. But, of course, you can't ride horses around while spending this four billion eight hundred million, and, besides, these are peace times, and if you put down in your expense account it would seem kind of queer to the auditor. I managed to get away with it, but conditions were different. Besides, even the cost of a horse killed in action is mighty small compared to four billion eight hundred million dollars.

June 15, to two horses killed in action...$375.45
June 16, ditto $456.30

Yes, gentlemen, as one who has made out hundreds and hundreds of expense accounts I simply stand appalled at the idea of an expense account to cover four billion eight hundred million dollars. And the very ways you will be obliged to get rid of that money would have sounded mighty funny to the auditors who used to look over my expense account. For instance, suppose I had set down:

June 19, to hiring 1,200 men to count leaves on oak and apple trees.....$6,750.35

June 23, to chasing English sparrows back from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, 3,456 men employed $18,553.33

June 24, to whitewashing hind legs of all mules, horses, and cows in U. S., 9,435 mural, portrait, and landscape artists employed $173,554.06

Now these expenses will be genuine; you'll have to set them down. But gosh! I would have hated to lay down an expense account like that before the tombstone-faced, fishy-eyed auditor that used to look over my expense accounts. He would have just made a dash at me and thrown me right out the window, pane, sash and all. But you've got to do it. Well, I wish you luck. I thought I did a pretty fair job killing all those horses in the Philippines, but, anyhow, that sounded reasonable, while the things you've got to spend money on will certainly sound funny when you put 'em down in your expense accounts. I wish you all the luck in the world, and if you get by with it I'll work some of those items into my next expense account.

Yrs. Truly,
R. H. L.

PRAYER.

Give me a dream, O Lord,
That I may shelter under;
A place where I may hide
From wind and rain and thunder.

Give me a dream so tall
That climbing I may see
The busy halls and streets
Of bright eternity.

'TIS A DELAYED SPRING indeed, but, nevertheless, the spring flowers must be very beautiful. Come, then, let us chop a hole through the ice and pluck us a nosegay.

THE TOURING BUREAUS say that all the roads in the country are going to be full of detours this summer, caused by the frantic efforts of the spending bureau at Washington to get rid of that five billion dollar work relief appropriation. I don't know but what before I go on a vacation jaunt [if and when] this summer it might be a good idea to trade in the old bus on a caterpillar tractor. The bus is all right on a good cement road, but not good at all in going across plowed fields and through heavy woods. Maybe an army tank would be better. They're geared up for that kind of going, and how grand an army tank would be against thumb wigglers and bandits!

PAX.

You cannot lift the Dead!
The Dead are sleeping—
Their ear-drums closed against
Our sobs and weeping.

Let them sleep on in peace!
Beyond our grieving
Their slumber might yet hold
Some fair believing.

PREVENTION OF DEAFNESS.

SEVERAL weeks ago we had something to say about Ménière's disease. As a result several hundred letters were received, many of which called attention to the increasing number of persons who are deaf or hard of hearing.

On the part of both physicians and lay persons there is today a clear recognition of the magnitude of the problems faced by the hard of hearing, and many specialists and research workers are devoting themselves assiduously to investigation of the causative factors.

We cannot escape the observation that many of the acute diseases of childhood, particularly measles and scarlet fever, are prone to leave a permanent mark upon the hearing. Everything that can be done to reduce the widespread incidence of these diseases will result in preserving this invaluable sense. During the past twelve months measles has been far more prevalent throughout the country than for many years and in its train will certainly follow more rather than fewer ear complications. If we are to strike the situation at its source we must discover some method of preventing measles at least equal to the measures now available in scarlet fever.

Even ordinary throat infections, colds, and influenza exact their toll in ear disease. Nature, in providing a balance of air pressure on both sides of the ear drum, constructed a tube [Eustachian] that leads from the middle ear to the throat. Although the normal current of flow from this tube is toward the throat, bacteria can find their way from the throat into the middle ear and set up inflammation, produce pus, and destroy or damage the delicate hearing mechanism.

The problem of otosclerosis [bony deposits] is most formidable. It may attack its victim in the period of youth and fasten upon him a social and economic handicap. It is more frequent in young women than in young men, and its progress is markedly increased during pregnancy. In this condition, for some unknown reason, new bone is deposited around the structure within the skull that incloses the delicate endings of the nerve of hearing [auditory nerve]. In some respects it bears a similarity to what we understand as arthritis, inasmuch as tiny spurs of bone may form that prevent the free movements of the small bones of hearing that convey vibrations from the ear drum to the nerve. Investigation shows that this condition is much more common than was originally supposed. In fact, there may be beginning otosclerosis in many individuals who show no signs whatever of deafness.

We must clearly recognize the influence of sinus disease as a factor in ear trouble. In fact, the middle ear itself may even be considered as similar in structure to a bony sinus within the skull. As with the sinuses, the middle ear is a space filled with air and lined with mucous membrane. The intimate relation between sinus infection and general health can be traced with equal positiveness to the ear.

We must also recognize another source of deafness—namely: loud noises. Insults to the hearing nerve, if repeated often enough and long enough, will be followed by degeneration of that structure. The noise of factories, workshops, city streets, the roar of pneumatic hammers and even of trafic, is taking its toll in increasing deafness.

Prevention lies, first, in avoiding acute disease and any and all infections of the upper air passages, including the sinuses. If infection comes despite our precautions, bed rest and good nursing, in most instances, will bring about recovery free from complications. We must remember that disease that destroys hearing is rarely primary; that is, it follows an infection elsewhere in the body.

Lip reading and electrical hearing devices are of incalculable value, but once the damage has been done, man can provide only a makeshift. That the problem deserves consideration is indicated by the fact that from 3 to 5 per cent of our population suffers from some degree of hearing loss.

FOOD FOR ANEMIC.

Paleface writes: In a recent article you mention a form of anemia in which there exists the proper number of red blood corpuscles but a lack in color. Is there anything better than spinach to bring up the color?

REPLY.

Spinach plus other iron-containing foods such as lean beef, eggs, green vegetables, lima beans, peas, unmilled wheat, oatmeal, raisins. If foods are not sufficient your physician can prescribe a small amount of iron.

DON'T TALK.

J. R. writes: What is the treatment for tuberculous larynx and what are some of the don'ts?

REPLY.

Do not talk. If it is necessary to communicate with some one by voice do so in a whisper. This will permit the vocal cords to rest and will promote healing. The diseased cords will require treatment by an expert laryngologist.

HEAD SHAKES.

G. T. writes: What causes the head to shake when a person becomes nervous?

REPLY.

ESTATE DISTRIBUTION.

Galva, Ill., May 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Our mother wishes to fix her estate so that when she dies there will be no court proceedings or legal fees, if possible. The estate consists mostly of stocks. 2. What would be the proper wording of the title of a joint ownership that would provide for the automatic total ownership of the survivor without use of courts? 3. What part of this property would be construed as being a gift? 4. What is the federal tax on gifts?

L. O.

1. The safest course would be for her to go over her facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

2. Take the matter up with the transfer officers of the corporations in question.

3. If she places the assets in joint tenancy between herself and two children, then when any one of the three parties die there would presumably be one-third of the value subject to inheritance tax.

4. It is applicable only to large estates. If you will state your facts we will be in a better position to advise you.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

GIFT OR LOAN?

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father recently passed away in Michigan, leaving an interest in some real estate there. He has been dependent on me for a dozen years, which represents several times the value of his real estate. I have canceled checks to prove what I have done. What must I do to recover what I can, and how soon?

C. M.

If your payments were understood to be gifts at the time they were made you would not be entitled to change your mind now and collect them from his estate, but if you can satisfy a court that your payments were understood to be loans, then it should be possible for you to collect. For this purpose you should file a claim in the probate proceedings and follow the matter up.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DOWER INTEREST.

River Forest, Ill., May 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If an only daughter inherits a house and lot, clear property, can the husband of said daughter come in for his third in the property?

C. F. O.

He would have a dower interest, which means that if he survives his wife he would be entitled to one-third of the income for the remainder of his life.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCE PROBLEM.

Glencoe, Ill., May 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My brother has a very incompatible wife mentally and physically, but morally good. She does not want divorce, but is willing to separate homes. She will not suffer financially, as he is dividing their personal properties. He wants a divorce. Can he get it in short order? He wants to go to Reno. What are the possibilities for a man doing this? He might not have more than $500 left after all debts are paid. Is this too little for such an undertaking?

H. E.

Incompatibility is not a ground under Illinois law. In Holt vs. Holt, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held on April 15, 1935, that since the complainant's sole purpose in going to Nevada was to procure a divorce he did not establish a domicile sufficient to support the decree. The court said: "Since control of the matrimonial status lies in the law of the domicile of the parties to the marriage, the decrees so casually granted by a few of our states to sojourners, tourists, and birds of passage have no extra-territorial validity." Similarly, in Pime vs. Hinton, the New York Appellate division held on April 12, 1935, that a Nevada divorce decree, having been obtained by the wife by fraudulently inducing the husband to appear in the Nevada suit for jurisdictional purposes, is not entitled to full faith and credit in the New York court. In Bergeron vs. Bergeron, decided Sept. 15, 1934, by the Massachusetts Supreme court, a Mexican divorce was held invalid, although the wife had contracted another marriage in reliance on the decree.

Hence we advise persons who contemplate going to a foreign state for a divorce to first get the advice of a disinterested lawyer in their home state. Do not rely on advertising, on news articles, nor on the claims of a lawyer who makes his living out of exploiting such cases.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

Cleopatra, rather than being the wanton woman she usually is pictured to be, was, on the contrary, one of the most intelligent and patriotic women of all history. Like other patriots, she gave everything she had to save her country and throne. Roman generals, who would have destroyed these, were conquered by her ingenious plans, and politicians back in Rome devised most of the stories defaming her name. She had successfully kept Rome from devouring her own country of Egypt for 22 years.

RELIEF FOR POLITICIANS!

Chicago, May 2.—If all the 2 per cent sales tax we have in effect at present went to relief we wouldn't need it raised to 3 per cent. But there are too many "nimble fingered" politicians involved.

ELSIE OLSON.

THE MESSIANIC DREAM.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, April 17.—Men who conduct vast businesses, and even rulers of nations, are no busier than their humblest servants. A man who employs thousands of men delegates his authority to managers. He himself attends only to those relatively few important matters that no one but himself can attend to.

No man ever ruled the entire world. But it is conceivable that such a man will yet appear in the world. It is perfectly conceivable that a godlike man of divine goodness, wisdom, and prudence, a very son of God, should take into his hands the world's reins of power, and sit upon a throne, judging the whole earth. His managers would be kings of nations, his foremen would be the governors and the wise and great of the earth.

The world of our day is prepared for the coming of such a ruler. The mails, cables, wireless telegraphy, and telephones girdle the earth. A world ruler could sit in some central location—say Hawaii—and tell every nation of the world how to solve its problems.

Our times cry out for such a divine world king. The whole earth stews in its own corruption. Leadership everywhere has failed. Darkness covers the earth.

That king will come! By a word here, by a word there, he will calm weeping nations as a mother calms her child. The words of his mouth will be glittering swords to slay evildoers, they will be healing ointments to save the poor and distressed. Under his divine leadership the nations will march on, strong and confident, to a higher destiny than they have ever known. "In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."

CHARLES HOOPER.

MORE ABOUT THE PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Chicago, April 24.—One of our lawmakers [a Mr. Maverick by name], sent to Washington, D. C., from the state of Texas, gave a talk on the radio a short time ago relative to an unpleasant situation which has developed for investors in public utility stocks brought about by the proposed Wheeler-Rayburn bill. This gentleman sought to allay the fears of such investors by saying that the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was not a destructive measure, but rather that it was designed solely for the purpose of protecting the holders of such stocks. Among other things he mentioned having received a letter from a woman in his home state in which she claimed she bought a public utility stock a few years ago for which she paid $65 a share, but which now had a value of only $2 a share. It does seem that if what the Texan said of the bill is true then the experience of the woman referred to, as well as that of other public utility stockholders, should have been just the reverse and the value of such securities considerably enhanced instead of depreciated.

The making of reassuring statements, however late, will do no harm, even though the destruction of values has all been taken care of by those who usually look after such things, for while the much discussed bill may not have been devised with the idea of annihilating the companies which it did attack, it no doubt provided ammunition for the Wall street bears with which to "shoot down" values. Saying anything now about the good side of the bill smacks of "locking the barn door after the horses are stolen."

It is just possible that those who are fortunate enough to be sitting in political chairs and "living on the fat of the land" at the taxpayers' expense need not be disturbed by such shrinkage in values as has occurred, but for the holders of public utility stocks who are less favorably placed and have to earn their living by doing real work such disaster in the form of staggering losses cannot be "laughed off" so readily. One wonders what industry will be next in line for attack when the "wreckers" are through with the companies above mentioned, as well as with the railroad companies, whose stockholders have also had more than their share of grief on account of ruthless legislation.

THE JUVENILE COURT.

Chicago, April 21.—Your article in today's issue about the legislation which Judge Sullivan wishes to have introduced in Springfield is in error on several points. I am sure you will be glad to have corrections. The Juvenile court act of 1899 [not 1905 as stated in your article] placed boys under 17 years of age [not 17 years and younger] and girls under 18 [not 18 years and under] under the jurisdiction of the Juvenile court.

You quoted Judge Sullivan as saying that "statistics show 70 per cent of the defendants brought before the Criminal court are under 21, and that 40 per cent are 17 or under, the Juvenile court age." What part of this 40 per cent are 17 years of age? Of course boys of 17 do not fall within the age of Juvenile court jurisdiction. You also quote Judge Sullivan as saying that "an approximation that 65 per cent of these have previous Juvenile court records is a small estimate." What does he mean by "Juvenile court records"? Are they records of delinquency, dependency, or neglect? Having been known to the Juvenile court or having been under the guardianship of the Juvenile court does not in itself indicate delinquency, although those unfamiliar with the philosophy of the Juvenile court might mistake it as such.

Confusion of jurisdiction does exist between the Criminal and Juvenile courts. Other states have solved this by placing sole original jurisdiction in the Juvenile court and giving the judge of that court discretionary power to transfer cases to the Criminal court where advisable. This was the practice in Cook county until recently. This confusion could also be reduced by raising the age of criminal responsibility. It was raised over a hundred years ago from 7 to 10 years.

Illinois was the first state to enact Juvenile court legislation. Many citizens are proud of this fact. A backward step would be regrettable.

THE DRAKE RELAYS.

Chicago, May 2.—As an alumnus of Drake university I wish to express my appreciation for the splendid publicity which you give the Drake relays each year. It was my observation that you even gave them more publicity this year than ever before.

Inasmuch as the relays are held in Des Moines, Ia., which is about 300 miles from Chicago, it would be very easy for you not to be greatly interested in them, but I know the reason why you do publicize them every year, and that is that you recognize the importance of this part of the country having a great meet each year in competition with the Penn relays in Philadelphia.

I know that all our Drakes of Chicagoland join me in this letter of appreciation.

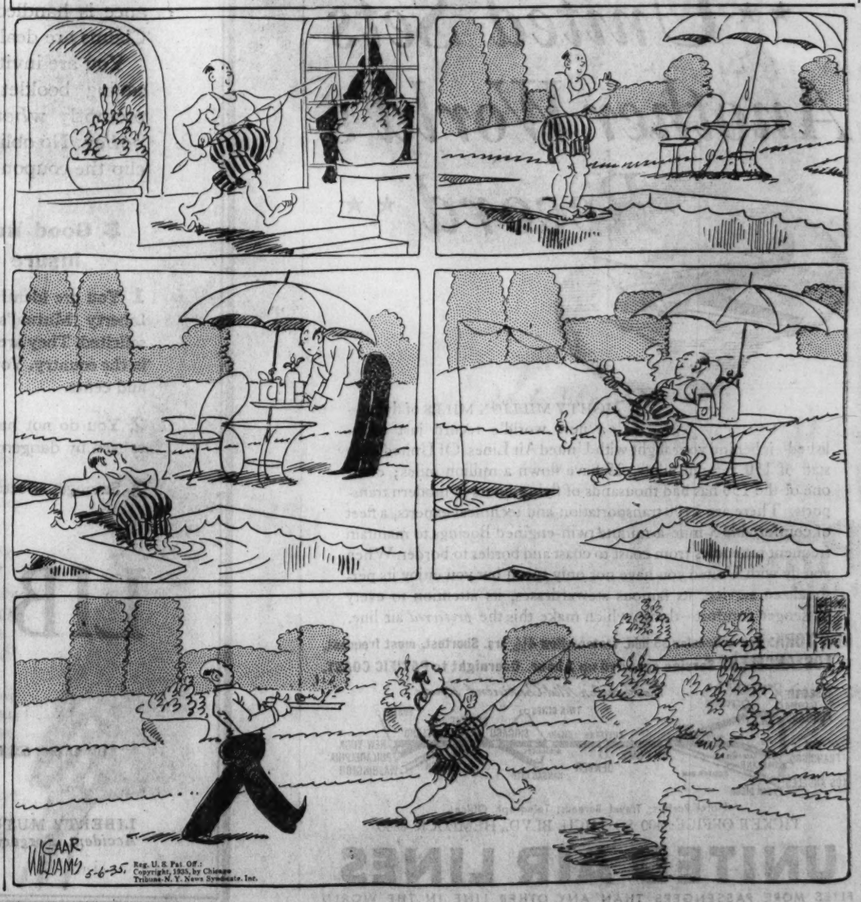
OUR SECRET AMBITION



STATE AUTO TAX REDUCTION BILLS UP THIS WEEK

Expect Most Will Fail to Pass Test.

BY HAL FOUST.

The fate of most of the automobile tax reduction proposals probably will be determined this week in a hearing before the house roads and bridges committee in Springfield. A majority of these proposals, effective vote getters in political campaigns of the last two years, will fail to pass the test of analyses, judging from figures furnished by the state highway department.

The Horner administration is opposing any cut in either the license fee or the gasoline excise. Ernest Lieberman, state highway engineer, in testifying before the committee two weeks ago, was able to show the practical impossibility of most of the tax cut proposals contained in twelve bills that have been introduced. He was able to show that the more drastic reductions would be ruinous to the best interests of the motorists.

Point to School Aid.

Neither Mr. Lieberman nor Director Kingery of the department of public works was able, however, to convince all of the legislators that a cut in the license fees cannot be made. An argument from the reduction proponents difficult to overcome is that $1,700,000 was diverted from the state roads funds in 1934 for schools and that without this diversion in the future the motorists might be saved this $1,700,000 in their taxes.

The demand from the motoring public for a tax reduction is keen. Neither the license fee nor the gasoline tax has been changed since the boom era. Much money collected as revenue for roads has been diverted to other uses.

Misunderstanding Over Expenses.

There appears, however, to be a general misunderstanding of the expenses that must be met by the license fees and the gasoline taxes. The misunderstanding has grown with the allotment of heavy "easy money" grants to the state highway department. It is not generally understood that this federal money cannot be used to meet expenses that must be paid by license fees and gas tax.

The estimated expenses of the highway department for 1936, subject perhaps to shaving but not slicing, all of which must be paid by license and gas taxes, and entirely aside from any new construction, are as follows:

Principal on bonds	$ 3,500,000
Interest on bonds	5,470,000
Maintenance [1934]	5,181,000
Policing [1934]	847,000
State auto dept. [1934]	659,000
Engineering and administration [1934]	2,561,000
Refunds to counties	1,250,000
Total	$19,468,000

The most widely advocated tax reduction proposal, cutting the gas rate from 3 to 2 cents [1-3 to the state], and slashing the registration fees to a flat $3, would result in a revenue of $10,960,000 and a deficit, without any new construction, of $8,508,000.

Expect $27,100,000 Revenue.

The anticipated revenue from auto licenses and gasoline taxes in 1936 at the present rate is $27,100,000. The highway department budget for 1936 is $20,000,000, a slight increase over 1934 actual expenditures due to the growing cost of maintenance as pavements age and due to an allowance to equip state police with radios.

This leaves about $7,000,000 available for new construction. To match the regular federal aid allotment, $5,160,000 is required, leaving $1,677,000 for extensions and betterments of pavements outside of the federal aid routes.

The mildest proposal in the dozen bills to be considered by the house committee calls for a 33 1-3 cut in registration fees with the gas tax remaining as is. This would produce $21,091,000 for the state highway department, $1,091,000 more than its budget of fixed charges.

The committee, headed by Representative A. B. Lager [Dem., Carlyle], is expected, after hearing all witnesses, to recommend this week passage of one or none of the dozen bills. Or it might draft a committee bill, if it sees fit.

HAYMARKET RIOT POLICE VETERANS RELIVE GRIM DAY

Of 200 policemen who marched out of the Desplaines street police station on the night of May 4, 1886, 3 gathered there again yesterday to reminisce about that historic night forty-nine years ago and to retell the story of the Haymarket riot, the throwing of a dynamite bomb in their midst by an anarchist, the pistol battle that followed, and the killing of 9 policemen—with the death toll of anarchists never counted.

On hand were Capt. Frank B. Tyrrell, 76 years old, president of the Haymarket Riot Veterans' association; Andrew O'Day, 81 years old, and George Roycraft, 88 years old. There are only two other survivors—Lieut. John [Jocko] Hartford and Herman F. Krueger—who do not belong to the association.

Ranks Thin to Three.

On the Sunday closest to May 4 each year the members of the association have met at the Desplaines street station. Last year there were five; this year, three.

"We'll all be here next year," promised Capt. Tyrrell, youngest of the veterans, yesterday. "We're all in good health."

Capt. Tyrrell retired from the city force on a pension in 1912 and later was captain of the west park police. O'Day said he has not worked in the twenty years he has been on a pension and has lived at Fox Lake since then.

"I haven't made a dollar outside my pension of $62.50 a month in the seventeen years I have been in retirement," said Roycraft. "I have enjoyed living and I enjoy these annual reunions."

Capt. Tyrrell was asked to give his opinion of present day communists as compared with the anarchists of forty-nine years ago. He said that the Reds of today are as lambs compared to the anarchists of the '80s.

All Radicals "No Good."

"These radicals, whether old style or new, never were and never will be any good to themselves or any one else," Capt. Tyrrell said. "When I was captain of the west parks the radicals obtained a permit for a meeting from the superintendent of parks. I went over and broke up their meeting. The next day President Eckhart of the park board asked me why I had done it. I told him I would never allow such people to gather in a park.

"'They had a permit from the superintendent,' President Eckhart said. "'Yes, and I revoked it,' I told him. 'I have that power.' Later on he said to me, 'I guess you were right.'"

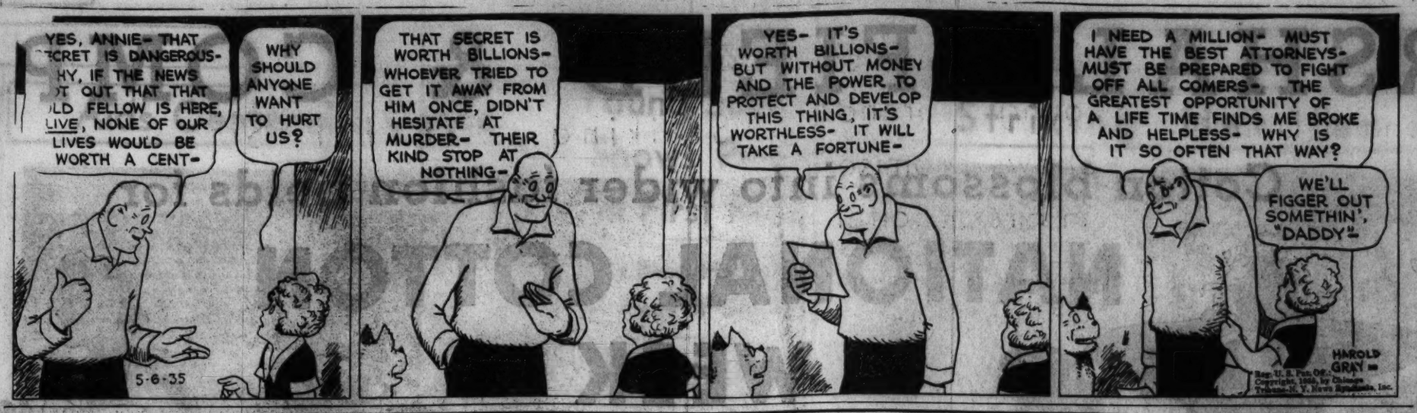
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Unprepared



News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

King George, Rudyard Kipling, John Masefield, Ramsay MacDonald and other British Empire leaders are to be heard today over American networks in connection with the opening of the royal jubilee celebration. Four programs will be relayed over American chains today and many others will be heard during the remainder of the week. In addition there will be two short wave broadcasts from British stations today intended for listeners throughout the empire.

From 5 to 6:40 this morning a description of the scene as King George and Queen Mary attend a thanksgiving service at St. Paul's church will be broadcast with WMAQ and WBBM as local outlets.

From 12:30 to 2 p. m. British stations GSB [9:51 meg.], GSD [11:75 meg.], and GSF [15:14 meg.], will carry a dramatic program titled "Twenty-five Years." This will include an address by the king.

The king's appearance is tentatively scheduled for 1:39 p. m. and at this time the jubilee proceedings will be picked up locally through WCFL and NBC, running until 2:05 p. m. Ramsay MacDonald and other cabinet members will speak during this period.

A jubilee address by Rudyard Kipling at a banquet of the Society of St. George will be rebroadcast over an NBC chain, with WMAQ as local outlet, from 3 to 3:20 p. m. At 4:30 John Masefield, poet-laureate, will pay homage to the king when he reads a specially written jubilee ode. WMAQ will be the outlet.

Finally a recorded repeat of the dramatized review of the 25 year reign will be given from 6:50 to 8:25 tonight over GSB and GSC direct from British Broadcasting house in London.

Fred Allen, who had intended to stay on the air all summer, has changed his mind. He will leave the air early in July for a vacation and go to Hollywood to join a flock of other radio entertainers in Darryl Zanuck's picture "Sing, Governor, Sing." Earlier recruits for this movie include Phil Baker, Bottle and Bettle, Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, Dave Rubinoff, the violinist, and Harry Stockwell, singer. Allen's Town Hall program will continue throughout the summer without him, and he will return to it in the fall.

The send a dime chain letter has many a radio star in a dither. "Fan" letters requesting 10 cents are pouring in by the thousands. Joe Allabough, WJJD's program director, is the first radio man to report cashing in. He got a dime in Saturday morning's mail . . . Cyrena Van Gordon, former Civic Opera star, is singing over WOR . . . Guy Robertson of "The Great Waltz" is to replace Everett Marshall as the headliner of the CBS Wednesday evening Broadway Varieties. Marshall leaves for Hollywood today to make a picture for Warner Brothers.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(AP)—New evidence pointing to the Barker-Karpis gang as kidnapers of William Hamm, St. Paul, in 1933, was announced today as the government neared the climax in its case against ten persons on trial for the abduction of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker.

It was learned authoritatively that $65,000 of the $100,000 ransom paid for the release of Hamm, millionaire brewer, had found its way into the Chicago Federal Reserve bank from various cities, including Chicago, Cleveland, and Toledo. Heretofore, no inkling that any of the Hamm ransom money had turned up had been given.

These disclosures, with the arrest in Mississippi of Harry Sawyer, reputed "finger man" in the Bremer kidnaping, Saturday, came as the government prepared to weave the last strands in its net of evidence against the Bremer defendants, including Arthur [Doc] Barker, through the testimony of Byron Bolton.

Bolton, confessed member of the kidnaping gang, pleaded guilty at the opening of the current trial April 15. The prosecution expects him to complete the "inside" story of Bremer's seizure and rely on him to link at least seven of the defendants with it directly.

The defense probably will start its case late Monday or Tuesday.

TWO WOMEN SHOT IN POLICE FIGHT WITH HOODLUMS

Two women were seriously wounded late last night by shotgun slugs fired by a county highway policeman at hoodlums who had been ejected from the saloon of James Allegretti, 2003 Emerson avenue.

The injured are Miss Louisa Pemuso, 25 years old, 1929 West Ohio street, struck in the right side, and Miss Mary Palenisiak, 30 years old, 1744 McReynolds street, whose left leg was pierced. Both were taken to St. Mary's hospital.

Allegretti and his son, James Jr., the latter the highway policeman, told investigators that a crowd of hoodlums entered the saloon early yesterday. They were ordered out and announced they would be back last night to get even. Policeman Allegretti concealed himself in the place with a shotgun. When four men came in and attempted to slug the elder Allegretti, the younger stepped out and told the four they were under arrest.

Two fled as the police were being called and the policeman followed. One of the men fired a pistol at him and ran to Ohio street and Damen avenue. There Allegretti fired and the shots struck the two women, who were waiting for a street car. Sergt. Patrick Griffin and a police squad arrived in time to arrest the man who was firing at Allegretti. He is Frank Stentore, 30 years old, 1931 West Erie street. Allegretti caught another of the band, Peter Barrion, 26 years old, 1802 West Chicago avenue. He was unarmed.

ARRAIGN FIREBUG IN ROGERS PARK FATALITY TODAY

H. Carle Peterson, the school of journalism former student, who confessed setting numerous fires in Rogers Park when prompted by an "urge" was scheduled yesterday to be arraigned today in the Felony court on a charge of murder and on several charges of arson. Mrs. Julia Goldberg, 72 years old, was burned to death in her home at 7030 Sheridan road on March 23 during a fire which Peterson said he started.

Peterson is a prisoner in a Rogers Park police station cell. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Peterson, 1740 Wallen avenue, called at the police station and said they were unable to account for their son's actions. He is 30 years old, born in this country, and has always appeared to be a normal youth, they informed Capt. Patrick J. Harding.

Assistant State's Attorney Marshall V. Kearney, who will prosecute Peterson, said the prisoner's confessions mentioned a dozen fires which he started for the thrill they gave him. He said the state would ask a continuance of the preliminary hearing in Felony court in the belief that the voting of indictments early this week would make such a hearing unnecessary.

LAUREN D. CHASE, ENGINEER ON PWA SEWER JOB, DIES

Lauren D. Chase, 56 years old, sanitary engineer in charge of PWA project No. 7, an intercepting sewer extending west from Michigan avenue under the river and under Kinzie street, died of heart disease yesterday at the home of his father, Melville W. Chase, in Hillsdale, Mich. He came to Chicago somewhat over a year ago and lived in Glencoe until recently, when he moved back to Michigan to make his home with his father, who is 92 years old. C. H. Bauer, state director of PWA work in Illinois, said Mr. Chase recently was given an eighteen day vacation and was due to return to work this morning. Mr. Chase was a graduate of Hillsdale college and Purdue university.

HATTIE C. GREER KILLED BY FALL IN HOME OF SON

Mrs. Hattie Curtis Greer, 65 years old, was killed yesterday when she fell down a flight of stairs in the building at 1020 Ardmore avenue, where she lived with a son, Frederick. Mrs. Greer was the widow of Dr. Joseph H. Greer. She had become totally blind recently and this apparently was responsible for her fall. Mrs. Greer was formerly president of the I Will club, formed to boost Chicago. Surviving are four children, Frederick, Erwin, Mrs. F. L. Workman, of Kenilworth, and Mrs. Estelle Vaughan of Los Angeles.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Chicago British Join in King's Jubilee Today

Concert in Orchestra Hall to Benefit Charities.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALL of those good Britishers and their friends not so fortunate as to be in London today are treating themselves to a holiday here that begins with a radio broadcast at 5 o'clock this morning and climaxes in a concert tonight at Orchestra hall.

In London and throughout the British empire it is the grand opening of the silver jubilee marking the 25th anniversary of King George's accession to the throne. Considering the six hour difference in time between London and Chicago, the ceremonies will be well under way by the time many families read this story with their breakfast coffee, but there are those who plan to arise in the wee small hours to hear the service of thanksgiving in St. Paul's cathedral at 10 o'clock London time—5 o'clock daylight saving time here.

King and Kipling to Speak in Afternoon.

The British consul general, Lewis Bernays, and Mrs. Bernays are hearing this early broadcast and all of the rest of the celebrations throughout the day. In the program beginning at 1:40 this afternoon [Chicago time] King George will be heard, and later at 3 o'clock Rudyard Kipling, who will be addressing the dinner of the Royal Society of St. George. At 4:15 John Masefield, poet laureate, is due to read a poem to good King George and Queen Mary.

According to Mr. Bernays, as well as all of the reports that have come directly from London, it is to be a day unsurpassed for pageantry, brilliance, and interest in the history of the British empire. This is the reason that the British colony here is supplementing the day's broadcasts with a jubilee concert in Orchestra hall.

Gen. Dawes to Welcome Audience at Concert.

The concert, for the benefit of local British charities, will be a strictly formal affair with most of the main floor seats and boxes occupied by socially prominent families. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, wearing his official insignia as former American ambassador to Great Britain, will deliver the address of welcome, and Mr. Bernays will respond. Dr. Duncan H. Browne of St. James' church will pronounce the invocation.

The St. James choir, the Chicago Welsh Male choir, the Chicago Scottish Choral union, and Miss Amy Neill, violinist, will give the concert.

Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell is bringing her dinner guests on to Orchestra hall. Others who will occupy main floor seats and boxes include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. Clair E. More, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mr. and Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James, and the Charles H. Bosworths.

Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp Reach Chicago Tomorrow.

It is unfortunate that the Bosworths cannot have Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp of London, whose son, Dr. Trevor Stamp, married their daughter Frances, for their guests. Missing the jubilee in London entirely, the Stamps are arriving tomorrow for a flying visit.

They are on their way from Ottawa, New York, and Washington to California, and will spend two days here en route. Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth, with whom they will stay, are giving a family dinner for them tomorrow night. Wednesday noon Gen. Dawes is having a large luncheon for Sir Josiah, and that afternoon Mrs. Bosworth has invited in a few friends to meet Lady Stamp.

On Wednesday evening Sir Josiah will have dinner with and speak before the members of the Economic club, and Thursday he will speak at Northwestern university. Unfortunately, he and Lady Stamp will not return through Chicago, for they are boing back east form California by way of Canada.

Mrs. Bosworth expects her other daughter and son-in-law, the Gordon

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THERE have been enough favorable reviews of Thomas E. Tallmadge's second book on architecture, "The Story of England's Architecture," to make it permissible to tell the manner in which a book critic in one of the ridings in the county of Yorkshire disposed of his book.

Review—Book—Etiquet—Coincidence.

"The short list of errata in the front should have been considerably longer," wrote the critic. And that was his complete review in the local paper.

SPEAKING of Mr. Tallmadge brings to mind that he is at work on a biography of his late friend, Artist John Norton, to be illustrated with Mr. Norton's work. An appreciation of Mr. Norton's art will be included in the tome which Tom Lea is writing. A first edition of 100 copies, each of which will contain an original water color or sketch by Mr. Norton, will be published in advance of the regular edition. The artist's widow, Madge Norton, also an artist, is selecting the pictures to be included in the book.

A FRIEND back from St. Petersburg, Fla., reports the little etiquet note offered in a sign in the Holsum cafeteria:

THE telephone rang, and it was a woman who had a coincidence to report. It seems she went downtown the other day to shop for a collar to wear on a new dress. At the collar counter she got into conversation with another customer about the collar she had in her hand. Yellow organdy it was. The first woman—name, Mrs. C. R. Johnson, if you insist on accuracy and detail—confided she wanted a new collar for a black dress she expected to wear at a bridge party the next evening. She bought the yellow collar, and the other woman, a perfect stranger to her, bought the same collar, only in pink organdy. They smiled briefly at one another and went their ways clutching their respective packages. The next evening both women turned up at the same bridge party, both wearing the collars, too.

Young Soprano Shows Promise in First Recital

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Lucia Diano, one of the younger sopranos of the Chicago Grand Opera company, disclosed herself in her first Chicago song recital in the Drake hotel ballroom last night as one of its most promising members. Even now she has a voice and a musical ability far beyond the ordinary. With a little more time and routine she will be due to take her place among the glamorous ones. At least last night's recital pointed that way.

One admits in advance all that can be technically alleged against her, that some of her high notes were spread instead of focused, that in some of her songs she let imagination run away with complete correctness. But she has a voice werth focusing, with the glorious quality of youth and a personal bead of its own, and she also has an imagination that puts more than actual notes into her songs. She would seem to be the sort of student who hunts out uncommon songs and gives them an uncommon and stimulating performance. She has the ability to project words clearly, and particularly English words. These, coupled with her own lovely quality of voice, are the reasons why there is cause to anticipate a future for her.

With "Il Trovatore" last night the San Carlo opera said good-by to Chicago until next autumn. The week just closed was the company's second visit of the season, and, like the former engagement last fall, had an attendance for each performance that was practically the full capacity of the Auditorium.

It was another proof that, given brightly moving, well sung, well balanced performances at not too high prices, Chicago responds in great numbers to opera. Bianca Saroya, Aroldo Lindi, Mostyn Thomas in last night's "Il Trovatore," Ina Bourskaya, Mr. Lindi, Mario Valle in the "Carmen" of the night before, Hizi Koyke and Sydney Rayner in "Mme. Butterfly" on Saturday afternoon were three cases in point. The operas were choice specimens of their kind; they were performed in a way to create belief in opera as a means of expression. This, one takes it, is what is really meant by opera being educational. The San Carlo company has learned how to be so. It takes with it the good wishes of the public and sincere hopes for a return.

There was considerable good piano music to be heard yesterday afternoon. Sam Raphling gave a recital at the Studebaker, presenting works of such major dimensions as the Liszt Sonata in B minor, the Schumann "Carnival," a Chopin group, and a final group of transcriptions from Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," and displaying abundant technic, a fine, sonorous tone, and imagination that went far beneath the surface and yet remained logical and credible.

Up above in Curtiss hall, Isadore Buchhalter was in charge of the first of two Bach programs. The climax was the Concerto in D minor for three pianos, played with great clarity and discipline by Jeanette Albert, Marvin Jacobs, and Laura Mayer, and excellently accompanied by the Joseffer string quintet under the direction of Max Bendix. Before that Helen Protheroe had done a first class rendition of one of the cantatas for solo soprano voice, and there had been other piano music by Knox Hill, Dorothy June Girson, and Patricia Ann Levit, with special commendation for two youngsters, Sylvia Seelig and Elaine Hochbaum, who performed on two pianos.

Cotton Goods First on Week's Shopping List

BY RHEA SEEGER.

All the shops' cotton departments are bursting with glory and splendor of the newest cottons to celebrate national cotton week from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Don't stay away; these displays are as good a show as anything in town. If you make your own clothes, your fingers will fairly twitch to get at some of the stuff for your wardrobe.

The sheers are stealing the shows—lacey cotton in all the pastels as sheer and fragilly feminine as any lace. Wrinkleproof voile, practically unheard of till this spring, a slick new tropic linen that has been tested to wear a week without the attentions of a pressing iron. All the famous Liberty lawns, printed in large and small patterns, ready for the most decorative and cool summer outfits you ever possessed. Peasant prints in a grand assortment of colors, cotton crash that looks exactly like rough and much more expensive linen, wild and riotously printed Tahitian prints in brilliant color contrasts.

One shop is featuring a special price on sheer white organdy, good and wide, just in time for all the graduation dresses that have to be made for June commencements.

But the excitement that really is news are the bolts and bolts of simply knockout dotted swiss in printed designs. You all know the usual dotted swiss with the inevitable white dots against all colored backgrounds. But wait until you see the prints, plaids, stripes, checks, and floral effects still with the little white dots and crisp, cool, and sheer background or weave.

Another flurry centers in the crisp tissue ginghams also in plaids ready for one piece street outfits in dark colors and dotted in lovely pastels against white for fluttery little formals for the summer parties. These are but a few of the highlights of the coming cotton show going all next week. The others you'll have to see to properly appreciate. Shop next week while there are special prices and a specially good variety of new spring and summer cotton materials.

Events on the Stage

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"Rain from Heaven," the play which recently appeared in Chicago under the auspices of the Theater Guild, will close its tour tonight with a special performance in the playhouse of Princeton university. This occasion will be in honor of Prof. Albert Einstein, who has a taste for the drama as well as the higher mathematics, and whose career as an exile from the Nazi régime in Germany bears a resemblance to that of the central character in the play.

Jane Cowl, co-star of "Rain from Heaven," intends to sail for England next Wednesday. She is going to London to attend the premiére of a play called "Hervey House," written by herself and Reginald Lawrence under the pseudonym of C. R. Avery. Lily Cahill, also an actress in the "Rain from Heaven" company, will accompany Miss Cowl.

Katharine Cornell has decided to end her season's activities next Saturday night with the closing of the New York run of her latest production "Flowers of the Forest," a drama of pacifist theme by John Van Druten. She has abandoned her plan to revive Shaw's "Candida." On May 18 she will sail for Europe. A meeting with her husband, Guthrie McClintic, in Paris, is her first objective.

"Laburnum Grove," J. B. Priestley's comedy, ended its New York run of sixteen weeks last Saturday night and will begin a week's engagement in the Pabst theater, Milwaukee, tonight. On May 27 this play, with Edmund Gwenn as star and Molly Pearson as leading woman, will open an engagement in Chicago.

Tonight's premières on the Chicago stage are: "Mary of Scotland," Maxwell Anderson's drama, staged by the Theater Guild with Helen Hayes in the central rôle, at the Erlanger theater; and the Abbey Theater company of Dublin in a repertory of plays at the Blackstone theater. The former company will remain here for four weeks, the latter will stay only one week.

"The Ugly Runts," a drama by Robert Raynold which deals with the Hungarian miners who threatened to commit mass suicide by starvation last fall, will get its first acting June 10 in Ann Arbor, Mich., under the direction of Robert Henderson. Tom Powers, former Theater Guild actor, will have the leading rôle.

"The Renegade," a play by Mrs. Elizabeth Nathanson, a Chicago writer, will be produced by the Jewish People's institute players next Friday night. Other performances are scheduled for May 12, 18, and 19. This will be the second new play of the company's season. "The Renegade" deals with a Russian Jew who renounces his faith to secure worldly advancement after his emigration to the United States.

THE CAST.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The relentless and ultimately fruitful activities of federal agents in their dealings with underworld spawn furnish the basis for the plot of this story.

The piece is melodramatic and, you feel, was hastily made. Just the same, it gets home its intent with a punch, and the sincerity with which the characters are portrayed by the able cast colors somewhat inconsequential direction.

Vince, modeled after Capone, is, at last, put away for income fraud, despite desperate attempts by his hitherto successful attorney, "Traps," to keep him out of jail.

He doesn't give up hope, depending on the efforts of his adoring younger brother, the connivings of "Traps" and the loyalty of Duke, an erstwhile pal, to spring him.

But that's not the way things work out. The wife and child he had deserted in opulent days and who, he has thought, would be brought forward by "Traps" to inject a note of pathos in his behalf, fail him. "Traps" finds them, to be sure, safe and happy in a little home kept together by the mother's valiant efforts. The child believes her father dead . . . BUT "Traps" falls for the two of them like a load of brick and is theirs henceforth.

He does, however, leave no stone unturned to free his client—putting up one fine plea for Vince's parole when the board of pardons meets. It is Duke, the supposed buddy, living fatly on money he's got from Vince under false pretenses, who does the trick that causes the board to refuse parole. . . .

Vince, persuaded by his brother that "Traps" has double-crossed him both with the board and his wife, escapes. . . . There's a melodramatic scene in the lawyer's office that's a whiz.

"The People's Enemy" is not a great picture—but it's no slouch, either.

THE SLEEPING CHILD

By Alice Grant Rosman.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Fell scents romance when she sees Miles Buchanan meet Eleanor Chevening, returning from London, at the Fendon railway station. Miles has been forced through adversity to shut up most of the Priory, his inherited home. The girls of the Chevening family of Fendon Edge are pursuing careers, Pauline having had a play produced and now working on a period piece. Eleanor is studying medicine. Jenny, the youngest, runs a smart hat shop in Knightsbridge and gets engaged and disengaged now and then. Audrey, an orphaned second cousin, with a talent for design, has for 15 years been as a daughter to Anne and George Chevening, the girls' parents. Pauline uses Audrey's skill for her theater. The Chevenings have a small flat in London for the use of any of the family going to and fro. It is Audrey, however, not Eleanor, who claims Miles' romantic interest. Miles and Geoffrey Burton are partners in a stock breeding venture. Albert King, wealthy newcomer to Fendon, wants to buy the ruins of an ancient monastery on the Priory grounds. Audrey and Miles become engaged. Anne Chevening had been in love with Audrey's father, Hector Chevening. Her parents had broken up the romance and persuaded her to marry his cousin. Later Hector, a victim of the war and penniless, had brought his wife and child to visit the Chevenings, at George's invitation. Anne still loved Hector and knew he still loved her. Shortly after they left Hector shot his wife and himself. Neighbors had heard them quarrel. Audrey was in the next room, apparently asleep. No one ever spoke to her of the tragedy. Anne loved Audrey as her own child, but her sense of guilt was a barrier between them. Jenny returns home unexpectedly.

INSTALMENT XIII.

IRREPRESSIBLE JENNY.

Late that afternoon Jenny Chevening caught the train to Fendon just as it was beginning to move out of the station, while railway officials rushed from all directions to stop her from breaking her neck or the law. From their irate expressions she judged it to be the latter, so flashed an unrepentant smile at them as a reward for duty attempted if not quite done.

She was flying to Paris on business at the end of the week, and had decided to go home for the night and tell the family so and get some clothes she needed. It was true that a telephone call would have given the information, and her obedient mother would have sent the clothes, but the telephone, having its limitations, could not so well have conveyed the sense of rush involved in the adventure, and Jenny was moto perpetuo personified.

She was easily the most popular of the sisters, for she was always gay and never bored, and she had the same manner for everybody, that most flattering of social qualities. When she alighted at Fendon, therefore, the greeting of stationmaster and porters made up for the coldness of their colleagues at the other end. Whoever else might be traveling, there was always some one to carry Jenny's suitcase to taxi or bus, the choice being determined by a confidential "I'm rich today, Jenkins," or "I'm down to my last bob."

Today the bus had it and became very soon a kind of family coach, the conductor and passengers uniting to tell the youngest Miss Chevening all the local news.

The recital continued to the gates of Fendon Edge, where the youngest Miss Chevening was put off to a chorus of hearty good-bys. She had learned among other things that there were to be gay doings up at Hillcroft very soon, Miss Hazel King being home from a cruise with a party of friends. Not that the town was likely to see the right side of the visitors' money, even to so much as a pint of beer, for the Kings kept a bar, it was said, in their very house and served you over the counter as if it might be the "Lion." "And them with no license, miss, you may be bound. It's not right, that it's not."

Jenny, storing up this item for use at the next cocktail party, where she thought it would go down rather well, did not show by her innocent face that she was capable of such depravity.

"Good Lord, they've sent for you to join the confusion, have they?" exclaimed Eleanor.

"Sent for me? How do you mean—sent?"

"What, you don't know? Miles and Audrey have got themselves engaged, my dear, and the whole household is cooing like a dam' dovecote. I wonder they didn't telegraph you. I do, really."

Eleanor's tone and smile were superior, but Jenny was too much engrossed with the news to trouble about anything so usual, and raced indoors in search of merrier company.

Her arrival was opportune perhaps for every one concerned, for the excitement of the morning had produced an inevitable sense of anti-climax, and the Jennys of this world are an excellent foil on such occasions.

Audrey, having worked all the afternoon on Pauline's designs and torn up most of them in disgust, had tumbled into the bath, and was now in her room, alternately dressing and scribbling a note to Jenny, when the latter burst open the door and fell upon her.

Jenny was in no two minds about the engagement, whoever the man in the case might be. She approved of it on principle, and of young Audrey for having taken the bit in her teeth, as she put it, waltzing her round and round the room, till the pair of them fell exhausted in their tracks.

"Now tell me all, sweet one," said Jenny. "You don't really mean to marry old Miles?"

"I do," said the witness in a firm voice.

"Good lor! Without a spot of practice even? But I mean to say, what a waste!" exclaimed Jenny. "When did it happen? What did he say? How did you break it to the family, because of course I'm one up on you there. I can always do it by telephone."

Audrey ignored the first part of the questionnaire, and gave the breakfast table scene with a few suitable additions and variations. It went well, Jenny storing it up word for word to pass on to her intimates in town and thus start a vogue, one of her many accomplishments, she said modestly. But she was still concerned with her cousin's lack of enterprise, and at last she said:

"Look me in the eye and tell me how many times you've been kissed—pre-Miles, of course, I mean."

"Hundreds," admitted the witness, breaking down and having to be helped from the court.

"What, not once?" translated Jenny in a scandalized tone. "But my poor lass, what have you been doing with your time? Why, I always thought an art school was a perfect hotbed. . . ."

"Sorry, your honor, but I never was much of a kisser."

"O, neither am I, if it comes to that, but being a kissee is an altogether different matter," said Jenny reasonably. "I believe in experience and competition, and besides, you know, it is simply marvelous for trade in our business. My fiancé's send me lots of customers. Of course they come in the beginning wearing a nasty look, but I sell them the most stunning hats at almost cost price [ten and six more than anybody else, in fact], and then, as soon as the engagement is safely off, they think how wonderful I am and they're mine for life."

"Shall I give you your going away hat, young Audrey?" she said.

"O, father!"

Audrey's voice held a startled note. Going away? The words had caught her almost like a blow, so that she wanted to shrink from them and hide. To go away from the safety and permanence of Fendon Edge, to leave all this? It seemed impossible that she could ever face it; but there was Miles, and her love for him rushed in upon her like a tide carrying her doubts away.

"I'm glad I'm not going far," she said, in sudden confidence to her peer. "I think I'll draw one of those plaques to go on this door: 'Audrey Chevening slept here from —— to ——.'"

"Or with," supplemented Jenny inevitably, but Audrey did not even hear. She was continuing in a rush:

"Do you remember when I first came here, Jen?"

"No, I was probably teething."

Audrey laughed, but somewhere down the corridor of her memory she seemed to see a small but far from teething Jenny catching her by the bare knees and pulling her to this very floor, while a voice scolded: "Behave yourself, you naughty girl. Miss Audrey isn't used to your rough ways," and her own voice cried in passionate denial, "Yes, I am, yes, I am!" It was only a momentary picture; it flashed and was gone again, the presence of the grown Jenny bringing a rush of merrier ones to fill its place.

"But how did you happen to come home this evening?" she exclaimed, seeing the miracle for the first time. "Did Aunt Anne ring you or something?"

Expression Is Important in Facial Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Women are heard to say things like this:

"O, it is easy enough to be charming and beautiful when you're young and rich and haven't any serious responsibilities." Or:

"Well, why shouldn't she be lovely and all that? It's all she has to do!"

There's a lot of difference between having just a pretty face and a beautiful face. What set me on the track of this subject today was meeting a woman who hasn't any of the things in the way of money, ease, time, and freedom from responsibility, and yet whose face and company are rare treats.

This woman even has a bodily defect. She suffered as a child with a form of paralysis which left her somewhat crippled. But I think, if you were to ask any of her friends who among their group they'd vote the loveliest, her name would be shouted aloud first. She has done lovely things with her face. I mean, although she is nearing forty, her skin really is luscious, and what she hasn't learned about makeup for her particular skin and coloring is simply an expert's business. Behind it there is that rare spirit to add great beauty.

Other women might have been made bitter by this woman's handicaps. But I doubt if any one ever caught her with a long face or woebegone expression. But she tells that she went about this cultivation fairly deliberately. She thought she would have to perfect her skin and hair, keep her nails in exquisite shape, and also that she had better make herself agreeable in order that she would have a social side to her life.

Well, she certainly has accomplished it. And that's my little lesson for today to those of us who are inclined to think the other fellow gets all the breaks.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Another way to a man's heart: Provide him with a good pine soap, one that's got a really piney tang instead of the distressing suggestion of the odor of tar that creeps into some. There's just something about the perfume of the great outdoors that appeals to the big strong creatures.

Not that women don't like pine, too; some are crazy about it. And when it's nice it can be very nice.

For all who like soaps scented with pine we can recommend an elegant one that came to our attention recently. By some miracle it costs only a few cents a cake, but it isn't a shoddy product. It's bland as butter, for one thing, and that's a big consideration in this era of chlorined water and naturally dry skins.

Men are crazy about it. Those to whom we distributed a few cakes have been hinting for more. One, who is something of a connoisseur of pine scents, as they're presented in soaps and oils and such, tells us that this is excellent because it isn't strong and harsh—and that's just our feeling about it.

This is a cold cream base soap, by the way, which means that both men and women with sensitive skins will find its cleansing action efficient, but not at all hard on the skin.

This pine soap is definitly a bargain. We'd advise it as a choice for the mothers of youngsters. They'll like it so much they'll probably keep their faces shining without much urging, and its price will fit the most modest budget.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Harold Lloyds Make Dieting a Family Affair

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 5.—[Special.]—Harold Lloyd and his wife, the former Mildred Davis, who used to be his leading woman, are engaged in a diet and weight reducing contest. Mildred has lost 12 pounds. Strangely enough, Harold doesn't tell how much he took off, but unofficially it's reported at 15.

They get up at dawn for several miles of road exercise, all of which is done on a circuit of the walled Lloyd estate in Beverly Hills, after which they do deep breathing exercises together. They keep charts of everything they do.

Lloyd says his idea was to provide his wife with company and keep her reducing routine from becoming tedious, and—just as important—to keep his own weight down to around 180. Lloyd is 42. He always tries to start a picture trained like an athlete, for some of his gags are acrobatic stunts that would be dangerous had he not a trained physique.

"China Seas," in which he is featured, evidently inspired Clark Gable with marine enthusiasm, for as soon as he finishes, which will be in another week, he will fly to Mazatlan, Mexico, to take a small ship and spend his vacation deep sea fishing.

W. S. Van Dyke, the director, and Mrs. Ruth Mannix Van Dyke, whom he married in a recent surprise wedding in New Orleans, are living apart—he here and she in New York—until the interlocutory decree of divorce which Van Dyke obtained from Mrs. Zina Van Dyke, last January, can become final in January, 1936.

Will Rogers, who has sung songs in all his recent pictures, will do a dance in his present rôle "In Old Kentucky." It's a novelty dance taught him by the colored tap star, Bill Robinson.

"Baking the Perfect Cake," a 56-page booklet containing directions and recipes for 48 cakes, frostings, and fillings, along with causes and remedies for cake failures, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 20 cents. By mail, 23 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

There are a few benighted souls left in the world, undoubtedly, who maintain that poached eggs are for invalids and small children too weak or too small to resist. Rather than attempt to convert them it may be more profitable to elaborate on the delights of properly poached eggs [with varied and unusual sauces] for the folks who haven't such decided prejudices.

First a word about the poaching itself. It's really cooking the egg, minus its shell, in either water or steam. The latter is easiest, probably, and turns out more uniformly shaped, delicately cooked eggs, with less trouble. All kinds of egg poachers, made for cooking eggs by steam, now are available, and they turn out eggs in a variety of shapes, as well as being made to accommodate various numbers.

Poaching eggs directly in water or other liquid may be done in one of three ways. Your choice, mesdames!

1. Slide the eggs into a shallow pan of boiling, salted water [one tablespoon salt for every quart] and remove the pan from the heat. Cover, and let the eggs remain in the hot water until as firm as desired. Lift out with a skimmer, trim, and serve.

2. Cook just as the first method, only add a tablespoon of vinegar and a teaspoon of salt instead of the salt called for above. Both the salt and the vinegar, you see, have the ability more quickly to congeal the egg white, thus keeping it more shapely.

3. Use a rather large, deep pan for this method, and the proportions of vinegar and salt called for in method No. 2. When the water is boiling, stir it vigorously to make a cone-shaped hollow in the center, and drop the egg into the hollow. Continue stirring to keep the water in circular motion. Eggs poached in this manner are attractively shaped, but only one may be done at a time.

Now for some of these unusual and interesting sauces that go over the perfectly poached eggs on their bed of toast, rusk, fluffy rice, spaghetti, hominy, or what have you.

HORSERADISH SAUCE.

3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup water or meat stock
Salt, white pepper
1-3 cup well-drained horseradish

CURRY SAUCE.

2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons flour
1 to 1½ teaspoons curry powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water or stock

Melt the butter and slightly cook the onion in it. Blend with the flour, curry powder, and salt, and add the water or stock. Stir until well cooked.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is something smart in a sunback dress for active sports. It will do as well for spectator sports, for a most attractive little cape becomingly and charmingly buttons onto the dress. The patch pockets on the skirt, besides being useful, lend a smart air to a dress of this kind. An oyster tone, linen finished cotton with brown bone buttons made the original dress.

The pattern, No. 3184, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

PARIS TODAY

By MAY BIRKHEAD.

PARIS.—Each spring the racing season brings the Rothschilds into the limelight. Not that they are ever very much lost to view, for they can hardly help being noticed. They have, since the days of Napoleon, been identified with large scale banking here. When the first railroads were built in France they became heavily interested in the Northern railway—Chemin de Fer du Nord—and the late Baron Edmond de Rothschild, who was president of that railway for many years, has been succeeded in that post by his son Maurice.

Since Edmond died last November, Baron Edouard is the titular head of the Rothschild clan, who are famous for their solidarity—which does not mean, particularly in their case, solid ivory.

None of the Rothschilds has ever been so much identified with the turf as Baron Edouard. In his magnificent stables at Chantilly—the French Newmarket, or Churchill Downs—he always keeps not fewer than 100 thoroughbreds ready for the many racing events that go on the year 'round in France, but reach their zenith in Paris in May and June.

When in mourning he runs his horses under the name of his trainer, Lucien Robert. And on Saturdays, being an orthodox Jew, he does not race at all. None of the events, however, in which his crack Brantôme are to figure this year, will take place on Saturdays. This superb animal was unbeaten as a 2 year old, won a number of victories last year as a 3 year old. Many experts look for him to confirm his promise this year of being the greatest horse of the twentieth century.

Brantôme's nine victories on the turf have brought his owner over $100,000 in prizes. British racing circles are somewhat aroused by the prospect that Brantôme may compete for the Ascot Gold cup.

Padleys, and their baby to come from their London home in June, and then the Bosworths may return later to England with them.

Mrs. Helen Walton is one of those who will be missing from the concert audience this evening, but she will enjoy all of the festivity in London today. Mrs. Walton went abroad several weeks ago to visit her sister, Mrs. Chalmers McGuffie. According to the plans made before leaving here, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer and her daughter, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, will be other Chicagoans in London today. And still others who expect to see the ceremonies that will live always in memory are Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine; Mrs. Edmund B. Bartlett and her daughter, Laura, and Mrs. E. W. Spencer.

Marion Hedly Engaged to Robert W. Buckley.

Congratulations galore will be in store for Miss Marion Hedly this noon when she, with Mrs. Lennox Nairn, entertains the directors of the Women's Western Golf association at luncheon at the Knollwood club. At a buffet supper party last evening in the country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Hedly, at Libertyville, announcement was made of her engagement to Robert W. Buckley.

The news did not come as a complete surprise, for Mr. Buckley has been one of Miss Hedly's favorite escorts for several months. Miss Hedly attended Northwestern university after graduating from the Francis Parker school. Since then she has taken part in the Service club revues and studied voice. In California, where she spent the last winter, she was heard over the radio. Mr. Buckley is a Bostonian by birth, but he grew up in Providence, and now is engaged in the advertising business in Chicago. He is a graduate of Brown university, where he was a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. Later he attended the school of business administration at Harvard university. Miss Hedly's cousin, Miss Betty Stahelin of Detroit, was here for the party last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Canby of Barrington today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Mary Canby Mercer, to Carl Dautel, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Crosby of Glencoe. No wedding plans have been made. Mrs. Mercer was divorced recently from Lewis Pennock Mercer, to whom she was secretly married in November, 1932. Mr. Dautel is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

"Mary of Scotland" Opening to Draw Society.

The Erlanger theater will be thronged with fashionables tonight for the opening of Helen Hayes in "Mary of Scotland," the closing offering of the New York Theater guild. Miss Hayes, who in private life is Mrs. Charles MacArthur, has many friends in Chicago, to say nothing of several "in-laws," notably Telfer MacArthur and Alfred MacArthur, her husband's brothers, and their wives. Tonight after the show Miss Peggy Hambleton will give a supper party at her home for Miss Hayes.

A bridge benefit party of interest is that to be given this afternoon in the Palmer house for the maintenance fund of the Woman's Symphony orchestra. It is expected that the party will enable the symphony to close its ninth season without a deficit.

Among those who have taken tables for an afternoon of bridge are Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Edward Morris, Mrs. John C. Carroll, Mrs. Ernest J. Kruetgen, Mrs. Henry P. Vanzwoll, Mrs. Gerhardt F. Meyne, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. William W. Dixon, Mrs. William Sherman Hay, and Mrs. William E. Vogelback.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson Revell are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter April 26 at the Highland Park hospital. Mrs. Revell is the former Josephine Faxon. The baby has been named Joy.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

BAD BIDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Conservative made a small slam in spades in yesterday's hand. That gives them a total, to date, of 210 points below the line [they had thirty points on the score], and 1,400 points above the line. The Aggressives have 400 points above the line, and are game in with 100 points. Mr. Conservative dealt today's hand and passed.

Mr. Aggressive [East] also passed, and Mrs. Conservative [South] opened the bidding with one diamond. So far, so good.

At this point Mrs. Aggressive [West] made the first bad bid. She overcalled with one heart. "Why is that a bad bid?" I can hear you asking. "She has a perfectly good heart suit." That's just the trouble. The heart suit is not perfectly good. Being vulnerable, she may get set badly at one heart doubled, if North holds as many as four trumps over her. She gets forced in the diamond suit right away. The fact that the hands are so distributed that East and West can make three hearts—even four hearts against any but the best defense—has no bearing on the matter. Let's put it this way. If you overcall on a four card suit, or a weak five card suit, and are set anywhere from one to five tricks, doubled—that is an unnecessary loss, which you can never retrieve. If your overcall results in a game, or a part score for your side, you would probably obtain the same result, if you passed, or took some other action, such as doubling. Therefore, if Mrs. Aggressive feels she cannot restrain herself on this hand—and she cannot be censured too much, for she has strength in both the majors—she should double. It is very difficult for East and West to get together on this hand anyway, due to the interference of North and South.

North, over the one heart overcall, made the normal response of one spade. East ventured two hearts, and now South contributed another bad bid. She bid three diamonds.

Conscious of the fact that she had opened in third hand position, South was anxious to show her partner that she had "a real bid." This destroys the whole purpose of my bidding. There is no need to confirm your third or fourth hand bid unless you would make the same confirmation had you opened in first or second hand position. South should, and would normally, leave it up to her partner to take any further action on the hand.

West passed the three diamond bid, and Mr. Conservative bid four clubs. East passed, heartily regretting the fact that North and South weren't playing the hand at three diamonds. South then went into a huddle with herself about the prospects of game, and fortunately came to the sound conclusion that possibly Mr. Conservative wouldn't even make four clubs on the hand.

She was perfectly correct. Mr. Aggressive opened the jack of hearts, and North immediately tried to get rid of his losing heart on the king of diamonds. To his surprise, and disappointment, West put a small trump on the trick. He overtrumped, but subsequently had to lose two clubs and a heart. He also failed to guess the position of the queen of spades, and lost two spade tricks. Result: a net loss of 250 points, giving the Aggressives 650 points above the line.

The Aggressives immediately began to bicker above the heart game which they claimed they had lost. "The hand can be made three ways," said Mr. Aggressive firmly. "If you set up the diamond suit; if you get a spade lead, or if you guess the location of the queen of trumps. Why don't you bid your hands when you get them? No wonder we're losing."

"That's bridge," interposed Mr. Conservative, philosophically. "I wish I had a nickel for every game I failed to bid when I was first learning."

Salvation Army to End Jubilee in Dance Hall

Holds Service Tonight in One of Birthplaces.

For sentimental reasons the Salvation Army of Chicago tonight will hold the final celebration of its golden jubilee in a dance hall. The old Princess Rink hall, at 1519 West Madison street, was one of the Chicago birthplaces of Salvationism in 1885.

The Army gave it up in 1906 for new quarters and for the first time in twenty-nine years the hall tonight will vibrate to gospel hymns instead of the usual three a week jaz shindigs. Not the traditional plaint of tambourines either will be the musical fare tonight, after fifty years locally of the singing army, but rather the expert temple band of 1935 efficiency. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock after a supper for soldiers and veterans of the temple corps in the temple, 1512 West Madison street.

A thousand members of the army packed the temple to the window ledges yesterday afternoon for another jubilee observance. It was devoted largely to the cheerful accounts of hardships of the first few years of the Army in Chicago, when the bulk of the native citizenry was split on the question of whether the uniformed praying-singers should be put into an insane asylum or into jail.

Col. William Evans, 75 years old, the midwestern organizer who arrived here in 1885 with $30 to begin his work of lifting "souls from the miry pit," told of the brick tossing, organ stealing, stove upsetting raids of a pioneer variety of Chicago hoodlums.

He was reminded, he said, by the presence of the Scandinavian Songsters at yesterday's program, of the bodyguard of Scandinavian women who "marched Brigadier Edwin Gay home every night after services." This became necessary, he related, after Gay, "a little fellow," lost his concertina by theft and was many times set upon by rowdies. Other persecutions of his early days in other cities were the loosing of pigeons over the audience and the dropping of stuffed male dummies from skylights into the laps of worshippers.

Other speakers were Judge Joseph Burke, representing Mayor Kelly; Lewis E. Myers, chairman of the Chicago Salvation army board, and Mrs. Charles King Corsant, chairman of the women's division.

Mr. Corsant and Commissioner William A. McIntyre urged at the present greatest need of the army a $150,000 fund to provide a new emergency refuge for women and children.

Let Common Sense Solve Your Child's Eating Difficulties

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There is no one place in child management where ordinary common sense is more needed than in connection with eating.

Some pediatricians report that half, others that three-quarters, of the little patients who are brought to them are suffering from this appetite problem—anorexia, they call it.

These doctors take it seriously. In spite of the fact that in most cases it is an utterly unnecessary problem, they must take it seriously because it affects the child physically, in the first place. And because it affects him as a person—psychologically—in the second place. And that latter includes the matter of the change this difficulty often makes in the relationship between the mother and her child.

We have a comprehensive leaflet, "Curing Eating Difficulties" which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Derby Crowd Feels His Greatness.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—Simultaneously with the crowning of the Kentucky Derby winner each year comes an uncanny, yet definite, feeling that the winner will or will not become the champion of the year.

Cavalcade, Gallant Fox, Reigh Count, and Bubbling Over all left no doubt in the minds of those who watched them triumph that they were budding champions. This was not so when Broker's Tip, Clyde Van Dusen, Whiskery, and Burgoo King won the Derby. Even in victory they did not resemble champions.

Visits Famous Sire.

There was a ring of sincerity in every congratulation which Owner William Woodward received. He had come alone to the Derby. His wife, son, and four daughters heard the news of victory in their home in New York.

Owner Woodward was up early today and soon was en route to Paris, Ky., where he is spending the day at Arthur B. Hancock's Claiborne farm on which Omaha was bred and foaled.

He went there not only to visit Mr. Hancock, but also to see Gallant Fox, sire of Omaha, which he also owns, and to see Sir Gallahad III., the sire of Gallant Fox. These noted horses occupy adjoining stables at the Claiborne breeding place and they probably wondered why Omaha didn't ride over with Mr. Woodward and tell them in his own way how he had won the Derby.

Jocky Club Head.

Breeding and racing good horses has long been the hobby of Mr. Woodward, who is chairman of the Jocky club in New York. He was born into the banking business. His ancestors established and for many years operated the Hanover bank of New York City. Mr. Woodward succeeded an uncle as the president of the institution. Some time previous he had served in the position of secretary to Joseph H. Choate while the latter was ambassador to the court of St. James.

Later the Hanover bank and the Central Trust company of New York consolidated into the Central Hanover Trust company and Mr. Woodward was made the chairman of the executive board, a position which he now holds. He owns Belair stud, one of the most noted thoroughbred horse nurseries in Maryland. He inherited the place from the same uncle whom he succeeded as president of the Hanover bank.

He breeds many horses at Belair stud, others in Virginia. But by a strange coincidence, the two greatest that ever sported his silks—Gallant Fox and Omaha—were bred in Kentucky.

A half dozen years ago Woodward, Hancock, Marshall Field and a few others formed a syndicate and went to Europe where they purchased the sire, Sir Gallahad III. They paid $350,000 for the horse and brought him to America.

He proved to be one of the greatest sires in this country. Among his first crop of sons and daughters was Gallant Fox, one of the outstanding champions the American turf has produced. The mighty Sir Gallahad's offspring already have won more than $750,000 in stakes and purses in this country, almost half of it being accounted for by Gallant Fox.

He Was Experimenting.

After his whirlwind sweep to the championship as a 3 year old, Gallant Fox was retired. He joined Sir Gallahad III. at Claiborne stud and in his first crop of sons and daughters was the colt Omaha, winner of yesterday's Derby.

Omaha's dam was Flambino, a daughter of Wrack, noted distance

ALL THE KING'S HOSSES RUN, BUT NOT FAST ENOUGH

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—A frustrated old gentleman is King George V., the bearded monarch for whom the British empire is throwing probably the greatest lawn party in history to celebrate his quarter century on the throne.

Head of the world's mightiest empire, beloved of his people, he has been denied the thrill of watching one of his horses charge past the finish post first in the Derby.

For 25 years it's been a favorite dream of his. He would, declare his horse owner intimates, give five square miles of decorated streets and all the "God Save Our King" signs in London just for the pleasure of leading a horse into the winner's enclosure at Epsom Downs.

What! No Speed?

It seems like a mighty little thing to deny a man like the king, yet there's nothing anybody can do about it. The king's horses, once they get out on a race track, look like anybody else's to a rival jocky. If they're not fast enough to win, that's the king's tough luck.

It isn't as though he hadn't tried hard enough. He's had his heart and soul in the game ever since he fell heir to the famous Sandringham stud upon the death of his father, Edward VII. He's even been called the sportsman monarch. Yet he hasn't won a "Darby," and they are beginning to fear now that he never will.

Scuttle Only Winner.

Only one of the king's horses ever has won a so-called British classic. His Scuttle, a delicate filly, gave the royal stables a brief taste of glory by capturing the One Thousand Guineas in 1928.

The worst of it is that George's father was simply shot with luck, winning three Derbies in his lifetime and all sorts of "classics." England used to go wild when the beaming Edward VII. led in his winners at Epsom. Two of them, Persimmon and Diamond Jubilee, won both the Derby and St. Leger.

On the day of Edward's death a filly, Witch of the Air, carried the royal colors to victory at Kempton Park. His last words were said to have been expressions of delight at the triumph. In all he won more than $730,000 in stake money.

Winners Cost Money.

With a forebear like that, the failure of the present king to put across a few good ones has been all the more painful. True that, before his accession, George was strictly a sailor and possibly thought a horse's fetlock was used to fasten the stable door. Even that, though, scarcely can acocunt for the decline of Sandringham.

The main trouble, they say [seriously], is that King George cannot afford to spend much money on his stable. Merely maintaining a string of 17 horses, with trainers and jockies and attendants, is a strain on the royal purse without making any expensive purchases. Only occasionally have efforts been made to strengthen the strain, and always without success.

Battling Butcher Boy of Italy Must Have His Joke

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. CONTE DI SAVOIA, May 5.—The section of Rome known as Trastevere, a popular district lying on the right bank of the Tiber river where, according to tradition, conquered tribes of Volscians from around Velletri settled, gives the Italian Golden Gloves team its walloping and jovial light heavyweight, Mario Anniball. Mario will be matched against Joe Bauer or Clinton Bridges in the fights with the Chicagoland Golden Gloves team in Chicago May 22.

Anniball is the life of the party when he is not hard at work, and he does practice as hard as he plays practical jokes on his fellow boxers. He is sure he is going to win. Today he jumped out of the ring after several rounds of sparring and said: "Did you see that? They won't be able to stop me in Chicago."

Mario Is Confident.

Mario is confident, and he may be, for he has a cool head in the ring and a wicked right jab.

Being 22 years old he has been boxing for the last five years. He has been in sixty-five encounters and has won fifty-four of them, with two draws and five losses.

He relates how he was timid and uncertain of himself some years ago as a young boy.

"Once I was playing in the street with the gang over there in Trastevere and got into a quarrel with one boy. The result was I got a good sound licking and went home with a couple of eyes all banged up," said Mario. "Well, that made me so mad I wanted to get even.

Mario Gets Even.

"I began to take boxing lessons from another kid I knew, and practiced for several months. Finally, when I thought I was pretty good, I went back to find the boy who beat me up a few months before, and we had it out again in a bout in which

HE'S A CUT-UP

MARIO ANNIBALI.

I knocked him out and since that day I have been boxing," said Anniball.

Anniball entered the Milan tournament this year as a contender for the light heavyweight championship, but did not reach the finals. His showing, however, during the two weeks of severe training in Rome easily earned him a berth on the Chicago team.

Works for Butcher.

When he is not boxing Annibali works in a butcher's shop and his job of slinging heavy quarters of beef has helped to develop the big shoulder muscles he possesses.

Most of his amateur boxing has been done in Italy, but he has also met champions of other countries. He considers that his hardest scrap was in Zurich, Switzerland, a year ago when he stacked up against the German light heavyweight champion, Heinrich Bose, whom he beat on points.

This Is the Time to Buy

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—The Cubs arrived here late this afternoon from Philadelphia, where they spent three days studying the historic aspects of the Quaker City without being moved to play as much as one inning of baseball.

The third scheduled game, which would have been the Cubs' 1935 eastern opener, was frozen out. Decision was made at 2 o'clock, which is the earliest hour a ball premises can be entered in Pennsylvania. This enabled the squad to go to a station three blocks from the park and catch a train for New York.

Today—The Giants!

Tomorrow afternoon the Cubs will meet the league leading Giants in the first game of a three game series. The Giants have been going along right merrily and are not as likely to be askeered of a little weather as the tail-end Phillies.

Today's postponement gave the Cubs their fifth straight day of idleness, including the travel date used to get them to Philadelphia. On four of these days Larry French was scheduled to pitch and it was said that Larry would pitch the eastern opener if it took all summer. There has been a change in this plan.

Lon Warneke will go after his fourth victory of the season tomorrow. It will have been just a week since Lon first went after his fourth triumph. He started the 12 to 11 Cub game last Monday, but was knocked out before the now historic brawl began. Lon's record was saved when the Cubs made the seventh of the ten runs they scored in the eighth.

Lead Is in Sight.

The Cubs enter New York one and a half games behind the Giants. It is mathematically possible for the Cubs to go into first place during their three day stay here.

After Warneke has had his whack at the Giants, French again will become the nominee. He will pitch Tuesday's game and Bill Lee will pitch the final. This will put Tex Carleton up to pitch the opener of the four game series in Boston next Thursday. Tex hasn't made a start since he participated in the first of the Cub brawl carnivals in Cincinnati a week ago Friday.

McCarthy, Yank Manager, Continues to Improve

New York, May 5.—(AP)—Continued improvement was noted today in the condition of Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees. McCarthy, who is suffering from influenza, probably will be up and about in a week, his physicians said.

Laffoon Has to Be Good— He's from Golf Country

BY KY LAFFOON.

[This is the first of a series of articles on golf by Ky Laffoon, the leading money winner for the last two years, who is now professional at the Northmoor Country club in Highland Park.]

Golf as a profession was to me the most natural thing in the world, for I took to it like a duck takes to water before my teens, and there were plenty of other ducks in the neighborhood of my pond to inspire me. One of them was Ed Dudley, now the professional at Bobby Jones' Augusta National course. Still another was a tall boy from Joplin, Mo., named Horton Smith, now stationed at Oak Park. As short as Horton is tall was a Little Rock boy named Paul Runyan, who last year won the national professional championship. Another neighbor was Dick Metz, then at Arkansas City, Kas., and now at A. D. Lasker's private course in Lake Forest, and there was a kid named Harold McSpaden from down that way who won himself a lot of money in the recent California tournament season.

It can be seen from the above that there was a golfer or two in this junction of the corners of Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas, but it took one of them—the author—quite a while to discover that there are a lot of factors that go to make up this game of golf.

Gets Job as Pro at 15.

I was born in Zinc, Ark., on Dec. 23, 1908, but the family moved to Miami, Okla., while I was still quite young and settled there. Like Runyan, Smith and all the rest of us from down there I caddied and played at every opportunity, from the time I was 12 until I was 15. It was in my 15th year, during a three month school vacation, that I became the youngest pro in the game, taking a job for the summer as professional at Columbus, Kas.

One of my first models was Ed Dudley, largely because of his easy, flowing swing, and because of my admiration for that swing I was led into making one of the big mistakes of my career, one which it required several years to correct.

That error was in thinking that good golfers are born, and not made. It was a purely personal theory, and not founded on any advice from Dudley. It took me years of play, including tournament competition, to realize the value of practice, and lots of it.

Different Players, Different Styles.

An important fact overlooked by many average golfers who are just taking up the game seriously is the matter of adjustment of fundamentals. These latter form the groundwork of any sound golf game, and even though they may not be entirely neglected, they are not always handled properly, either through the fault of the pupil or through inattention by his instructor.

Certain golfers must observe the fundamentals in a different manner than others, depending upon their physique and temperament. I finally tried this in my own case, after I had dropped out of golf for a year's study at Northeastern Oklahoma Junior college in Miami. I practiced all types of swings, grips and stances at every opportunity, seeking to get together a game suited to my own build and frame of mind.

Incidentally, as far as success in tournament play among professionals goes, this is not sufficient, as I discovered in my first appearances in big league competition, because of the matter of pressure, particularly for a young player in the closing stages of a tournament.

Shorter Swing Does It.

It was because of this pressure that I believe I made what was the most valuable discovery of my career. I had gone well in the first round of the Los Angeles open of 1933, but was sour off the tees from there on, spraying my drives to all corners of the lot. I became so disgusted that I decided that for the remainder of the tournament I would shorten my swing. I realized then that I was overswinging, as so many golfers do, and decided to shorten it so that the club would come back slightly above the imaginary horizontal line crossing the shoulders at the back.

I found that my wrist was uncocking too soon, but on trying the modified swing I obtained the direction and control which had just prior to that been sadly lacking. I venture to say that 90 per cent of the average golfers of this country could gain the too often elusive quality of accuracy by trying to discover whether their fault is in overswinging and shortening the swing correspondingly. A swing which goes below that horizontal is generally too difficult to control.

The second article of this series will appear in tomorrow's Tribune.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

As a south side hero John Whitehead, who pitches but doesn't talk about it, is growing bigger and better. The freshman from the Texas league swelled up into the proportions of a real star yesterday when, in the course of the fourth successive triumph of his career in the big show, he compiled a four hit shutout against the Washington Senators. Meanwhile his White Sox pals accomplished enough on attack to triumph by 4 to 0 for their eighth success in the last nine starts.

Because percentage figures are peculiar, the 15,000 who witnessed the silent Texan's whitewashing feat didn't have the added pleasure of seeing the giddy south side athletes move from second place into the league lead. The Sox have won two more and lost only one more than the pace-making Cleveland Indians, which on a victory and loss basis is a half game advantage. But on percentage the Chicagoans are trailing the leaders by 17 points.

Sox Pick on Burke.

The Sox assured themselves of a successful afternoon by doing a lot of heavy work while Bob Burke, the Joliet southpaw, was among those present. Slat-like Bob was in action only during the first two innings. That was enough for the Sox and too much for the hopes of the Senators. In that brief time Burke was assessed for the day's quota of runs by such fellows as Rip Radcliff, Manager Jim Dykes, Luke Sewell, and Jack Hayes. The latter pair, being members of the Washington club's alumni association, naturally didn't feel badly about what they'd accomplished.

Get a Man to Third.

After Burke had been properly wrapped up and dispatched to the clubhouse, the Sox went into retirement, so far as hitting was concerned. It may have been due to a slight attack of dizziness due to the rapidity with which fresh hurlers arrived and departed. Following Burke came one Henry Coppola, an Albany rookie, who could be frisked for only one hit in three innings. Then Ed Chicago Linke turned out two hitless sessions. Finally Leon Pettit came along for a one inning stretch. He surrendered one hit. All these shifts were made because the Washington manager had

GOLDEN GLOVES SQUAD GATHERS ON WEDNESDAY

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While Chicago is waiting news of the arrival of the liner Conte di Savola in New York harbor, on which is the squad of Italian amateur boxers, a group of boys from Chicagoland who will meet these Italian champions at the Stadium May 22 today are making plans to leave for their training site at the Illinois Athletic club. These veteran boxers are more immediately concerned with impending training bouts which will determine the list of the lucky eight who will defend American ring honors, gained in four previous international Golden Gloves tournaments.

Chicago will have a splendid team. It is well balanced. The boys not only possess boxing ability, but most of them can hit with power. All are experienced.

They Are Champions.

In this group are 11 winners from the intercity bouts against New York last March; four National A. A. U. champions, and three boys who were victorious in the international bout with Poland last May, which Chicago won, 7 to 1.

Chicago doesn't need to be told of the prowess of this team, for twice last winter Chicago jammed the Stadium to see them. And Chicago again will fill the Stadium when eight of them fight the Italians.

Excellent seats remain unsold, but this statement probably won't be true in another week. At least 20,000 are expected to attend the internationals, and if you wish to be numbered in that crowd on the night of May 22, visit The Tribune Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street or in the lobby of Tribune Tower and get your tickets today. Mail orders are being received by the Ticket Manager, Room 530, Tribune Tower.

Seats are priced at $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30.

Chicagoans Report Wednesday.

The American squad will report to Johnny Behr, head coach, Wednesday afternoon at the Illinois Athletic club. Behr will supervise training, and he will be assisted by Fred Caserio, former Golden Glove champion, who, despite his Italian blood, or perhaps because of it, is more than anxious to see Chicago whip the European invaders.

Perhaps no members of the Chicago team is more determined to win than Patsy Urso, who, like Caserio, is of Italian extraction. Urso is the flyweight champion of Chicagoland and to win that honor in the finals last March 8 he defeated Jesse Levels of Cleveland, the 1934 champion. In 1934 Urso won his intercity bout in New York, but since he has lost to Poland's flyweight and to Georgie Coyle, the 1935 New York flyweight champion.

In his letter accepting an invitation to train for the Italian bouts, Patsy pointed out he not only wants to whip an Italian to show the boys from Italy that American Italians are skilful with the gloves, but he wishes to redeem this record in major competition. First, however, Urso again must show his superiority to Jesse Levels in the I. A. C. training matches.

Several Other Italians.

Chicago undoubtedly will have one or two more Italian boys on its team May 22. There's Johnny Brown, whose name is John Marcelli but who adopted the name of his foster parents, in the 118 pound class. Johnny will meet Roderigo Sergo of Fiume, if he comes through the training successfully. And Andy Scrivani, Chicago's featherweight champion, is another American of Italian extraction. Andy or Al Nettlow will meet Giuseppe Farfanelli of Perugia.

Coach Behr will waste no time getting the boys into training. A light gymnasium workout is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon and Coach Caserio will have the boys out on the road Thursday morning. In particular the team must consider the question of weight, for no weight allowance is permitted in international competition. In the intercity bouts one pound additional was allowed in each weight division.

Expect Record Reception.

Richard Lenihan of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, which is assisting in the plans for the civic reception to the Italian team in Garfield park next Sunday evening, expects to have a complete list of all groups participating in the parade of honor within a few days. This parade on Madison street will precede the addresses of welcome and entertainment in Garfield park which will be climaxed when the Italian boxing champions are officially introduced to Chicago.

Lenihan is certain the reception will eclipse the outpouring of citizens which greeted the Irish champions at the same site in 1933. That crowd, estimated at 200,000, set an all-time record.

HEBERT NAMED MAROON VARSITY TENNIS COACH

Walter Hebert, member of the 1928 and 1929 tennis team, has been appointed varsity coach at the University of Chicago, Director Nelson Metcalf announced yesterday. Hebert succeeds A. A. Stagg Jr., who resigned to become athletic director and football coach at Susquehanna university.

Max Davidson, Maroon captain of 1934, and conference singles champion, as well as a member of the championship doubles team, has been appointed assistant varsity coach and freshman coach.

In the Wake of the News

OMAHA INTERVIEW.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5.—[Special.]—Omaha, winner of the 61st Kentucky Derby, proved in rare good spirits despite the raw, dismal weather as we wended our way through workmen clearing up post-classic litter to the Belair stud barn of William Woodward at Churchill Downs this morning.

The son of Gallant Fox had just finished a mild canter and was pulling at a briar pipe as The Wake came on the scene. He was attired in a white sweater with red dots over a sweat shirt with heavy pantaloons and rough weather boots. We looked around for telltale remnants of a celebration, but there was none. "Where are the empty bottles?" we inquired.

"Please remember that I am owned by a banker and am the son of a former Derby winner," replied Omaha in mock seriousness. "Yes, Wake, we did crook our forelegs a few times last night, it was cold, you know, but that information goes only for you. It was just a brief break in training. I have serious thoughts for the future with dad's racing reputation to uphold."

"Well, how was the Derby, anyway?" we ventured.

"Somewhat easier than I had anticipated," replied Omaha. "Despite the track, a bit dull, I had expected a slightly faster pace. So when I found myself in the bunch and full of run, I whinnied to Smoky [Saunders], who skilfully had kept me out of trouble on the first turn, to let me go. He nudged me and that was why I moved up so fast on the backstretch.

"I really took the lead before I had planned to, but then you remember I was running second and third in my stakes last year and I didn't want any one to outfinish me.

"As I told you before the race, there was one chap I wanted particularly to beat and that was Today, because of the old rivalry between our dads back in 1930."

"Anything behind you which might reverse the result next time out?" we asked.

"Hardly from my viewpoint," said Omaha slowly. "Most of the fellows came over last night to offer congratulations. Nellie Flag didn't come, but she's a good sport and sent over a single red rose. Said she'd like to join us, but doubted the propriety of a young lady coming without a chaperon.

"Roman Soldier, however, was not satisfied and wants another crack at me. He thought he might have won with better luck and better position in the early stages. Balaski, his jocky, confirmed that opinion. Still I had something left had his challenge been keener at the end. As for the future, I think this race will do me good, while Roman Soldier raced early and should have been at top form. Nellie Flag suffered poor racing luck, but I didn't think it could have changed the result."

"How about going on for a record such as Gallant Fox had?"

"Well, that's possible. I'm well engaged and will try for everything that Owner Woodward and Trainer Fitzsimmons permit. To equal Gallant Fox's winnings of $308,275 in one year, highest ever recorded, probably is impossible, because stakes were more valuable in 1930. He took the Wood Memorial, Derby, Preakness, Belmont, Dwyer, Arlington Classic, Travers, Saratoga Cup, Lawrence Realization, and Jocky Club Gold cup.

"But even if I duplicated his winning record, I'd not equal his earnings mark. Take the Derby, for instance. It was worth $50,275 in 1930 and $39,525 Saturday. That's what the depression did to stake values, and the New Deal isn't working fast enough, if it's working at all, which I doubt, to catch up with that.

"Didja have a bet on me? I noticed you were undecided between me and Commonwealth in early conversation, but left me out of the money in your final selections."

"No, I stuck to Commonwealth, but Mrs. Wake had a little wager on you."

"That's fine. Give the lady my regards. I'm rather surprised at you, however. You were one of dad's first supporters. Don't make that mistake again." Here Omaha playfully gave us a little nudge that nearly sent us sprawling.

"Here, Mac," Omaha called to a groom, "a little mountain dew for the gentleman. From that bottle in the corner of the tackroom, not the blend stuff I was serving to the mob last night. You won't mind if I don't join you. It wouldn't look so well here in public.

"I'll expect to see you at Washington Park and Chicago if nothing goes wrong with me. Meantime, best wishes, and get yourself even next time I start."

MILDRED II. WINS CHICAGO MODEL YACHT CLUB RACE

James Palmer's 6 meter model yacht Mildred II. won the Chicago Model Yacht club's opening class A race yesterday at the Lief Ericson pool, 51st street and the lake. It was Mildred II.'s first race, and Skipper Palmer sailed the sloop through eight heats to finish with 18 points.

A north-east-to-north breeze drove the seven contestants across the windward and leeward course. Palmer's cousin, Ray Palmer, scored 16 points to take second with his Stag III. George Baron's new sloop Ion, Torgerson's Peggy, and Clark's Coquette had 15 points, Malloy's America 13, and Lippold's Pirouette 13.

Points in yesterday's race will be scored for two series prizes. The race was the first of three in the club's midwest elimination series, which will be continued May 19. Yesterday's places also count toward the Iron cup, the C. M. Y. C. season championship award.

PRINCETON AND MAROON ELEVENS TO MEET IN '37, '38

The University of Chicago will renew football relations with Princeton with games in 1937 and 1938. This was announced yesterday by Nelson Metcalf, Maroons' athletic director. The first game will be played at Stagg field Oct. 16, 1937, and the 1938 game at Princeton, Oct. 15.

The Chicago-Princeton games have been the most famous of the Maroon intersectional contests. Chicago defeated the Tigers, 9 to 0, at Princeton in 1921, in the first game played between a Maroon team and one of the Big Three.

In 1922 Princeton came to Stagg field for the first time and won a 21 to 18 thriller that ranks with the Illinois game of 1924 as the classic of Chicago football. Chicago won from Princeton again in 1929, 15 to 7, in the east, and in the return game on the Midway in 1930, the two teams played to 0 to 0.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Four of the several pros who are making the Chicago district the capital of American professional golf this season—Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Horton Smith of Oak Park, Danny Shute of Westward-Ho, and Ky Laffoon of Northmoor—worked out over the Glen Oak course in an exhibition match yesterday. Although they failed to produce any of the low scoring of which any and all are quite capable, they contributed enough shots to please an enthusiastic gallery of 2,000, who had been admitted without charge.

Cooper, western and state champion, and Smith, president of the Illinois section of the P. G. A., were paired against Shute, 1933 British open titleholder, and Laffoon, low scorer of the 1934 season, but came to no conclusion as far as the match was concerned, winding up even with a mutual best ball of par 73.

Cooper Has Low Medal 76.

Harry took away the purse for the low medal of the day with a 76, followed by Laffoon with a 77, Horton with a 79, and Denny with an 80. The gallery, far more than had been anticipated, had all four players playing hook and slices to avoid accident, and the course was unusually long, due to the heavy rains and poor weather of the last few days.

Individual cards and the best ball record follow:

Olympia Fields Country club finished its week-end inaugural tournament in honor of new members yesterday. The No. 2 course, which was idle Saturday, was pressed into service, but best scoring was done on No. 4. Bill Ferguson, with 37—40—77 over that layout, captured the gross award for the best performance over any course. A round of 42—38—80, over No. 1, gave John Houston second gross prize.

Marum Wins Two Prizes.

Following tabulation of yesterday's scores it was disclosed that E. J. Marum had won two prizes, following his 82—9—73 on No. 3 course as second best net. Marum led in gross Saturday with 44—37—81 on No. 1 course, after having the luck in the draw against William H. Townsend, 42—39—81.

NO. 3 COURSE—F. E. Huff, 81—9—72; E. J. Marum, 82—9—73.

NO. 4 COURSE—Dave Harrington, 81—11—70; Ernie Simmons, 81—10—71.

The Illinois section of the P. G. A. will open its competitive season today with a pro-pro tournament for members at Medinah. The event will be valuable not only in itself, but also because Medinah next Monday will be the scene of the national open qualifying trials for this district. Luncheon will be served at noon, at which time partners and foursomes will be drawn.

PAWTUCKET AND ST. LOUIS TIE, 1-1, IN SOCCER SERIES

Pawtucket, R. I., May 5.—(AP)—The Pawtucket Rangers and the St. Louis Centrals battled through two hours of cup soccer at Coats field this afternoon to a 1 to 1 tie in the second match of the national championship playoff series. Two overtime periods of 15 minutes each, following the regulation 90 minutes of play, failed to break the deadlock.

A week ago the Centrals won the first game, played in St. Louis under floodlight. There is a possibility the third game will be played next Friday under floodlight at Newark, N. J.

Today the Rangers scored first when Captain Walter Dick netted after four minutes in the second regular period. Bill Gonsalves tied the score with a sizzling shot midway in the same period.

"COOL-HEAT"...new unique treatment for STIFF MUSCLES
Muscle (A) due to strain, cold or unusual exertion, feels like a bad bruise. Your nerves telegraph for help. Blood rushes to the distressed spot. But nature needs outside help to supply enough blood to clear up painful congestion quickly.
Minit-Rub is applied to the skin:
1. Its heat-inducing ingredients immediately penetrate to affected parts, quickly causing excess blood to be drawn to the pain area. Thus the congestion is relieved and any poisonous wastes are carried off through the blood vessels (B). (Several applications may be necessary in severe cases).
2. At the same time, Minit-Rub's pain-dulling ingredients soothe the surface ends of the troubled nerves (C).

Locatelli Gets In Today for Ghnouly Bout

Ghnouly continued training at Trafton's gymnasium yesterday by sparring three rounds with Moon Mullins. Ghnouly is of Italian parentage, as is Frank Battaglia, Chicago middleweight challenger, who will clash with Chuck Heffner, Denver, Colo., in a second match on the card.

Both of these warriors drilled yesterday, Battaglia going several rounds with Carl Knowles, Savannah, Ga., at Trafton's, and Heffner boxing a few rounds with Bob Brown at the new Madison Square loop gymnasium.

A principal in each of the two remaining encounters also is of Italian descent. They are Leonard Del Genio, New York lightweight who is paired with Babe Daniels, Minneapolis, and Mike Belloise, eastern featherweight, who boxes Jimmy Christy, Chicago. These five Italian boxers are rated highly in their respective divisions.

Locatelli was born at Bellizona, Italy, Oct. 6, 1906; Battaglia at Winnipeg, Sept. 13, 1910; Del Genio at New York, June 7, 1914; Belloise at New York, Feb. 18, 1911, and Ghnouly at St. Louis in 1910.

Wonderbolts, Harvey Win in Peel Series

BY OFFSIDE.

The Wieboldt Wonderbolts and the Harvey United soccer teams yesterday won semi-final matches in the Peter Peel cup series. The Wonderbolts whipped Vienna, 2 to 0, at De Paul stadium, while Harvey defeated Olympia, 3 to 2, at Olympia stadium.

Vienna gave the Wonderbolts a tough battle for most of the first period, but Lillie finally broke through to slam home the first goal for the winners. The point was something of a fluke, however, as Evans, attempting to stop the ball, deflected it past Goalie Handler into the Olympia net.

Late in the second half the Wonderbolts scored when Lillie, who had been shifted to center, again connected, this time from a close in shot. Vienna then came back with a drive during which Goalie Coutts of the Wonderbolts was forced to bat aside several hard shots.

Referee—D. Strahorn.

Purden scored for the winners in the first period and Keenan and Tearlink added goals in the second half. Kebrle, who is considered one of the best amateur centers in the west, then went on a scoring rampage to hammer home two goals within a few minutes to reduce the Harvey lead. Olympia kept plugging along and had several scoring opportunities before the contest ended. Goalie Trodden, however, repulsed the threats.

MARIGOLD AND MIDWAY TO HOLD SHOWS TONIGHT

Zivic-Chivas, Phagan-Zale Bouts Top Cards.

The regular Monday schedule of boxing shows in two arenas will be resumed tonight when cards will be offered at both Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue.

Last week, for the first time in quite a spell, Promoter Johnny Coulon was forced to break his record of consecutive shows at the Midway because of inability to obtain a suitable windup. Thus, Promoter Maurice Rivkin did a solo at Marigold last Monday.

That card was headed by an eight round battle between Fritz Zivic, lanky Pittsburgh junior welterweight, and Fred Chynoweth, Manitowoc, Wis. Zivic encountered no trouble winning the decision, and as a result he will feature tonight's program at Marigold in an eight round fight with Sammy, Chivas, undefeated Detroit boxer.

The Midway headliner will bring together Johnny Phagan and Tony Zale, both of whom are Golden Gloves products. Phagan won the 1931 International Golden Gloves welterweight crown by registering a knockout over his German opponent. Zale is a former Gary, Ind., Golden Gloves representative in the annual Tournament of Champions.

Nestor Bruggman, Catholic Youth organization, and Mickey O'Shea will compete at 154 pounds in the six round secondary feature to the Phagan-Zale rematch. Armand Cecilia, Springfield, Ill., 1934 national A. A. U. bantamweight title holder, will make his second start as a professional in a four round preliminary against Duke Calaway. Willie Dudlack will clash with Sammy Scoglio, and Joe Cieslak is paired with George Trapp.

Lou Vine vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick [6], 135.
Eddie Jackson vs. Willie Ross [4], 137.
Syl Saleska vs. Ed Schiller [4], 152.
Scotty McLean vs. Billy Webster [4], 138.
John Silvy vs. Jim Goodrich [wrestling].

Frank Saglio, Cicero junior welterweight slugger, is due to start drills at the new Madison Square loop gymnasium, 227 West Madison street, this afternoon. . .

King Levinsky has been signed to fight Art Sykes in a ten round heavyweight bout at Elmira, N. Y., June 24. His scheduled match with Marty Gallagher at Washington, D. C., on that date has been pushed back to July 1.

Boston, Mass., May 5.—(AP)—With a wide grin on his face, Dizzy Dean waved his outfielders back to the fence and grooved a fast third strike on Babe Ruth today when they faced each other for the second time in the St. Louis Cardinals' 7 to 0 shutout over the Boston Braves.

A crowd of 30,000 watched as Dizzy passed the Babe in the first inning, fanned him with four throws in the fourth, and then made him ground out in the sixth.

Before making the Babe almost break his back going for his steaming strikeout ball, Dizzy sent one of Ed Brandt's southpaw tosses sailing over Ruth's head into the left field stands on his first time at bat in the second, when ten Cards went to the plate and drove in all except one of their runs.

The whole game was played in the rain, but an extra heavy shower came along to put a stop to the affair after the Reds tied the score in the eighth.

Sox Win, 4-0; Senators Easy for Whitehead

There was only once in the nine inning stretch that the Senators threatened seriously. That was the fourth, when half of their four hits were put together to send a runner as far as third. A fast double play fixed that, just as a similar maneuver had halted a mild threat in the third. After the fourth there was one hit, and one other man reached base on a fumble by Luke Appling, which was the only mistake in an otherwise sparkling defense. Notable in this particular was another of those one handed catches pulled by Al Simmons on a low liner off Heinie Manush's bat in the ninth.

Now for a few words of summary on Whitehead's big league career. He began it April 19 at Detroit, when he trimmed the champion Tigers on a yield of two runs and six hits. The next chapter was written April 24, when he trimmed the same Tigers on an allowance of four runs and three hits. Four days later he registered his third victory at the expense of the Browns, who scored four times on nine hits. With yesterday's achievement that makes 10 runs and 22 hits in 36 innings of work.

Radcliff Opens with Triple.

Whitehead dropped three of the visitors in a row in the first inning and in the home opener Radcliff made his first effort to give the crowd a treat. It was successful enough to give the Sox a one run lead. Rip led off with a line triple to the score board in right center. Hayes filed to right but it wasn't deep enough to let Radcliff score. Simmons walked. Bonura ran the count to 3 and 2, after which he was thrown out by Lary, Radcliff scoring. Washington's roller to Kuhel made the third out.

The fun that produced three Sox runs in the second and also put an end to Burke's work for the day, began with a pass to Appling. He moved to third on Dykes' single through short. Sewell singled to right to send Appling home. Whitehead's bunt shoved Dykes and Sewell along. Radcliff tapped to Burke, who in the excitement threw to first instead of to the plate. This permitted Dykes to score. Hayes contributed a single on which Sewell ran home. Simmons concluded the incident with a pop up to Lary.

Senators Out of Luck.

The Senators didn't experience pleasure of any kind until the second, when with one out Travis scratched a single past Whitehead for the first hit off the Texan. The next two gentlemen were easy. In the third Sington, a pinch man, walked with one out, but a double play erased the threat. In the fourth the visitors really produced a pair of hits. Stone and Kuhel singled with Manush's out sandwiched in. Another double play featuring Hayes, Appling and Bonura was perpetrated on the unsuspecting foes. Stone's single in the sixth was the only enemy hit after this.

Lyons to Face Yanks Today in Opening Game

The Yankees, minus their boss, Joe McCarthy, who is ill, will be at Comiskey park this afternoon for the opener of a three game series with the White Sox. Ted Lyons will tackle the New Yorkers in the first game.

Manager Jim Dykes was back at third base after being absent for a week. He cut short his vacation when somebody, in a kidding way, asked him if he really had a charley horse or was merely getting old.

Coppola was fairly generous in the third, which was his first inning of work. With two out he walked Appling, who went from first to third on a passed ball. He also walked Dykes. Then Sewell cracked a long drive to center, but Powell caught up with it.

LOVELL WINS BEAR SHOOT AT FORT SHERIDAN

The outdoor shooting season opened yesterday with big bore, small bore, and pistol matches by the Illinois State Rifle association at Fort Sheridan.

The big bore match was for hunting rifles and was fired on a silhouette of a bear which popped up out of a hole for 20 seconds. It appeared twice for each shooter, who had five shots each time at a distance of 200 yards. The match was won by Bob Lovell of the Federal Reserve Bank guards, using an old model 1892 Winchester corn sheller. C. E. Nordhus of Highland Park was second, using a modified Krag, and Ken Smith third, using a Springfield. The winning score was 32 out of 50.

The pistol match, a rapid fire match on the police man target, was won by J. C. Clegg of the La Grange police with a perfect score of 100. Clarence Norris of the Chicago police and Smith tied for second with 99 each. Norris won the shootoff with a perfect score.

CHURCH LEAGUE TO MEET.

Spencer Coals Win, 6-1, Over Logan Squares

Bases on balls and errors in the first three innings led the Logan Squares to defeat, 6 to 1, by the Spencer Coals at Logan Square park yesterday. Cush, starting pitcher, was wild and before he retired at the end of the second inning the Spencers held a five run lead without a base hit. Lundquist, first man up in the seventh inning, got the first hit for the winners. Score:

GIANTS BEAT CUBANS.

The American Giants opened their Negro National league schedule with a 4 to 3 victory over the New York Cubans yesterday at Shewbridge field. The series will conclude with single games today and tomorrow at Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street. Willie Cornelius, Willie Foster, and Ted Trent allowed the Cubans only six hits. The Giants got seven off Dihigo, who went the route, fanning eleven batters. Score:

French Swimmer Breaks 2 Breast Stroke Marks

PARIS, May 5.—(AP)—The famous French swimmer, Jacques Cartonnet, today bettered two of his own listed world records for the breast stroke. Cartonnet negotiated 200 meters in 2:39.6, compared with his old mark of 2:42.6, and 200 yards in 2:25.2. The old standard was 2:25.6.

Irish Varsity Ends Drill with Victory

Notre Dame, Ind., May 5.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's spring football practice came to an end today when the varsity defeated the old timers, or graduating players, 25 to 0, before a crowd of 2,000. The varsity scored in every period, making three touchdowns and two safeties.

Layden Breaks Away.

The varsity made two scoring threats in the last period. Each time the old timers took the ball on downs and each time Steve Banas, 1933 full back, was trapped behind his goal line for safeties after fumbling.

Tackling Is Improved.

The varsity offensive was hampered by sloppy blocking and erratic ball handling. Tackling appeared to be improved over that of a year ago. The starting lineup:

HUGUELET WINS FISHERMEN CAST AT SPORTS SHOW

Three Tie for Second in Tribune Event.

Glenn Huguelet, 20 year old amateur caster, won the fishermen's division of THE TRIBUNE casting tournament yesterday as the sixth annual national boat and sports show opened at the Navy pier. Huguelet, who lives at 3253 North Oakley avenue, made a score of 90 to defeat three competitors who tied with scores of 89.

Two series of casts were necessary before R. T. Durrell took second place from G. H. Carleton and H. L. Walthers. All three tied in the first extra cast with six points off in five casts. Carleton and Walthers had nine points off in the next five casts, however, while Durrell was only five off.

The show opened at 1 o'clock yesterday and will continue through Sunday. Formal dedication ceremonies were conducted at 4 o'clock, with Capt. T. A. Wolleson, acting commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, heading the delegation of naval and coast guard officials and yachtsmen present.

Outdoor enthusiasts were attracted to the show by the display of yachts, cabin cruisers, sail boats, sports apparel, equipment, motion pictures of outdoor life, and exhibits of live fish and animals.

Natural outdoor scenery provided a setting for the exhibit. Additional atmosphere was provided by a lumberjack orchestra, which offered music and dancing typical of the Michigan logging camps.

Members of the Chicago Fly Casting club will compete in the casting events tonight. Women members of the club will compete at 8:45 o'clock, and the men will begin half an hour later.

72 NOMINATED TO SEEK PRIZE IN AMERICAN DERBY

When the field parades to the post for the 27th running of the $25,000 added American Derby at a mile and a quarter at Washington Park June 22 the coming 3 year old champion of the year will be in it.

When nominations for the stake closed last week the list of 72 3 year olds named included not only every thoroughbred that has qualified as a potential champion this season but very nearly every one that gave exceptional promise as a juvenile last season.

All of the 3 year olds most highly regarded for the spring stakes were named for the American Derby—the Pelair stud's Omaha, Kentucky Derby winner; the Calumet farm's Nellie Flag, the Greentree stable's Plat Eye, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Commonwealth, Sachsenmaier and Reuter's Roman Soldier, C. V. Whitney's Today, and Col. E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn.

Black Helen Entered.

In addition several 3 year olds expected to develop into dangerous contenders, but which are not going to the post in the early stakes, were named. Col. E. R. Bradley has named Black Helen and Blood Root in addition to Boxthorn.

The roster of winners of the winter 3 year old specials is complete. Black Helen is the Florida Derby winner; the Greentree stable's Gillie won the Santa Anita Derby; the Northway stable's Toro Flight won the California Derby; Morrison and Keating's McCarthy is the Louisiana Derby victor, and Roman Soldier won the Texas Derby.

Joe Can Walk to This.

A final touch of completeness was added to the list in the last minute nomination of Louis Peters' gelded Joseph J. G. The Chicago turfman nominated his 3 year old for the Kentucky Derby, but with the horse and the stable goat already loaded into a van for a midnight dash to Churchill Downs the Peters bank roll man changed his mind, and the entourage was unable to get across the state line. For the American Derby Peters will begin early his campaign to raise the necessary starting fee.

Omaha Will Be Champion, Crowd Feels

runner and muddy track performer when he was at the races. The mother of Flambino was Flambette, the filly champion of her 3 year old year. She had won the Latonia Oaks and the American Coaching Club Oaks at Belmont Park.

Woodward declared today he didn't have any particular reason for the Gallant Fox-Wrack blood cross which has produced this year's Derby winner. "I was experimenting," was all he said.

Omaha's next objective is the Preakness to be run at Pimlico in Maryland on Saturday. His racing schedule will be about the same as that his sire, Gallant Fox, followed. Besides the Preakness it will include the American Derby, Arlington Classic, Belmont stakes, and the Lawrence Realization. His deeds may even overshadow those of his illustrious old man. Any way that's the feeling every one had after he galloped home in the Derby.

SNYDER VICTOR IN MIDGET AUTO RACE AT 30 LAPS

Jimmy Snyder, south side champion, qualified for the national auto race meet that will be held at Soldiers' field May 19, when he defeated a field of a dozen starters in the feature race of 30 laps at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night.

Snyder and Marshall Lewis broke in front as a team at the start and raced just a length in front of Tudy Marchese. At the tenth lap the latter moved up on even terms with the leaders.

Going into the fifteenth lap Snyder and Marchese pulled away from Lewis. Then Marchese made a wide turn, losing considerable ground, and Snyder was left in front. Lewis made a determined last bid, but failed. Tony Willman made up much ground to finish third.

Willman also qualified for the championship races when he won the second race at ten laps. Johnny Sawyer and Shorty Sorenson qualified when they were victors in the ten lap events.

PEEK WEIGHS DEBT STANDING OF U. S.-WORLD

Value of Defaulted Loans Questioned.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Trade and financial statistics tending to question the proud creditor nation rank of the United States today were submitted to President Roosevelt by George N. Peek, special adviser on foreign trade.

He reported that whether or not this country still owes less to other nations than it has debts due from abroad "appears to depend" on the true value of defaulted war debts and out of date estimates of direct capital investments in foreign countries.

On the basis of these findings, Peek recommended two immediate steps for White House consideration:

"1. The inauguration of a detailed study of our direct investments abroad and foreigners' direct investments in the United States, to supplement the studies now in progress of capital movements.

"2. A review of all national policies based in whole or in part upon our international creditor status."

Owe U. S. 16½ Billion.

Peek's study of foreign trade and this country's international investment position at the close of 1934 showed the world owed the United States a net debt of $16,897,000,000. But war debts comprised $10,304,000,000 of this sum and Peek reported "the present value of the war debts, with the exception of the republic of Finland, cannot be estimated."

The second doubtful item stressed on the international balance sheet was $7,823,000,000 of direct United States investments abroad and $1,000,000,000 of direct foreign investment in this country. Peek said these book figures were "obsolete," and added:

"A detailed study should be made of these investments, as the estimated returns from them loom large in our balance of payments and the investments themselves represent extremely important factors in determining our international creditor or debtor position."

Reviews 1934 Trade.

Reviewing trade in 1934, Peek said that United States gold, silver, and currency purchases of $1,351,000,000 exceeded by $970,000,000 "the amount necessary to balance ordinary goods and service transactions."

He reported this excess of dollar exchange "was not ultilized to purchase American goods and services," but instead found its way largely into the security markets, $732,000,000 being used to reduce United States investments abroad and $238,000,000 to increase foreign investments in this country.

"Until service is resumed on the war debts in default," Peek said, "the often stated necessity for our purchasing from abroad additional goods, gold, silver, or services in order to create sufficient dollar exchange to permit the transfer of funds for this debt service is not apparent."

He estimated American funds blocked in other countries at $100,000,000 and said that despite a net favorable trade balance in 1934, which left Latin American countries with a $113,500,000 surplus of dollar exchange, blocked balances due American exporters amounted to $44,000,000.

Of the $970,000,000 paid the world by the United States in 1934, Peek said $630,000,000 went to Europe, including the United Kingdom.

In addition to war debts, $100,000,000 of blocked exchange and $7,823,000,000 of direct investments, Peek's investment account listed other United States assets as $5,270,000,000 [face value] in foreign bonds held in this country and $90,000,000 of deposits and short term funds of American banks in foreign countries for a total of $24,487,000,000.

Against these assets were listed liabilities of $6,000,000,000 of American stocks and bonds held abroad, $1,000,000,000 of direct investments, and $59,000,000 of deposits and short term funds of foreign banks in this country.

120 Mile Hour Engines to Get Freight Train Workout

The Milwaukee road's two new streamlined 120 mile an hour steam locomotives will arrive in the city early this morning and after a brief stop will leave at 8:30 a. m. to be broken into service on slow freight trains. Later in the month one of the engines will be put on public exhibition at the Union station. The engines will be used in the Milwaukee's high speed passenger service between Chicago and the Twin Cities.

Weekly Tobacco Price Index Shows Increase

New York, May 5.—(AP)—The stich index of weekly average tobacco prices, based upon the 1926 average of 13.1 cents a pound as 100, for United States type aircured burley tobacco, rose last week to 129.8.

Spring Wheat Now Focus of Grain Trading

With moisture conditions in the spring wheat belt of the northwest the best in five years, speculative interest in grains is centering more heavily on this crop. Seeding has made rapid progress despite snow and rain, and it is now unofficially estimated that more than 50 per cent of the 19,000,000 acres to be shown in the area have been planted.

The bulk of the seeding will be completed in two weeks if good weather prevails, giving the crop a good start and sufficient initial stamina to resist later hardships. Late seeding no longer constitutes the hazard it once did. Varieties now used have hastened maturity to such an extent that leading standard grades mature 10 to 20 days ahead of what was formerly considered normal, which has lessened the dangers of rust damage.

Prices Lower for Week.

Meanwhile the last week has been marked by declining price tendencies. Excellent rains were received over much of the wheat belt, the advent of May brought the heaviest deliveries on futures contracts which the market has to absorb, while professional speculative sentiment has become decidedly bearish because of the small public interest in the market.

Despite this the market absorbed the liquidation in excellent fashion. Wheat declined about 3 cents and corn less than 2 cents, with the May future in the yellow cereal dipping only fractionally. Oats slipped 2 to 4 cents lower, but rye assumed the stellar rôle from a price standpoint by gaining small fractions.

Estimates by private crop authorities of this year's winter wheat crop in the United States average 449 million bushels, a drop of 40 millions from their April 1 prediction but still 14 millions more than the government's April 1 estimate. Issuance of the official forecast next Friday detailing the condition as of May 1 is being awaited with extreme interest.

Stocks of wheat in commercial mills and elevators as of April 1 were 27 million bushels below last year, while combined with farm reserves, country mill and elevator stocks and commercial visible supplies, the total is 115 million bushels smaller than in 1934. Based on these figures a surplus of about 185 million bushels will be carried into the new crop year on July 1, assuming consumption will be normal until then.

WHEAT.

	High.	Low.	May 4.	Close Apr. 27.
May	1.00½	.96	.96	.99½
July	1.00¼	.96¼	.96¼	.98¾

Sept.	.39¾	.37	.37	.39⅝

RYE.

Sept.	.61⅝	.59¾	.60⅜	.60¼

Season's range: May, 95⅝@53c; July, 80½@84½c; September, 86½@55½c.

Corn showed greater activity in both the cash and futures market, although much of the trade resulted from transfers of commitments in the May delivery to more deferred futures. Because of small local public elevator stocks deliveries have been light, while the cash basis has been unchanged. The actual arrival of two cargoes from Canadian lake ports had less market effect than did rumors concerning the possibility of such shipments.

SEES VICTORY FOR SOUTHERN COTTON GROWERS

New York, May 5.—(AP)—A victory for southern cotton in the competition with foreign nations was predicted by Alston Hill Garside, economist of the New York Cotton exchange, in his book, "Cotton Goes to Market," published today.

Characterizing the south as "the greatest cotton growing area in the world," Garside said, "there is no question that the south can more than hold its own in competition with foreign cotton growing territories so far as concerns costs and prices.

"The problem is not how to keep for this country its dominance in world cotton production, but how to make cotton growing in the south a reasonably remunerative means of living for those who are dependent upon it."

SILVER CEASES TO BE LEADING TRADE FACTOR

Stock Market Moves at Slower Pace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Silver has lost its charm as a watchword for operations on the stock exchange—for the time being at least, brokers agree.

Instead of becoming excited every time the Washington administration takes some new action regarding the white metal, share traders are turning anew for guidance to such orthodox market factors as trade statistics, crop prospects, dividends and the administration's probable manner of spending the $4,800,000,000 "recovery" appropriation recently placed in its hands by congress. At the moment the data on all these items are admittedly too scanty to provide very reliable pointers.

Market Stands By.

The market, therefore, seems to have elected to stand by for a spell. The averages barely moved yesterday and the net change on the entire week amounted to only 35 cents. Activity fell off appreciably, the week's turnover of 4,879,700 shares comparing with 7,686,445 the week before. Industrial shares made the best group showing, the index on 25 representative issues of the division registering a net gain of more than a point.

Rails showed a small loss on the week, due in part to disappointing carloading figures, while the silver mining issues, for weeks the spotlight performers of the list, lost caste on growing uncertainties regarding the administration's silver price fixing plans. Prices of leading issues in this division showed a mixed trend, with American Smelting, Howe Sound, and Cerro de Pasco making some further improvement and U. S. Smelting, Park-Utah, and Silver King surrendering part of the ground they gained when Washington was prodding the price of the metal on the world markets to higher and higher levels.

Chrysler Stock Active.

Special situations, such as the Chrysler corporation's first quarter earnings report showing profits of $2.12 a share and the federal court decision upholding the Republic Steel-Corrigan-McKinney merger, which the government had sought to block as a violation of the anti-trust laws, created some diversion here and there during the week, but not enough materially to affect the market's course as a whole. Thus dealings in Chrysler were the largest of any issue of the list, amounting to 325,900 shares on the week, and the price advanced $4.50 a share, largely due to the corporation's surprising report.

Other motor shares attracted a little better interest, although the spreading labor troubles among General Motors plants were a handicap of no small weight to the group. General Motors common finished the week a half point higher. The steel merger decision gave a fillip to the shares of Republic, but other steel issues paid little heed to it.

Oils Make Headway.

Oils continued to make headway on the improving gasoline price structure and sugars came to the front late in the week on reports indicating better conditions in the Cuban market. A dozen or so preferreds were rather heavily bought for one special reason or another.

American Telephone was prominent on buying attributed largely to investment demand. Buyers of this blue chip favorite argue that even if the corporation's dividend rate should eventually be reduced, say to $6 a year, the stock still would be cheap at current prices in view of prevailing money rates.

$1,446,000,000 Liberties Offered for Exchange

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced tonight that $1,446,000,000 of the $1,933,000,000 in first Liberty bonds, called for June 15, have been offered in exchange for new and lower interest-bearing securities. The refunding issues consists of 20-25 year 2⅞ per cent bonds and five year 1½ per cent notes. The exchange was being made on a par-for-par basis until after midnight May 7, when the new bonds will be lifted to 100½.

FOREIGN DOLLAR BONDS IN DEFAULT TOTAL $1,825,375,250

New York, May 5.—(AP)—The annual report of the foreign bondholders' protective council issued today shows publicly offered dollar bonds issued or guaranteed by foreign governments or political subdivisions were outstanding in the amount of $5,469,085,190 at the end of 1934. Of this total $1,825,375,250 was in default as to interest and $90,071,100 in default as to sinking fund only.

Dollar bonds outstanding for Latin America totaled $1,364,116,860, with $1,188,665,400 in default as to interest.

Of total European dollar bonds outstanding in the amount of $1,590,449,000, an aggregate of $629,729,800 were in default as to interest. Of the total in default Germany was responsible for $365,612,000.

In the far east, which includes Australia, China, and Japan, there was a total of $358,614,300 in dollar bonds outstanding, with $5,500,000 of Chinese bonds in default.

Of the Canadian total of $1,755,905,030 dollar bonds outstanding, only $1,480,050 in municipal bonds were in default as to interest, the council reported.

The council estimated that $10,500,000,000 in foreign dollar bonds were floated in the United States during 1920-'31 by some 42 countries. The total outstanding has been substantially reduced by repayments and repatriation in recent years.

NIAGARA HUDSON FIRST QUARTER EARNINGS RISE

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—The Niagara Hudson Power corporation and subsidiaries report for the first quarter of 1935 a consolidated net income of $1,773,430, equal to 20.3 cents a share on 8,738,559 common shares, against $1,714,293 revised net income, or 19.6 cents a share, on 8,738,135 common shares in the 1934 period.

For the March quarter gross revenue was $19,524,623, against $18,842,865 a year ago, and net earnings were $7,723,823, against $7,648,739.

The pamphlet report of the corporation says the shortage of power "alleged to exist in recent reports of the federal power commission does not apply to the Niagara Hudson system. At the present time the system has more than 700,000 reserve horse power out of a total installed capacity of 2,350,000 horse power. Furthermore, certain of the subsidiary companies own strategically located undeveloped water power sites and a number of steam stations could be readily enlarged to provide for added capacity when needed."

Texas Gulf Producing Net Income Shows Decline

Net income of the Texas Gulf Producing company for the quarter ended March 31, 1935, amounted to $194,212 after all charges, compared with a net of $209,068 in the corresponding three months of 1934, a decrease of 7 per cent. Gross operating income for the period totaled $386,763, or 4 per cent below the $404,955 for the first quarter of 1934. Net operating income totaled $218,658, against $249,030, a decline of 12 per cent.

PATHE EXCHANGE REPORTS $78,705 DEFICIT FOR 1934

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—The Pathé Exchange, Inc., has reported for the fifty-two weeks ended on Dec. 29 profits of $262,620 before interest, federal income tax, and provision for possible losses on loans and advances. In addition to interest of $144,625 and provision of $1,700 for federal income tax of a subsidiary, the directors have set aside $195,000 as provision for possible losses on loans and advances made in 1934 and not yet repaid. This resulted in an operating deficit of $78,705.

Financing done for the redemption of the company's debentures was explained by Frank F. Kolbe, president, in a letter to stockholders. Of the amount needed, he said, $32,000 was taken from the company's cash balances and the remaining $2,000,000 was borrowed from the Bankers Trust company at 4 per cent per annum under an agreement made with the bank on Feb. 27. This agreement requires $500,000 be repaid on May 1, 1937; $500,000 on May 1, 1938, and the remaining $1,000,000 on May 1, 1939. The company's 49 per cent interest in the du Pont Film Manufacturing corporation was pledged to the Bankers Trust to secure the loan.

For 1933 the company reported a net profit of $386,629, equal after 8 per cent preferred dividend requirements to $1.33 a share on 242,823 class A preference shares.

MOST BUSINESS LINES IN CHICAGO REMAIN AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Chicago business as a whole last week continued slightly ahead of a year ago, with the exception of local steel output. Even then tractor demands for steel continued at a satisfactory level and pig iron moved in heavy quantity, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Wholesalers were well satisfied, as retail buying from most sections of the country continued ahead of 1934 and collections were said to be in exceptionally good order. Retail trade was adversely affected by inclement weather during the last few days of the week, although turnover, as a whole, was better than last year.

Rents stiffened during the week and there was a marked improvement in building contracts and construction. Suburban building was noticeably better, the association reported.

Burlington Makes Flynn Executive Vice President

Flynn, who has been in active charge of introduction and operation of the Burlington's new Zypher trains, started with the company in 1897 as a brakeman.

Dawes Relies on Summer to Bring Revival

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the City National Bank and Trust company and formerly Vice President of the United States and ambassador to Great Britain, last night reiterated his prediction that the nation is on the threshold of full business prosperity.

He announced that he still stands on his prediction of last December that the depression will be brought definitely to an end in June or July by the beginning of a "great sustained demand for durable goods due to the accumulation for five years of postponed demands."

Calls Upturn Inevitable.

"This sudden rise in the demand for heavy durable goods at the end of a panic is inevitable," the colorful "Hell and Maria" general asserted, "but because the rise is always sudden it is always unexpected.

"Man is such a creature of mental habit that before a great depression, in the midst of prosperity, the common thing is to predict the continuance of prosperity, and at the end of a period of depression it is usual to predict a continuance of the depression.

"If the beginning of this great sustained demand in heavy durable goods does not commence in June or July of this year, as I predicted, then and not until then, in my judgment, is there any justification of the claim that this recovery is not running the same course as to time as that of the two former great depressions of 1873 and 1893."

Cites Previous Recoveries.

The general pointed out that a large and sudden demand for durable goods occurred about five years and seven months after the beginning of those depressions, the trade being taken entirely unaware in both instances. June and July of this year mark the end of the five year seven month period.

Gen. Dawes also related that the iron business of the country was prostrated when the Iron and Steel association met at Pittsburgh on May 5, 1879.

"Two months later," he continued, "all iron manufacturers had more orders than they could fill, and in September faced an iron famine which was only prevented by the importation of pig iron from Great Britain. In late 1898, at the same period in the depression of 1893, Bessemer pig iron, then at $11 per ton, started on a steady upward rise until it reached $25 per ton within eleven months."

MOTOR STRIKES REDUCE WEEK'S STEEL OUTPUT

Production of Ingots Sags to 44 Pct.

Labor troubles in the automobile industry last week had more effect on finished steel production than on steel ingot output, as the latter dropped only 2 points to 44 per cent, while the decline in the finished product was much more severe, according to the magazine Steel.

Production of full fashioned sheets, used largely by automobile manufacturers, fell off 16 points to 58 per cent and common black sheets sagged 3 points to 64 per cent. Nut and bolt makers reported a decline of 30 per cent in releases, the review says. While finished steel has received the full impact for the present, it is believed raw steel production will sink to lower levels this week.

Await Outcome of Toledo Strike.

The General Motors corporation is arranging to make transmissions in plants other than those of Chevrolet and Pontiac, where strikes have tied up production. If the Toledo strike is settled promptly material releases will be issued this week, says the review, and if not, it will require another ten days or more until facilities are reorganized.

"As a reflex of numerous strikes, as well as uncertainties pertaining to action by congress on the NRA and its possible effect on the steel code, with its price provisions, caution was widely noted in the buying attitude of consumers last week," the journal says. "Outside of the automobile industry the general volume of specifications was lighter. Tin plate production fell 10 points to 75 per cent.

"Farm tractor and implement industries still hold close to the peak. Structural shape awards for the week increased slightly to 15,200 tons, aided by 7,700 tons for a dam at Alton, Ill.

Three Roads Buy Rails.

"The Akron, Canton and Youngstown was reported to have placed 8,000 tons of rails; Missouri Pacific awarded 4,500 tons, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois, 2,625 tons of rails and fastenings."

Operations last week dipped 6 points to 50 per cent in Youngstown, 3 to 54 at Cleveland, 1 to 51 at Chicago, 7 to 27 in Buffalo, and ½ to 28½ in eastern Pennsylvania. In New England the rate gained 5 points to 30 per cent, and at Wheeling 3 to 79. Pittsburgh held at 37, Birmingham at 54½, and Detroit at 82 per cent of capacity.

3 OF 10 STATE BANKS PAY MORE TO DEPOSITORS

Lansing, Lyons, Kenwood Increase Repayments.

Reports on the condition of ten more closed banks, issued last night by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, showed the Lansing and Lyons State banks lifting returns to depositors from 20 to 25 per cent as the only additional repayments made in the first three months of the year in this group.

The Kenwood State bank, center of the recent court fight in which John M. Thomson was replaced as receiver by William L. O'Connell, repaid 10 per cent, or $23,000, on April 25, raising the total to $94,000, or 40 per cent, O'Connell also asked a vote on whether to sell bonds now and pay another 16 per cent or wait for possible further increase in their value. Replies to date favor payment now. After that, most of $275,000 remaining assets would consist of dubious loans, mostly unsecured.

Further Small Return Expected.

Little further return is looked for by the new receiver other than collections of stockholders' liability, estimated to yield 15 per cent by Thomson, who remains receiver of the stock suit. The biggest item in $52,000 expenses is $25,350 clerical. The bank also has paid $120,000 prior claims.

The principal of liquidation in the other nine banks is shown below, together with prospects for future payments. Five have repaid nothing yet, and probably will not return more than a pittance of their deposit liabilities. Estimates are based on the state auditor's figures and views of persons close to the affairs of the respective banks. Figures cover the entire period of receivership unless otherwise stated.

KIMBELL TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts, $827,354; $73,500 last quarter. Paid $445,000 on prior claims; $85,000 last quarter. Clerical cost $74,000, $13,000 interest, and $250,000 to protect assets, but $267,000 returned from latter source. Still must pay $81,700 balance on borrowed money and dispose of attorneys' fees and $50,000 preferred claims awaiting court adjudication before anything goes to depositors, who are owed $1,368,000. Cash on hand, $32,800. Application has been made for $236,000 from RFC for initial dividend. There should be something eventually for depositors from remaining assets, on books at $1,921,000 bloated value.

Lake View State Bank.

LAKE VIEW STATE—Receipts, $2,867,000; $45,000 last quarter. Paid $372,700 prior claims and $1,716,000, or 30 per cent, to depositors. Costs: $45,700 to receivers, $142,500 to Attorneys Kirkland, Fleming, Green, and Martin, $188,300 clerical, and $290,500 to protect assets, with only $157,500 returned. Cash $111,000, but $290,000 is needed for 5 per cent on deposits. Remaining $4,719,000 book value assets are expected to yield further substantial returns. The bank is starting work on RFC loan application and hopes for some money by autumn.

LANSING STATE — Receipts, $218,100; $10,500 last quarter. Paid $60,800 prior claims and $83,500, or 25 per cent, on deposits; $20,000 last quarter. All netted in future will go to depositors and fairly steady liquidation to further substantial returns from $385,000 book value assets remaining. Costs: $24,000 clerical, $16,000 legal, $19,000 to protect assets.

LARAMIE STATE — Receipts, $212,500; $153,300 to prior creditors and nothing to depositors. Losses over $81,000 to date and will be much heavier on remaining $415,000 book value assets, which are slow or dead. Little if anything is expected for depositors. The bank has had a struggle to meet current bills, but now has cash to pay the last $5,100 on borrowed money. Depositors are owed $316,000. Largest of $54,000 expenses is $25,000 clerical.

Lincoln State Bank.

LINCOLN STATE — Receipts $252,800; $154,200 to pay prior claims. Heavy losses of $173,400, or 40 per cent, on assets sold to date; starving for revenue to meet current bills. Very little if anything is indicated for $872,000 deposit liability after payment of $62,000 balance still due on borrowed money. Book value is $1,211,000 on remaining assets of dubious value. Expenses of $97,500 include $33,000 clerical, $12,500 interest, $25,600 asset protection.

LINCOLN TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts $1,548,000; $40,000 last quarter. Paid $265,000 prior claims [$26,000 last quarter] and $845,200, or 30 per cent, to depositors. Nearly all trust claims are settled and early payment of another 10 per cent to depositors is indicated by RFC approval of $310,000 loan. Further returns are probable later from $2,389,000 book value assets, although these are heavy in real estate. Costs include $211,500 to protect assets [$190,000], $119,800 clerical, $3,000 legal, and $17,400 to receivers. Cash is only $5,700.

LOGAN SQUARE STATE AND SAVINGS—Receipts $480,600; $31,500 last quarter. Paid $244,200 prior claims; $13,000 last quarter. Rest of quarter's receipts went to expenses. The bank still owes a balance of $206,000 on borrowed money and has $100,000 in contested claims for preference. Little is expected for depositors, particularly if claims are allowed as preferred, from remaining assets of $1,039,700 book value. Depositors are owed $523,000. Costs include $92,000 to protect assets [$74,000 receipts from this source], $45,750 clerical, and $32,500 interest.

Lyons State Bank.

LYONS STATE—Receipts $199,900; $112,300 to erase prior claims and $52,900, or 25 per cent, to depositors [$10,500, or 5 per cent, last quarter]. Costs of $32,500 expenses is $13,500 clerical. The bank has little cash now, but another $40,000 or so may be realized for depositors from $157,000 assets with luck on real estate.

MADISON SQUARE STATE — Receipts, $531,000; $137,000 last quarter. Paid $379,300 prior claims [$126,500 last quarter]. Compromises on loans and reduction of collateral to possession last quarter knocked $175,000 off the balance due on borrowed money, now at $159,700. The only chance for depositors to gain any return on $837,500 due them appears to lie in a final liquidation loan from RFC on the dubious set of remaining assets carried on books at $831,000. Costs of $92,000 include $31,000 clerical, $11,000 interest [$8,500 last quarter], $20,500 to protect assets [$26,000 realized from this source], and $24,000 legal fees. Reserved cash is $60,500.

DEMAND FOR LOW PRICED ISSUES FEATURES BONDS

Refunding Vogue Makes Investors Cautious.

New York, May 5.—(AP)—A strong demand for low priced issues of most all classifications was an outstanding feature of the bond market last week.

Reflecting the existence of a wealth of idle funds seeking profitable employment and timidity on the part of investors to venture into the prime investment field, where prices are already high and the popularity of the refunding vogue added a note of caution, junior obligations were picked up in substantial volume and new 1935 tops were made by a sizable number.

U. S. Liens Are Strong.

U. S. government bonds continued in a strong position, with most of the treasury issues establishing new peaks on two successive days and then sliding back a trifle on profit taking. The list as a whole showed moderate advances on the week.

The refunding tide swept onward with increasing force. Among other preparations completed during the week to refund existing obligations at a lower interest rate was the action of stockholders of the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston in authorizing directors to proceed with plans to issue $53,000,000 in bonds to retire the company's $55,000,000 in coupon notes due in 1937.

Edison Plans Refunding.

Announcement was also made during the week that a special stockholders' meeting of the Commonwealth Edison will be held in Chicago at an early date to consider proposals to call the company's $29,500,000 series "E" and "G" bonds and issue other securities bearing a lower coupon rate. It was understood that a banking syndicate had already agreed to underwrite such an issue.

Indicative of the healthy condition in the state and municipal bond market is the large number of new offerings constantly being made with splendid results. Among other issues scheduled to be sold during the week beginning May 6 is one of $11,500,000 of the metropolitan water districts of California and one of $1,000,000 city of Chicago park district bonds which will be sold on Tuesday. The total state and municipal financing during the week will aggregate around $19,000,000.

CANADIAN BANK ASKS U. S. TRADE AID FOR BRITISH

MONTREAL, Que., May 5.—(AP)—The May monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada asserted today that the time has arrived for the United States to make substantial concessions on goods from the British empire.

While the annual surplus of commodity exports of the United States over commodity imports has averaged $560,000,000 in the last nine years, the letter said, $495,000,000 of this surplus is in trade with the British empire, and $400,000,000 of it in trade with Great Britain alone.

"With most governments attempting to regulate their imports from each country in accordance with the sales to that country, the large import balance of the British empire in its trade with the United States assumes special significance," the letter says.

"It is inevitable that if Great Britain is to continue to absorb excess goods from the United States, quotas for other countries must be smaller than would otherwise be the case," the letter set forth.

"Certainly the record would indicate that the time has come for the United States to make substantial concessions on goods from the empire."

GROSS REVENUES OF RAILROADS CHANGE LITTLE

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—The report of the 145 class 1 railroads in the United States for the first three months of this year shows virtually no change in gross revenues, compared with the same period last year, but a decline of 24.8 per cent in net railway operating income, according to the Association of American Railroads. In March, the gross revenues of these carriers was 4.2 per cent below that in March, 1934, and net railway operating income was down 27.5 per cent.

The decrease in the net operating income of the eastern carriers in the first three months was considerably less than in the other two districts. While the eastern roads reported a drop of only 9.6 per cent, the western roads had a decline of 71.4 per cent and the southern lines a decrease of 36.5 per cent. The western carriers, however, reported a small increase in gross revenues, while slight declines were shown in the other districts.

BRANDS SOCIAL SECURITY BILL PERIL TO LABOR

Manufacturers Predict More Unemployment.

Biting criticism of the federal social security bill as a measure laudable in idea but calculated actually to decrease security, increase unemployment and impair purchasing power, is contained in the current industrial review of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Social security pay roll taxes under the bill which passed the house will cost Illinois manufacturers in certain districts considerably more by 1937 than their present combined real estate and personal property taxes, the manufacturers charge.

"Economists estimate this measure will add 5,830,000 individuals to the 7,920,000 already the recipients of public funds," the trade body declares. "This would make 13,750,000 federal dependents. In addition, there would be another 23,920,000 who would look to Washington for future aid, or a grand total of 37,670,000.

Urges Practical Viewpoint.

"The bill should be shorn of its theoretical aspects and attested by practical considerations. A comprehensive program of the kind contemplated by this measure should be predicated primarily on adequate knowledge and facts, and not alone on the commendable desire to help our fellow man.

"The wrong solution of the problem will increase unemployment and seriously injure the workers, employers, the aged, the dependent and all other elements in our social and economic life whom the program is designed to benefit.

"By investing the reserves in government securities the net result will be to saddle employers and employés with the entire national debt."

Make Twelve Criticisms.

The manufacturers' organization cites twelve reasons to back up its contention. They are:

1. The measure is not a recovery program but a reform measure at the expense of recovery.

2. It would impose stupendous and alarming new tax burdens.

3. It would create a vast burocracy.

4. It contemplates the creation of a credit pool so stupendous as to dominate the credit machinery of the country.

5. It contemplates that employés and employers shall pay the national debt.

7. The bill contemplates a fundamental change in the principles of government of the United States.

8. The measure would increase unemployment.

9. Future courses would be dictated by political expediency.

10. Experience proves that legislation of this kind is unsound and costly and indicates the futility of such laws.

12. The measure is designed to promote further labor troubles.

Sharp & Dohme, Inc.

Investors' Guide: Please send me the latest report on Sharp & Dohme.—R. B.

Answer: Sharp & Dohme, Inc., is a long established manufacturer of pharmaceutical and biological products. Its business for a long time was confined to selling products only to physicians and hospitals. During recent years, however, it has branched into distribution of antiseptics and tooth paste [ST 37, caprokol and dihydranol] to the general public. The bulk of its business, however, remains in the distribution of more than 4,000 different items directly to professional consumers.

Net income for 1934 was $942,000, which was 1.17 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to 18 cents per common share, against net of $975,000 for 1933, which was 1.22 times preferred dividend requirements, and equal to 22 cents per common share.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was strong. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 229,085 shares of $3.50 dividend cumulative no par preferred shares and 776,627 shares of no par common. Dividends have been paid regularly on the preferred, but nothing has ever been paid on the common.

The preferred is medium grade. The common is speculative.

United Biscuit.

Investors' Guide: There is a new issue of United Biscuit company 5 per cent bonds, due 1950. What information can you give me about this issue, as I am contemplating a purchase of it?—T. H. B.

Answer: United Biscuit Company of America offered $5,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures, due April 1, 1950, on April 8 in order to provide funds to retire $2,880,000 of 6 per cent bonds, due 1948, and for other corporate purposes.

The company, one of the three largest baking organizations in the country, has a creditable record of operations. It operated profitably in each of the last six years, covering fixed charges 6.19 times in 1934 and 3.28 times in 1933. In preceding years charges were covered by even wider margins.

Sale of the bonds placed the company in a strong current position.

The indenture provides for retirement of 3 to 5 per cent of the outstanding bonds each year, the exact amount dependent on earnings. The usual provisions protecting the unsecured bonds from creation of senior debt are present.

Although the issue is unsecured, the bonds are considered sound because of the favorable earnings record and the strong trade position of the company.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Amid widespread disputes over processing taxes, the farm adjustment administration checked its financial standing today and reported $777,540,894 in revenue and $776,103,578 of expenses.

These figures, covering the AAA from its beginning on May 12, 1933, to April 1, divided outgoing cash into $678,416,926 in rental and benefit payments, $63,853,543 for the removal and conservation of surplus agricultural commodities, and $33,833,107 for administrative expenses. The AAA report said this was where the rental and benefit payments went: Cotton, $224,962,539; wheat, $162,444,853; tobacco, $31,216,317; corn-hogs, $253,536,280, and sugar, $6,256,933.

The AAA divided process tax collections this way: Wheat, $212,546,669; cotton, $219,116,924; compensatory taxes on paper and jute, $11,935,120; tobacco, $42,494,098; field corn, $9,783,598; hogs, $227,576,411; sugar cane and sugar beets, $48,459,991; peanuts, $1,829,189; cotton ginning tax under Bankhead cotton control act, $666,336, and tobacco producers sales tax under Kerr-Smith tobacco control act, $3,132,554.

SEC ANNOUNCES OVER COUNTER TRADING RULES

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—First steps for the protection of thousands of investors who buy stocks and bonds in markets that exist outside recognized exchanges today were taken by the securities and exchange commission. These trading places, known to the financial world as over-the-counter markets, were said by officials to exist in large numbers throughout the nation. Some experts believe they deal in a greater variety of securities than do the regular exchanges.

Comparatively simple commission rules have been designed by that body to insure investors in over-the-counter markets "protection comparable to that provided in the case of organized changes." They require registration with the commission of brokers and dealers throughout the country, who use the mails or any means of interstate commerce to effect stock and bond transactions on other than national securities exchanges.

On and after Aug. 1 the commission ruled that unless he is registered, no broker or dealer may use the instrumentalities of interstate commerce "for the purpose of making or creating, or enabling another to make or create a market otherwise than on a national securities exchange for both the purchase and sale of any security, nor may he use any facility of any such market."
